THE POOR MAN'S SABBATH-DAY.

BY GERALD MASSEY. The merry birds are singing, And from the fragrent sod The spirits of a thousand flowers Go sweetly up to God;

While in his holy temple We meet to praise and pray, With cheerful voice and grateful lay, This summer Sabbath-day!

We thank thee, Lord, for one day To look heaven in the face! The poor have only Sunday; The sweeter is the grace.

"Tis then they make the music That sings their week away. Oh! there's a sweetness infinite In the poor man's Sabbath-day!

Tis as a burst of sunshine, A tender fall of rain, That sets the barest life abloom; Makes old hearts young again. The dry and dusty roadside With smiling flowers is gay; Tis open Heaven one day in seven,

The poor man's Sabbath day! "Tis here the weary pilgrim Doth reach his house of ease! That blessed house called "Beautiful,"

And that soft chamber "Peace." The River of Life runs through his dream, And the leaves of heaven are at play! He sees the Golden City gleam, This shining Sabbath-day!

Take heart, ye faint and fearful, Your cross with courage bear; So many a face now tearful Shall shine in glory there; Where all the sorrow banished, The tears are wiped away, And all eternity shall be An endless Sabbath-day! Ah! there are empty places Since last we mirgled here; There will be missing faces When we meet another year!

But heart to heart before we part, Now altogether pray That we may meet in Heaven to spend The eternal Sabbath-day!

Miscellaneous.

"WHO KILLED COCK ROBIN?" "Why, Nellie, how cross you do look! What is it at all."

"The matter is, that I have been wasting ter minutes looking for my pen and ink, and consequently I cannot get my note off in this mail." "If you would have a place for your things, and each thing in its place, Miss," broke in a tormenting young brother, " you'd not be losing the precious moments hunting 'em up."

"No, it is not there, I looked. Sue will you tell me where my ink is." "Use mine, Nellie, do," cried Cousin Nora, the late. Will you get my ink or not ?" Sasan got up at this last angry appeal, and threw down her book with an air of indignant dignity. "If it isn't in my desk it must be somewhere" she said, going to the table, and taking up an ink-stand which stood there. "Here's ink." a formal note on my paper with that, besides, there ion't any in it ; you spilled it last night."

"Oh, I remember, I was writing on the piazza this morning, yours must be there"-and Susan tripped away, and returned presently, bearing in her hand a pretty Russia leather inkstand, with the consequences of leaving your books behind, as gilded bands. Nelly took it, and her face flushed angrily. "Look there;" she said, pointing to a dark stain on the crimson leather and on the burnished trimmings. "Susan Manly, you have ruined my inkstand. Harry's parting present, too! I have begged you time and again not to use it, and now see I wish you would ever learn to let my things alone!

rather a weakly back, any way, you know," "I don't know, Aunt Catharine," said Cousin Nora. "I think that Nellie has cause for such a strong expression. It does not seem to me that a person has any right to go poaching on the preserves of another for every little comfort he needsespecially when the least degree of thrift would prevent the necessity of such a thing. Nellio is orderly; she likes to have her effects about her convenient, and in their proper places, and nicely kept. System is necessary to her comfort. That, per se is a commendable trait, is it not, my dear aunt?" The lady assented, and Nora went on.

There are many things so large, or so expensive that individual possession is out of the question. But in little matters, which it only requires a triffing forethought and trouble and expense to provide, the case is different. It is merely a question of convenience, and the lack of them often brings serious consequences, or vexatious ones, as in this case; for no note went to the Ashleys, and the musical party will be almost a failure. Susan reminds me of those birds who feather their own nests by plucking the lining out of the nests of other birds who are more thriving in their house-

"I may be severe, Aunt, but you know I have been-staying with the girls three or four months, while you have just come. And I am only, as I believe doing my duty, in this plain speaking. It may be that Susan has never been led to think seriously of the nature of this habit of hers, and I hope she will forgive her venerable cousin for her frankness. Nellie's turn may come any day. "This inkstand," examining the ugly stains on it, " was your sister's property, Susan, and you had no right to take it without leave. But the least you could do, if you took it, would be to use it carefully, and then put it back in its place. Why do you not provide yourself with such things? You are eighteen, and the habits you are forming now you are forming for life, and though these things may seem small matters, they will tell by-and-by. when you have a house to keep, and the comfort of a family depends on your care in little things,

"Every day I hear some such dialogue as this: " 'Sue, have you seen my thimble? I've been looking everywhere for it.'

"'Oh, yes, it's in my pocket-or somewhere.' " 'Sue, have you seen my shawl?'

"'Oh, yes, I must have left it in the garden.' "And so forth. Yesterday, when Helen want ed her white parasol and you had left it at Smith's, so Nell had to carry my black one with her light | sale at muslin, I resolved to speak plainly, and tell you how such things strike a third person. I am often pained by Nellie's impatient words, but in my heart I find you the guilty party! For, with a selfishness which you do not show in any other relation, you put your sister to constant inconvenience, cause her to lose much precious time, and destroy her property, and her enjoyment of it. For as soon as her thimble is dented, being dainty in her tastes, | Early and Late-at HANINGTON BROS., she ceases to be pleased with it. This inkstand gone. Iron in the Blood

MAKES THE WEAK STRONG.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or ac-companied by debility or a low state of the system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form, its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding redetion, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building up an Iron Constitution. Thousands have been changed by the use of this remady, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures, to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

WATCHMAKING IN SWITZERLAND. [From the Swiss Times of May 30th.] E have already drawn attention to the annual meeting of the Society of Arts, held on the 23rd current inder the presidentship of M. Th. de Saussure, and are now able to furnish some further details.

Professor Soret, in delivering a most interesting report, passed in review the operations of the Industrial section, in reference to Commerce, laying great stress upon the competition that has taken place in the manufacture of chronometers. This competition was instituted with the object of testing the workmanship and precision of chrobut those adopted for pocket use were admitted. They were deposited in charge of the authorities at the Observatory, and underwent the most searching ordeal possible to be applied to pocket instruments of this class. The jury pecially retained to decide the difficult question as whom to award the palm of excellence unanimously decided in favor of Messrs, J. M. Badollet & Co. This firm having carried off the sole prize by exhibiting a chro-nometer which fulfilled in the highest degree every con-dition required, crowned their first success by gaining honorable mention for two other chronometers.
