Life's treacherous road. My cross at times I scarce could bear, Did not my Saviour's loving care Mxtend an heav'nly arm to share My grievous load.

I see it not -- for sight is dim, Yet know, through faith, it comes from Him Who rules o'er hosts of seraphim In God-like reign. And somehow feel no earthly arm

Could give such strength, or pour such balm, For I have tried each sov'reign charm Of earth in vain. My threadbare suit and sandals worn,

From which the world recoils in scorn, He heeded not-the man forlorn Is all He sees. The sinner bruised is all He knows, The pilgrim reeling 'neath the blows

Of Satan's darts-to such He goes To offer ease. For when in darksome ways I've strayed,

Crossed fens, o: swollen streams, dismayed, Still o'er me shone, through gloom and shade, His saving light; One single beam, so faint, so small,

I scarcely knew it shone at all, Till I looked up, when lo ! night's pall Blushed ruby-bright! What if that light were veiled from me?

What if I lost my chart at sea, And tempests raged and rocks a-lee My soul did fright ? O wondrous Love! O Grace Divine!

O Star of Hope! still on me shine, Nor this poor wand'ring soul consign To endless night.

Full long my weary feet have trod, Towards the City of my God, Nor have I fainted 'neath His rod, When scourged by strife; Full long pursued the Eastern star Which shines from Bethlehem's sky afar,

The way to life! Still, still unclimbed is Pisgah's height, Unviewed fair Beulah's land of light, While age's fast descending night

Nor quailed before whate'er would bar

Doth on me rest; Yet ne'er shall age nor time abate My zeal to reach the heav'nly gate, Where saints with boundless joy await The pilgrim guest.

Lord ! help the pilgrim on his way, Help him, when weary in the fray, With trust unfalt'ring still to say, Thy will be done;

Then, howe'er stricken, aged, sore, I'll bear my Cross with joy once more, Nor rest, until at Canaan's door, My Crown is won.

gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, fallen hair checked, color, with the and baldness often, though not always, se cured by its use. Nothing can restore The hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed; but such as remain can be saved by this application, and stimulated into activity, so that a new growth of hair is produced. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning grey or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. The restoration of vitality it gives to the tion of dandruff, which is often so unbenefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a HAIR DRESSING, nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich, glossy lustre, and a grateful perfume. Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co.,
