THE LITTLE CAVALIER He walks beside his mother,

And looks up in her face; He wears a glow of boyish pride With such a royal grace! He proudly waits upon her; Would shield her without fear-The boy who loves his mother well, Her little cavalier.

To see no tears of sorrow Upon her loving cheek, To gain her sweet, approving smile, To hear her softly speak-Ah! what in this wide world

Could be to him so dear? The boy who loves his mother well, Her little cavalier. Look for him in the future

Among the good, the true; All blessings on the upward way His little feet pursue.

Of robed and crowned and sceptered kings He stands the royal peer-The boy who loves his mother well, Her little cavalier.

FORCE OF EXAMPLE. BY MAUD STANTON.

bridge, and not a soul will see us.' The boys then separated, and Harry found on reaching home that his father had gone to his uncle's and would not return until nine o'clock. "I guess I'll go up stairs," he said directly after tea. "I am rather tired."

"But ain't you going to learn your Sabbat school lesson?" his little sister Alice asked. "I can learn it in the morning in three minutes,

"What possessed her to ask me that question?" Hal said to himself, forgetting that he had studied his own lesson and heard Alice recite hers, ever since she could remember, and it was nothing rest of us. The next morning Harry took his book and started for church with his sister. He glanced at the Ramsdell pew, and Frank nodded his head and great distance from me, and mother, I don't want smiled to assure Harry that all was right.

Harry did not pay much attention to the prayer or singing, but when the text was given out he started; I lo his face flushed and his heart beat rapidly, as he thought, half angrily, he didn't see why it need to he never listened to the sermon; why should he Do you care nothing for your parents?" happen on this morning of all others to hear the text, and such a text, "He that that is not with me, that God is good. And if I were sent away from "What is man, that thou art mindful of him?" Yes, it was no wonder that he said so, but he didn't want God to be mindful of him. Then he could do as he pleased. But what was the use of feeling petition to God asking that he would teach him how so? Of course he knew it was a fearful thing to be to love him, and that he would send his spirit to against God, but he had never done anything very Harry that he might be born again into his kingwicked, and he didn't care if he had promised dom, and at the close of the prayer Harry sald, Frank; he should not go with him to the pond. the course of the lesson she quoted the text of the norning, Harry asked abruptly, "But is that text in the Bible? Did Christ say it?" "Certainly, Harry, you will find it in Matthew xii: 30," she answered. "I do believe Hal is sick," said Frank, as h noticed Harry's pale, troubled countenance. "His little sister said he was." The bright color leaped to Harry's face as he anwered, "I am not sick, and I wish you wouldn't trouble yourself about me."

"My dear boys," the teacher said gently, "you are young and enjoy life; everything seems bright and hopeful to you, but did you ever stop and think there is a day coming when all these will be taken from you? Think of the blessings you enjoy; have you ever felt grateful to God for them? You may think you have never done anything very wrong; you have never been guilty of swearing, of breaking the Sabbath, on the whole, you have been quite good boys. You are not on the side of God. Satar says, 'I will not trouble you as long as you remain contented with yourself. You are the best workers in my army, although you imagine you have nothing in common with me, for others say, "look at those boys, they are not Christians, yet how well they are spoken of." If we live our life as well as they, we shall be satisfied.' Do you not see how fear-

When Harry reached home he went directly to his room. His mother noticed him as he entered, saw the tired, wearied look, and knocking at his door said, "Shall I come in, Harry?"

Harry opened the door, took his mother's hand and seated her in a chair, then throwing himself on row, said, "What is it? Tell mother, dear." A sob was his only answer at first. Then he said, "Mother I am so wretched," and he repeated the day's story, concluding with these words, "I do not wish to be against God, but I do not love im, and what is more, I do not wish to love him.' "Harry, is mother gloomy?"

"Is Willie Thurston gloomy?" "No, not gloomy, but he is different from the

> A LITTLE BOY'S SERMON .- " Eddie," said Harry, I'll be a minister and preach you a sermon." "Well," said Eddie, "and I'll be the peoples." Harry began: "My text is a short and easy one 'Be kind.' There are some little texts in the Bible on purpose for little children, and this is one of them. These are the heads of my sermon: "First: Be kind to papa, and don't make a noise when he has a headache. I don't believe you know what a headache is ; but I do. I had one once, and I did not want to hear any one speak a

"Third : Be kind to baby-" "You have left out, be kind to Harry," interupted Eddie.

"Yes," said Harry, "I didn't mean to mention ny own name in the sermon. I was saying: Be kind to little Minnie, and let her have your 'red soldier' to play with when she wants it. " Fourth: Be kind to Jane, and don't scream and kick when she washes and dresses you." Here Eddie looked a little ashamed, and said But she pulled my hair with the comb." "People musn't talk in meeting," said Harry. Fifth: Be kind to kitty. Do what will make her

A PARROT'S PRACTICAL JOKE. - In his new volume on the voyage of the Challenger, Sir C. Wyville Thompson relates an incident which may be cited in proof that animals are not destitute of the sense of humor. The vessel stopped at the port of Bahia, Brazil, and some of the voyagers went to Santo Amaro, a town about twenty miles distant. There a new line of tramway had recently been laid, with a sharp incline to a steamboat wharf. Dr. Thomson's party arrived in season to take the trial trip on the new tramway. As the track that carried the party went down the incline, the agonized cries of a child, followed by low moans, were heard apparently from beneath the wheels. Instantly the break was applied, and the truck stopped with a NE sudden jerk. The scientific party jumped out and locked around and under the truck in vain. A lot of swarthy, active children stood near the rails, looking on vaguely and curiously, but not as if anything had happened to any of their number. When the passengers, mystified, returned to their seats, a parrot hanging in a cage on the truck, burst into a DRUG AND APOTHECARY BUSINESS, eacher is a Christian, and she does not wear a long loud, mocking laugh, and was at once recognized as the performer in the previous screaming and moanng. Although Dr. Thomson is not familiar with "No, I shall not forget soon, but she is not a Bahian patois, he is convinced that the observations DRUGS, thereupon addressed by the truck drivers to the parrot included some vigorous language. -N.
