Poetry.

"UNTO YOU, O MAN, I CALL."

God calling yet! and shall I never hearken,
But still earth's witcheries my spirit darken?
This passing life, these passing joys, all flying,
And still my soul in dreamy slumbers lying.

God calling yet! and I not yet arising,
So long his loving, faithful voice despising,
So falsely his unwearied care repaying,—
He calls me still, and still I am delaying.

God calling yet! loud at my door is knocking,
And I my heart, my ear, still firmer locking.
He still is ready, willing to receive me,
Is waiting now, but, ah! He soon may leave me.

God calling yet! and I no answer giving;
I dread his yoke, and am in bondage living;
Too long I linger, but not yet forsaken,
He calls me still; O! my poor heart awaken!

Ah! yield Him all, all to his care confiding;
Where but with Him are rest and peace abiding!
Unloose, unloose, break earthly bonds asunder,
And let this spirit rise in soaring wonder!

God calling yet! I can no longer tarry,
Nor to my God a heart divided carry,
Now, vain and giddy world! your spells are broken,
Sweeter than all, the voice of God has spoken!

—Hymns from the Land of Luther.

Miscellaneous.

WAYS OF CARRYING CHILDREN.

In the Vienna Exposition are a number of models illustraing the style in which women of different nations carry their babies. The Asiatic Indian woman carries hers in a blanket hanging in front somewhat below the waist; the Bengalese woman, with the child astride low down upon her left hip, and her left arm supporting its back. The figure seems quite indifferent as to the difficulties in this style of carrying, which must be a highly artistic performance if done so cleverly in reality. The Egyptian woman carries hers in a stately manner, the child sitting astride her shoulder with its hands upon her head, and without any clothing to speak of. The Brazilian woman carries hers in a somewhat similar manner, also in full undress, it sitting astride her neck. Chinese baby is carried upright upon the back, in a blanket, and the South-African in a bag in front, formed by a blanket about the hips of the mother. The Lower Austrian woman carries hers by swinging it in a blanket over one shoulder upon her back, while the Northern Austrian carries hers bound upon a board, after the style of candy models in the confectionary stores. The Lapland carries hers in sledge-shaped pot, made of leather. It seems to have been chucked in feet foremost, and then a frame tied over the opening for its face, whether to prevent it from crawling out or to keep the dogs from kissing it, is more than can be imagined. The most unique style of all is that of the Esquimaux woman, who wears wide, high top boots, and puts the baby, right end foremost, down in the outside of one of them, and doubtless, according to Dr. Kane's description of her style, carrying her cooking and heating utensils in the other. The North-American woman carries her papoose strapped to a board, and that strapped upon her back by a band over the forehead.—Selected.

SPIDERS.

"Oh! here is a spider! Nasty thing! kill it!" said little Tom.

"Stop!" said papa; "what harm has he done?"

"Well, papa," said Mary, coming to little Tom's side, "does he not entrap and kill flies? He's a cruel, sly, spiteful thing! Ugh!, I shudder to look at it!"

Papa, by way of reply, took up a plate with a poison fly paper, on which were several dead flies. Mary understood the silent reproof.

"Oh, papa! you know the flies must not have it all their own way. If we did not use the fly-paper, we should be quite overrun with flies."

"I do not blame you, my dear, for using fly-papers; but on the same ground I must speak a word for the despised spiders; they are God's fly-papers to check the excessive abundance of flies. All kinds of animal, and vegetable life also, if left to increase without check would soon overrun the earth, and instead of the harmony and variety now existing we should have the earth monopolized by a few animals and plants."

"Well, papa, but spiders are such ugly things."

"That is no reason why they should be killed as a matter of course whenever we see them; but I don't think they are very ugly, and they have a beauty of their own, like everything that God has made, and fulfil a useful purpose in nature. Perhaps you would like me tell you a little about them?"

"Yes, papa, please do!"

"Well, my dears, the spider is in the first place very skilful. What a wonderful thing is its web! How fine! how perfect! When a spider cannot fasten all parts of its web to corners or twigs or posts, he attaches his web to a small bit of gravel, which hangs down as a weight to balance and keep the mass of the web stretched out. If a bee or a wasp be caught in the web the spider will help it to get free, for he does not like to attack such big insects."

"How clever!" said Mary.

"By a microscope I could show you the spider's eyes. He has six or eight, and you would be surprised to find how bright they are. His skin too is very beautiful, often covered with bright spots; and when the skin gets worn and dull, he sheds or changes it, and comes out in a new suit of clothes."

"Dear me, how wonderful!" said little Tom.

"Yes," continued papa, "and he also has a new set of legs now and then, and if one be pulled off or broken, a new one grows again, so that he never has to limp about with a wooden leg. I have heard the same of the crabs."

"Oh, papa! and the lobster!" said Mary.

"Yes, the spider is very much like the crab. It has claws at the end of its legs, and two short forearms that enable it to grasp its prey tightly. Now you see that the spider can do many things besides crawl."

"Oh, yes!" said Mary; "he can drop down from his web like a stone just as far as he likes, and then run up again as quick as a monkey up a pole: and he can swing himself by his wonderful web in all directions; really, papa, he is very clever? But what else can he do?"

"He can feel and taste," said little Tom.

"Yes," said papa, "and how exquisite must be his powers of feeling to be able to pull his web like a lot of ropes; and each thread of this web, though so fine, is composed like a rope, of several smaller strands. But the spider can also hear very well, and is also able to foretell the weather."

"How do we know that?" inquired Mary.

"When a storm or frost is coming he goes away from his web and remains snugly in his nest," replied papa.

"I wonder that he has not sense enough to be taught," remarked Mary.

"It really can be tamed. A poor prisoner once had no companion but a poor spider, and he was so gentle and patient with it that in time it came and ate out of the prisoner's hand. Now, Mary, do you think the poor prisoner would have been pleased had he killed the spider?"

"Oh, no, papa! I don't think I should like to kill one now. Poor thing! It has as much right to live as I have. But is there no fear of spiders becoming too numerous?"

"I think not," replied papa; "spiders cannot live without food, and they require a great deal. A spider will eat six or eight times its own weight in a day, so that you see he keeps flies in check by destroying great numbers. If pressed by hunger, spiders will destroy one another, so that there is no fear of their becoming pests, and no need, I think, for little boys and girls to crush them whenever they see them."

A WORD FOR FARMER'S WIVES.

Having read, in your valuable paper, sensible articles in favour of farmer's sons and daughters, I venture to offer a plea for farmers wives, who are sometimes almost as much abused on the money question as their children.

No class of people perform such hard work for so little money as farmers' wives; the work of the farmer himself is no comparison to that of his wife. If there is extra work on the farm, he hires help; but if an unusual amount of labor presents itself in her domain, she rises earlier, sits up later and works harder and faster that her various tasks may be accomplished. Now the question is, why should she not be paid in good hard cash? Why not have an allowance (be it large or small), so that she need not be obliged to beg occasionally a few dollars from her unwilling spouse?

I have seen a farmer and his wife come to market with butter and eggs, which the farmer sold, and for which he pocketed the money—a goodly sum—which he evidently intended to hoard. I have seen that wife meet that husband, and in all humility ask him for a little money. After some hesitation (during which he was probably wondering what she could want of so much money), I have seen him dive in his pocket and draw out his purse, with as much agony depicted in his countenance as if it were drawing his heart's blood. I should like to know how any woman of spirit can stand this?

She probably took the sole care of the hens that laid those eggs, and her hands were the only ones that touched that butter. I ask, why should she not have a part of the proceeds?

All wise husbands give their wives an allowance. It is astonishing to note what a woman can do with a little money, if she can only have an opportunity to plan the spending of it; but when she gets a little, now and then, haphazard, she has neither time nor inclination to plan.

It is demoralizing for a woman to ask for the money necessary for every little article of dress. No wonder that she gets moody and sullen, that she neglects to dress becomingly, or that her step gets slower each day as she plods on in her rounds of duties. I know from experience that a healthy woman can bear a great amount of hard labor if the necessary encouragement be forthcoming.

Farmer, give your wife a certain proportion of the proceeds of your farm, and you will be surprised to see how many comforts and luxuries will be added to your home, and no small portion of the allowance will be expended for your personal comfort. In addition to this, you will have the satisfaction of seeing the roses return to her cheek, and the sparkle in her eye which was once such an attraction to you.

People wonder why young farmers' wives fade so quickly. Let me explain, that in too many cases, this loss of sparkle and beauty is owing to hard labor with no tangible encouragement.—Lillian Mayne, in the Cultivator.

"ALL HANDS BELOW."

A good story is told of a parrot who had always lived on board of a ship, but who escaped at one of the southern ports and took refuge in a church. Soon afterwards the congregation assembled, and the minister began preaching to them in his earnest fashion, saying there was no virtue—that every one of them would go to endless perdition unless they repented. Just as he spoke the sentence, up spoke the parrot from his biding place:

"All hands below!"

To say that "all hands" were startled would be a mild way of putting it. The peculiar voice and unknown source had more effect upon them than the parson's voice ever had. He waited a moment and then, a shade or two paler, he repeated the warning.

"All hands below!" again rang out from somewhere.

The preacher started from his pulpit and looked anxiously around, inquiring if any body had spoken.

"All hands below!" was the only reply, at which the entire panic-stricken congregation got up, and a moment afterwards they bolted for the doors, the preacher trying his best to get there first, and during the time the mischievous bird kept up his yelling.

"All hands below!"

There was one old woman who was present who was lame, and could not get out as fast as the rest, and in a short time she was left entirely alone. Just as she was about to hobble out the parrot, flew down, and, alighting on her shoulder, yelled in her ear:

"All hands below!"

"No, no, Mister Devil!" shricked the old woman, "you can't mean me. I don't belong here. I go to the other church across the way."

WHAT IS HEAT LIGHTNING?—The flashes of lightning often observed on a summer evening, unaccompanied by thunder, and popularly known as "heat lightning," are merely the light from discharges of electricity from an ordinary thunder-cloud, beneath the horizon of the observer, reflected from clouds, or perhaps from the air itself, as in the cases of twilight. Mr. Brooks, one of the directors of the telegraph line between Pittsburgh and Philadelphia, informs us that on one occasion, to satisfy himself on this point, he asked for information from a distant operator during appearance of flashes of this kind in the distant horizon, and learned that they proceeded from a thunder-storm then raging two hundered and fifty miles eastward of his place of observation.—Prof. Henry.

MERINGUE PUDDING.—Soak one pint of breadcrumbs in one quart of milk, add one cup of sugar, the grated rind of one lemon, a small piece of butter, and the yolks of four eggs. Bake until it thickens and browns. When cool, spread a layer of jelly over the top, and beat the four whites of eggs very light; add a cup of sugar and the juice of a lemon. Heap it like rocks over the jelly (do not smooth it down), and stand it in the oven until it browns lightly.

Good, the more communicated, the more abundant grows.

Ayer's
Sarsaparilla

Is widely known as one of the most effectual remedies ever discovered for cleansing the system and purifying the blood. It has stood the test of years, with a constantly growing reputation, based on its intrinsic virtues, and sustained by its remarkable cures. So mild as to be safe and beneficial to children, and yet so searching as to effectually purge out the great corruptions of the blood, such as the scrofulous and syphilitic contamination. Impurities, or diseases that have lurked in the system for years, soon yield to this powerful antidote and disappear. Hence its wonderful cures, many of which are publicly known, of Scrofula, and all scrofulous diseases, Ulcers, Eruptions, and eruptive disorders of the skin, Tumors, Blotches, Boils, Pimples, Pustules, Sores, St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, and internal Ulcerations of the Uterus, Stomach, and Liver. It also cures other complaints, to which it would not seem especially adapted, such as Dropsy, Dyspepsia, Fits, Neuralgia, Heart Disease, Female Weakness, Debility, and Leucorrhœa, when they are manifestations of the scrofulous poisons.
It is an excellent restorer of health and strength in the Spring. By renewing the appetite and vigor of the digestive organs, it dissipates the depression and listless languor of the season. Even when no disorder appears, people feel better, and live longer, for cleansing the blood. The system moves on with renewed vigor and a new lease of life.

TO OUR FRIENDS IN THE CITY AND PROVINCE,
ALSO NOVA SCOTIA, P. E. ISLAND AND ABROAD.
BEFORE closing the second year of our business, we desire respectfully to state that we are not unmindful of the many obligations under which we rest, for the large and very general support extended to us—a support and connection far exceeding our expectation.
In our opening Circular we stated our object was to establish "A FIRST-CLASS TRADE," and in this particular our aim and hope have been more than realized by the fact that our relations are daily extending with all sections of the Maritime Provinces, and our Foreign correspondence eminently rewarding our efforts to adhere more rigidly than ever to our Established System of Uniform Prices, which gives Strangers and Persons Ordering by Letter equal advantages with those making personal purchases.
To retain confidence in the future, as in the past, will be our aim.
To keep our Stock well up with all the Leading British and Continental NOVELTIES, we have made arrangements with First Class Houses to supply us with these, as facilities may offer; and in course of time to add other important features and attractions, so that OURS shall not only be in name, but in reality, a First Class Establishment. Your Obedient Servants,
