Rise! for the day is passing, And you lie dreaming on ! The others have buckled their armour And forth to fight are gone A place in the ranks awaits you, Each man has some part to play; The past and the future are nothing

Rise from your dreams of the future-Of gaining some hard-fought field; Of storming some airy fortress, Or bidding some giant yield; Your future has deeds of glory, Of honour, God grant it may !

In the face of the stern to-day.

But your arm will never be stronger Or the need so great as to-day. Rise! if the past detains you, Her sunshine and storms forget No chains so unworthy to hold you

As those of vain regret; Sad or bright, she is lifeless forever, Cast her phantom arms away, Nor look back, save to learn the lesson Of a nobler strife to-day.

Rise! for the day is passing; The low sound that you scarcely hear Is the enemy marching to battle-Arise! for the foe is here! Stay not to sharpen your weapons Or the hour will strike at last, When from dreams of a coming battle You may wake to find it past.

ABOUT DOGS.

BY A. L. FRASER.

Scientific men tell us that one of the problems they have to deal with is to distinguish between plants and animals. That seems strange, doesn't It was the Widow Gray calling at the foot of the it? We think it is very easy to see how an oak-tree under her cottage roof. As she looked toward kitten; and we are right, for it is comparatively that cozy retreat, there was nobody to be seen, but leasy to do that. But the kitten and the rose belong she knew well enough that in the little chamber a to what is called "higher forms" of life. There boy both curly-headed and sleepy-headed was | are animals which have no head or feet or mouth, which are simply bits of animal matter; and there "Time for that boy to be up," thought the are plants which possess neither leaves nor stems nor roots, and which also simply consist of a mass of matter. These are called "lower forms" of life, and it is in trying to distinguish plants and animals The only sound audible was that of the spring of this kind that scientists have their difficulty. lower forms that one set of scientists call plants and "Third time ought to go," thought the widow; another set insist are animals. You see, therefore "and if it don't, I'll get the speaking trumpet of that it is not always a simple thing for even learned Skipper Ben across the way, and shout that boy or scientific men to make exact decisions on quali ties that are given them to decide.

There is another question in regard to animal life "Here-r, mother," yawned out a faint and which interests scientific men greatly: in what sleepy voice that seemed to come from the depths essential qualities does man differ from animals, as of a dozen comforters. THE SAVIOUR'S CALL.

BY MAY MILTON. Methought I heard my Savour say, In gentle tones, and mild, "I am the Light, the Truth, the Way, Wilt thou not be my child?"

"The thorns did pierce my tender brow, The nails my flesh did tear, That thou may'st have a home on high, A crown of glory wear.

"For thee I bore the heavy cross, For thee endured the pain, For thee I died that thou may'st live, And did I die in vain?' His careworn look my pity woke,

My sympathy and love

Did know no bounds, as when He spoke Of home, prepared above. "Dear Lord," I cried, "and can it be That Thou dost love me still,

When I, the vilest wretch on earth, Refused to do Thy will?" My broken heart did then rejoice In His forgiving love,

And evermore I'll raise my voice

A Saviour's grace to prove.
