The hard-earned dollars he toiled to gain Brought him little but care and pain; For little he spent;

And all he lent He made it bring him twenty per cent.

Such was the life of Solomon Ray; The years went by, and his hair grew gray, His cheeks grew thin, And his soul within Grew hard as the dollars he worked to win. But he died one day, as all men must, For life is fleeting, and man's but dust. The heirs were gay

That laid him away, And that was the end of Solomon Ray. They quarrelled now who had little cared For Solomon Ray while his life was spared; His lands were sold, And his hard-earned gold

All went to the lawyers, I am told. Yet men will cheat and pineh and save. Nor carry their treasures beyond the grave; All their gold some day Will melt away Like the selfish savings of Solomon Ray.
