Foreign missions do not seem to be very popular n the Southern Presbyterian Church. No new missionaries have been sent out for three years, and during that time the missionary force has been diminished one-third, and the Board closes this year with a debt of $9,000.

The Moravian church, numbering 16,000, gave about $5.50 for each of its members for missions last year. How much poorer are its individual members for this, or how much richer are the individual members of denominations that do not average one-tenth of this amount for missions.

In New York there is only one church for every 2,045 men, women, and children. But there is one tavern to every 125. The money spent in the cost of the 489 places of worship in that city only amounts to $5,000,000 a year. Let our readers try and conceive the vast contrast between the evil done at such a cost and the good accomplished at a comparatively triffing outlay.
