LET IT PASS. Be not swift to take offence: Let it pass! Anger is a foe to sense : Let it pass! Brood not darkly o'er a wrong Which will disappear ere long; Rather sing this cheery song, Let it pass! Let it pass !

Strife corrodes the purest mind ; Let it pass! As the unregarded wind, Let it pass! Any vulgar souls that live May condemn without reprieve; 'Tis the noble who forgive. Let it pass ! Let it pass! Echo not an angry word : Let it pass! Think how often you have erred; Let it pass ! Since our joys must pass away, Like the dew-drops on the way, Wherefore should our sorrows stay ? Let them pass ! Let them pass! If for good you've taken ill, Let it pass! O be kind and gentle still; Let it pass !

Time at last makes all things straight, Let us not resent, but wait, And our triumph shall be great ; Let it pass! Let it pass!

Bid your anger to depart ; Let it pass! Lay these homely words to heart. Let it pass Follow not the giddy throng : Better to be wronged than wrong ; Therefore sing this cheery song, Let it pass! Let it pass!

A SCAR ON THE SOUL.

One of my most pleasant memories of early Sabbath-school days is of a lad who for a short time was my pupil. My acquaintance with him began

Being in the country for the summer, the first Sunday of my stay I went to a different church from that attended by the family with whom I sojourned. We came from a distance, and in the same carriage. Knowing it was communion at the church which my friends attended, to save them the trouble of calling for me after the morning service I walked to the place where the horse and wagon were fastened under an elm-tree behind the church, intending to sit there till they should join me. Only two other vehicles were there, in one of which sat a boy whom I observed to be assiduously driving off flies from the horse, saying as he did so, " Poor Ned ! poor Ned ! next Sunday we'll have toward me, so that he was unaware of my presence; but his kind words and acts so attracted me that I resolved upon further acquaintance. They were deposited in charge of the authorities at the Observa ory, and underwent the most scarching ord all possible to be applied to pocket instruments of this class. My first question was : " Boys, do you know the way to London ?" When one said, "No, sir." I took out a compass, and showing it to them, said : "That little needle has an eye to see on the ocean in the darkest night. Lay it on the chart, and one

Several replied, "yes we do." "Who will show you the way ?" One said, "the Church," another, "the priest," another, " our heart," another, " the Catechism."

All these answers were shown to be wrong. "That some men went to church and took the Lord's supper, yet daily in their trade, deceived and cheated, by telling falsehoods. But if we go to the place of prayer,—and ask for faith,—these doubts will fly—these fears will leave,—and we will with steady eye, see this holy book point with a finger of light, straight up to the place where angels dwell. This compass sometimes fails to bring the sailor home. There lies, in the depths of the ocean, many a brave ship, many a noble hearted sailor boy, who watched his compass, but never reached the port in peace. He saw at sunset the red waves look like the parting lips of a friend when he smiles. The poets among the Greeks, called it the "smile of the sea." But it was the warning of the coming temp- est. It was the flag hung out by a kind Creator,— to notify sailors, that there were perils there. The ocean was sure of his prey. Thus the world has a smile,—but it only leads to rain. As the sea wraps thousands in her cold, cold bosom —so the world so full of promise,—so gay with hopes,—so radiant with smiles, —drags down, many a dear youth, to the world of woe !! But who ever having lost his way to heaven,— failed to reach that happy land, if he trusted the guide,—the word of God ? Where did a single boy or girl ever perish, who went to the Bible,— read it—loved it—and followed it,—and yet did not reach heaven ? Not one, not one ! My dear children, go and ask for light to see	I would like to have ruddy cheeks, and bright yes, and strong limbs. But they say that strong rink dims the eye, and whitens the cheek and en- cebles the frame; therefore I will not drink at all. I would like to have a clear mind, so that I may e able to think on great things, and serve God, and do good to others, and prepare to die. But hey say that strong drunk clouds the mind, and often destroys it; therefore I will not drink at all. I would like to have a peaceful heart, and a quiet conscience, so that I may be happy while I am here. But they say that strong drink fills many heart with misery, and implants in many a con- science a sting; therefore I will not drink at all. I would like to have a quiet home, and happy freside, where I could rejoice with loving brothers, and sisters, and parents. But they say that strong drink makes ten thousand homes wretched and miserable; therefore I will not drink at all.
