To-day the House discussed at length the motion to establish a mail route to the West Indies. The Government professed a willingness to meet any parties prepared to make proposals. Forbes, Domville and others urged the importance of having our own route. There was a discussion on the motion of Mills, fisheries. The Government opposed the motion as likely to cause delay. Sir John said business men would not attempt to settle the question, but would fix the value of the fisheries in a rough and ready way. The debate was postponed.

In reply to MacKenzie Sır John said he had made a formal report to the Government respecting the urbs afternoon and night. bill authorizing Committees to examine witnesses on oath, and now awaited the signification of his Excellency's pleasure. He hoped to be able to announce this to-night or to-morrow.

The Committee on Expiring Laws reported in favor of allowing the Insolvent Act of 1869 to expire till a better law could be framed next session. Mr. Mills moved resolutions required in order to prepare an address to the Queen, asking for a comnissioner to settle the extent of our fisheries, previous to the meeting of the Commission at Halifax. Mr. Blake said the Halifax Commission could not give an award unless it considered the extent of our fisheries from the headland limits. Dr. Tupper contended that the headland limit could only consider the value of the fisheries with- person feels when this vital element becomes reducin the three miles from shore limit.
