[A correspondent in Fredericksburgh, Iowa, if anything, worse and worse. Dick mentioned, "and it will be thy own writes: "Is not this poetry too, good to be lost? never gets weary of annoying me." song so peculiarly sweet.]

I walk down the valley of silence-Down the dim voiceless valley-alone! And I hear not the fall of a footstep Around me-save God's and my own, And the hush of my heart is as holy As hours when angels have flown!

Long ago, when I was weary of voices, Whose music my heart could not win; Long ago, I was weary of noises, That fretted my soul with their din. Long ago, when I was weary of places When I met but the human-and sin.

I walked through the world with the worldly I craved what the world never gave, And I said: "In the world each ideal That shines like a star on life's wave Is tossed on the shore of the real And sleeps like a dream in a grave."

And still did I pine for the perfect, And still found the false with the true; I sought not the human for heaven, But caught a mere glimpse of the blue. And I wept when the clouds of the mortal Vailed even that glimpse from my view.

And I toiled on, heart-tired of the human, And I mourned not the the mazes of men; Till I knelt long ago at an altar, And heard a voice call me; since then I walk down the valley of silence That lies far beyond mortal ken.

Do you ask What I found in the valley? 'Tis my trysting place with the Divine; And I fell at the feet of the Holy And above me a voice said "Be mine," Then rose from the depths of my spirit An echo, "My heart shall be thine."

Do you ask how I live in the valley? I weep, and I dream and I pray, But my tears are as sweet as the dewdrops That fall on the roses of May: And my prayer like a perfume from censor Ascendeth to God night and day.

In the hush of the valley of silence I dream all the songs that I sing; And the music floats down the dim valley, Till each finds a word for a wing, That to men, like the dove of the deluge, The message of peace they may bring.

But far on the deep there are billows That never shall break on the beach, And I have heard songs in the silence That never shall float into speech. And I have had dreams in the valley Too lofty for language to reach.

And I have seen thoughts in the valley-Ah me! how my spirit was stirred. And they wore holy veils on their faces, Their footsteps can scarcely be heard; They pass through the valley like virgins, Too pure for the touch of a word.

Do you ask me the place of the valley, Ye hearts that are harrowed by care? It lieth afar between the mountains, And God and his angels are there; And one is the dark mount of sorrow, And one the bright mountain of prayer.
