ST. JOHN, N. B., AUGUST 12, 1874. NEW BRUNSWICK .- The man McCann, who murdered Mr. Samuel Squiers in Carleton County, has been committed for trial at the September Court. We wrote a paragraph for last week's paper embracing the facts as we had been able to gather them at that time, but by some means the printers got in another statement instead, which gave an erroneous impression of the affair. The blunder annoyed us very much. The facts in brief are these: McCann stole the cushion from the carriage of Mr. Squiers. When the loss was discovered, a few minutes after the theft, Mr. S. drove to where McCann was, and claiming the cushion, took it from McCann's wagon. McCann became very much enraged, declaring with oaths that it was his own. After some words, Squiers told McCann that rather than quarrel with him about it he would give him the cushion, and did so. He then drove towards home. When he had gone about half a mile, he heard some person hallooing for posing he had come to give him the cushion, he stopped. McCann drove up, jumped out of the wagon, swore terribly about what he would do, and struck Mr. Cox, who was in the wagon with Mr. Squiers. After they had tried to pacify him,
