A NEW CHURCH ENTERPRISE.

Rev. W. H. H. Murray, of the New England Church, Boston, has just closed his church, intending to take a twelve months' vacation. In his last two sermons he elaborated his plan of "the Church that Boston needs." It is a novel plan, and so large as to be quite startling. Various opinions are expressed of it by the press and prominent ministers; and while many of them think it not very feasible, not many condemn it very strongly. The majority, while not declaring themselves as to the desirability of such a unique undertaking, seem willing to believe that Mr. Murray may succeed in all the difficulties of the use of a Hall hired for only part of the Sunday, and with no week-day use of it. gives him a right to forecast what he believes possible, while he states what to him seems desirable. But nothing is said about the amount of good that may or may not be wrought among the masses by the establishment of the proposed church, that being a matter concerning which no one feels warranted in venturing an opinion. For ourselves, we will en the scheme, though we may be permitted to express a doubt of the successful working of such a seating capacity of 5,000—the platform to seat 1,000 us work." in addition. Such a service would, Mr. Murray thinks, be a source of enjoyment to strangers and remidents; and would also furnish to the thousands of musical students in Boston a standard of taste and

Two evenings each week there should be in the church a concert; one evening the selections should be popular in character; the other evening they should be sacred. These concerts should be given by the united members of the musical department of the church, assisted by whatever outside talent might be needed from time to time. The tickets may arise any day. for these concerts should be fixed at a low figure, placing the enjoyment, the culture, and the religious influence within the reach of all. It is seen that Mr. Murray attaches a great deal of import-

Concerning the other services of the church it is proposed that there be two permanent preachers, who should conduct one religious service each, every Sabbath. The sittings of the church should be rented for each service, or for both, as the rentor has, up to the present time, been a most gratifying desired. To illustrate: if Mr. A. and B. were the freedom from the great excitement usual at such preachers, you could hire sittings for the year to times, and it is to be hoped the end may be reached The rentals should be imperative. But, nevertheless, these successful work of three years in Music Ha'l, with repeated attempts at assassination are the fair outcome of the doctrines of these pestilent agitators. They are socially democrats; not that they want rule by the people, but license for the people. They wish to overthrow the government not because it has an emperor, but because it represses their lawless wishes. What they want is the overthrow of the social fabric, because it is founded on the idea of private property, which they say, should all be held by the state; while the wages system should not be guilty of the temerity of sitting in judgment give place to the co-operative system.
