WESTWARD. Many people in the older Provinces of Canada, seem to have caught the Western fever; some have already gone, while others are arranging for homes it is possible to find in this world; not, hownext. Still, we think, a word of caution necessary from a tolerably happy and comfortable home to the change. With youth and vigour on their side, used to the implements of husbandry or the labor of the lumberman, and without serious incumbrances, such persons will succeed anywhere, providpossess to reach their new abode, encumbered with cars, with lumber for Messrs. Leonard & Wetmore.

We are satisfied that many leave their homes in the East, who would feign return, could they do so, and will spend the balance of life in regret. Our advice to those who think of going West is to carefully consider all the circumstances of your case, advantages and disadvantages of the two places, and then decide on the future course.

Moody has terminated his "gospel meetings" in Baltimore, and will leave in a few days for his Massachusetts home. The review of his seven months' work in this city reads well. Hundreds of conversions (or as he modestly tells us to put it, prefessions of faith), ministers roused, Christians quick ened, drunkards reclaimed, gamblers reformed, large additions to the churches, unwonted religious activity, both among Protestants and Papists, constitute the visible fruits of his labors. The invisible will not be known until that day which shall disclose all hidden things. When an American minister once said to D'Aubigne that his history of the Reformation was doing much good in America, he exclaimed " A Dieu la gloire, a moi la joie,"-To God the glory, to me the joy.
