HEAVEN. Is there a rest from worldly care and strife, Rest from the ills and woes that vex us in this life. Rest for our weary feet, all travel-stained and I ttle tongues from whispering during school hours, Times. Rest unlike earthly rest, rest that will ne'er be o'er Yes, there is rest, sweet rest in Jesus given.

The weary earth-worn soul finds sweet repose in Heaven.

Is there a peace, holy, calm, unruffled peace, Where billows never roar, where jars and discords cease ;

A peace, which like a river forever onward flows,

Yes, when from life's fierce battle thou shalt gain | release, And soar away to Heaven, there thou'lt find perfect peace.

Is there a city where there'll be no sin, Where nothing that is evil can over enter in ;

shall be, free ;

Yes, Heaven is a city with pure untainted air, And nothing that defileth can ever enter there. Is there a garden where the flowers ne'er fade,

Where no damp withering blight, no wintry frosts invade.

Where cherished buds and flowerets will never droop and die.

Where trees are ever verdant and springs are never dry ;

Yez, there's perpetual bloom in Eden's bowers, In Heaven's fair clime there are no fading flowers

Is there a holy, happy home, where like a tired dove After our wanderings we may rest in security and love,

A home more fair than earthly homes, unchang able and bright ;

A home where darkness never comes, where there will be no night ;

Wes, far above this earth-land o'er which we sadky roam,

There is a place called Heaven, a holy, happy home
