DR. SWEINFURTH, who has written the last book about Africa, tells of a forest of acacia trees he passed through. These are called by the natives soffar, a word signifying a flute. The name s given because the acacia trees are pierced with ircular holes by a small insect, and the wind, as it plays upon the openings, produces flute-like sounds. In the winter, when the trees are stripped of their leaves, and boughs as white as chalk stretch out like ghosts, the wind, sighing through the insect-made flutes, fills the whole air with soft, nelancholy tunes.
