(From the Watchman and Reflector.) A GAUNTLET OF FIRE.

I hope none of my "ministering brethren" in their summer rambles will be foolish enough to run into a big fire, as I did four years ago, in the woods of Maine. Henry Ward Beecher said, that for the first two years of his life in Brooklyn, he thought he must run to every fire, and this he did till he had about "run his legs off" and learnt better; but that now he never gets up at the sound of an alarm till the wall next to him feels hot when he lays his hand on it. Mr. Beecher would agree with me that some fires-like the one I am talking about, for example-inspire one to get up and run away from them as fast as he can, instead of running to them. And I am unable to say which is the more horrible, to feel the wall of your chamber and find it hot, or to feel of all outdoors and find it hot, with a certainty that any way you turn you will How I passed the night I hardly know, but I re-

By that time I grew uneasy, and a certain notion that I was not getting what I came for took possession of me, and impelled me to move farther north. Being of a romantic turn of mind, I fancied I should like to try how it would seem to stand alone in the heart of a wildernessthe real wilderness, ancient, virgin, remote-and to drop my line in waters which

We have already drawn attention to the annual meeting of the Society of Arts, held on the 23rd current, under the presidentship of M. Th. de Saussure, and are now able to furnish some further details.

Professor Soret, in delivering a most interesting report, passed in review the operations of the Industrial section, in reference to Commerce, laying great stress upon the competition that has taken place in the manufacture of chronometers. This competition was instituted with the object of testing the workmanship and precision of chronometers turned out by Genevese manufacturers, and none neters turned out by Genevese manufacturers, and no but those adopted for pocket use were admitted. They were deposited in charge of the authorities at the Observatory, and underwent the most searching ordeal possible to be applied to pocket instruments of this class. The jury specially retained to decide the difficult question as to whom to award the palm of excellence unanimously de-cided in favor of Messrs, J. M. Badollet & Co. This firm having carried off the sole prize by exhibiting a chro-nometer which fulfilled in the highest degree every con-dition required, crowned their first success by gaining honorable mention for two other chronometers.
