ONE WORD FROM JESUS.

THE SERVANT'S WORDS. Sometimes my Master puts me In a thirsty, barren place, Where his name is never mentioned Nor his wondrous love and grace ;

Where around me and about me I naught but darkness see, And the enemy is waiting To deceive and blindfold me.

When dwelling in the sunlight I thought that I could bear A light, into the darkness That would shine most clearly there;

I thought I could be steadfast, Leaning on his might alone, And I asked Him for an opening His glorious name to own.

In burning words of love-The joy of knowing Jesus As Saviour, King above ; The joy he has in saving His people from their sin, His readiness, his power, The heart's first love to win.

I thought that I could tell it

But, ah! with shame I tell him, With shame and sorrow too-I wish that I could speak it As I thought and meant to do-But the precious name of Jesus, To me so very dear,

Falls coldly to the ear. And I dread to tell my secret, Though I know my light is dim, And I thus continue silent When I ought to speak for him

To those who do not love him

THE MASTER'S WORDS. "I will put my words in his mouth."-Deut. xviii. This is the Master's message, In a thirsty, barren place;

I will feed on this green pasture, His word of power and grace ; And I, abiding in him, Will be so very near, That his words e'en a whisper

Will be to me most clear. And oh! one word from Jesus, Put in my mouth, will be Worth more than all the hundreds Prepared and planned by me. "Speak, for thy servant heareth," Is listening for thy voice : Thy word can make the wilderness To blossom and rejoice.

"MISS HANNAH'S BOY."

It was a cold, dark afternoon, and Miss Hannah Reed drew her shawl more closely around her as and as she looked at him, sacred joy shone in her she came down the school-house steps. She was a face. The good teacher was also there, and as he on one side or the other, frequently on both, as to the teacher in the public school, and since her father's and Miss Reed shook hands with Joseph Steele after death had found urgent need for all that she could church, there was a light on their faces akin to that difference of opinion are remarked upon. It is earn. Miss Hannah's strength was not great, and which the angels wear when a soul is delivered from almost impossible that two people can, even though her work pressed heavily, so that often when night | sin came she was too tired to read.

The day had been a trying one, and Miss Reed felt unusually weary; the Sunday before she had given up her Sunday-school class because her week's teaching generally ended in a severe headache. Thinking over this fact, Miss Reed gave an audible sigh, and said half aloud :

"Well, well; there is no use in my trying to do anything but earn a living; I have time and strength for nothing else.'

At this moment she found herself opposite a locksmith's shop, and, remembering that she wanted a key altered, entered the shop. The master was out, but a pale, not very attractive looking boy sat at work, and he said that she could have the key by the next day. As Miss Hannah turned to leave, a weary look in the boy's face caught her eye, and she said in a kindly way : "Do you like this work, my lad?"

The boy looked up surprised, but seeing a look of interest in her face, said timidly :

"I like it pretty well ma'am, but I get very tired; I'm not used to be shut up so much.' "What have you been used to do?" said Mis

" I lived on a farm," said the boy; "but fathe didn't need us all to help him, so he said I have better come to the city, and I found this place." "Do you earn enough to live on?"

"I only get enough to pay my board, and have very little left. "Where do you board?"

" Not far from here; there are six other fellows that board in the house.' "What do you do in the evening? Do you sit with your landlady?"

"She don't often sit anywhere, I think, for she's working most of the time, and we don't say much to her except when we pay our bills. When I can earn a little extra, 1 go to the minstrels; it's right "Do you ever go to church?"

"No ma'am; I don't know much about the churches, and my clothes are not good enough

"Do you ever read?" "Not much; there are not many books at our house; one fellow takes a newspaper, and he lends me that sometimes.'

It was getting late, and Miss Reed, after learning that the boy's name was Joseph Steele, said pleasantly, "Well, Joseph, we have had quite a talk,

When she went home, two voices seemed to be speaking to her; one voice said: "Here is a friendless boy with no good influences around him, can you not help him a little?" The other said: "I wouldn't trouble myself about him; you have enough to do." The first voice must have been the strongest, for the next day, when Miss Reed called for the key, she said to Joe :

me next Sunday ?" "Joe looked reflective, and said:

at two o'clock next Sunday, we will go together." There is the hen-house, which has not been whiteas the clock struck he came, looking clean and neat, poles are covered with dirt, and it will be a marvel a very attractive place, and Joe gazed curiously house is poorly ventilated, and the fowls are com very kindly, and then placed him in the class of a breath. And this time she invited Joe to come and see her some evening; and Joe ventured to call, a little scared at first, but greatly pleased. Miss Reed shewed him the pretty things in her parlor, and exerted all her tact to draw him out. She was pleased to hear him speak quite intelligently of his farm life, and shewing him her stereoscope, and treating him to fruit, it was time to go. Joe remarked that he had enjoyed himself wonderfully, and then Miss Reed lent him an interesting book, and after promising to come again, Joe took his

Miss Reed felt very tired when her guest had gone, but to the boy the evening had been worth more than gold. The thought that any one in the great city cared anything about him was a great stimulant to his better nature. The contact with a refined, educated lady had given him a glimpse of a different life from that which he had known. Henceforth, Miss Reed became a synonym for all that was good and wise in the eyes of Joe.

The Reed household began to be interested in Joe, and they fell into the fashion of calling him ' Hannah's boy." Even Mrs. Simmons, the old lady in the next house, became interested in him, and when he passed her window, she would nod at him and say, "There comes 'Hannah's boy;' what a deal of pains she would take for that lad; well, well, it may do him good," and then her thoughts would wander to her own boy far away, and she hoped somebody might care for him

One day Miss Reed met Joe coming out of beer-shop, and as she came up, he looked a little confused. "Why Joe," she said, "do you need to drink beer ?" Joe said that he generally got very thirsty by noon, and liked to take one glass, and did not see any harm in that. "I don't know as silly gossip is dispensed at the tea table. There is there is," said Miss Reed, "but, Joe, many who begin by going to a beer-house end by taking something stronger, and I would be glad if you never went again." Joe looked very grave as she passed on; but he told her afterwards that he wasn't going day, and there are dollars and dimes for wines and

As the time passed on a gradual change becam visible in the locksmith's boy, Joe's coat was neatly brushed; his hair was smooth, and both languag and manner changed for the better. Potent influences were at work, and there came a look of intel ligence into his face which it did one good to see Some time after this the locksmith had to give up his shop, and Joe was without work; but his Sunday-school teacher succeeded in finding a situation for him in the large house in which he himself was employed, and Miss Reed was delighted at this good fortune, for though she saw Joe much less frequent ly after this, she knew that he was going steadily on, winning the good opinion of his employers. Whenever she met Joe, the pleased look in his face showed that she was still a dearly valued friend. Two years have slipped away; and if you had the easiest and pleasantest; it is the oil that enbeen in Dr. G-'s church last Sunday, you would ables all the wheels of the complex machinery of have seen a pleasant sight. In fun and in earnest, be true, boys

There is no use in putting up the motto, " God oless our home," if the father is a rough old bear. and the spirit of discourtesy and rudeness is taught by the parents to the children, and by the older to the younger. There is no use in putting up a motto, The Lord will provide," while the father is shiftless, the mother is shiftless, the boys refuse to work, and the girls busy themselves over gewgaws and finery. There is no use putting up the motto, The greatest of these is Charity," while the tongue of the backbiter wags in that family, and no use in placing up conspicuously the motto, The liberal man deviseth liberal things," while the money chinks in the pockets of "the head of the house," groaning to get out to see the light of tobacco and other luxuries, but positively not one cent for the Church. In how many homes are these mottoes standing-let us say hanging-sarcasms, which serve only to point a jest or adorn a satire? The beauty of quiet lives, of trustful, hopeful, freehanded, free-hearted, charitable lives is one of surpassing loveliness, and those lives shed their own ncomparable fragrance, and the world knows where to find them. # SUBSTITUTES.

The public are cautioned against a custom which is growing quite common of late among a certain class of medicine dealers, and which is this: When asked for a bottle of Pain-Killer, they suddenly discover that they are "sold out," "but have another article just as good, if not better," which they will supply at the same price. The object of this deception is transparent. These substitutes are made up to sell on the great reputation of the Pain-Killer; and being compounded of the vilest and cheapest Drugs, are bought by the dealer at about half what he pays for the genuine Pain-Killer, which enables him therefore to realize a few cents more profit per bottle upon the imitation article than he can on the genuine.

BEWARE OF SUBSTITUTES!

FOR CHOLERA, CHOLERA MORBUS,

As well as all Summer Complaints of a similar nature, the Pain-Killer acts with wonderful rapidity and never fails when taken at the commencement of an attack, and often cures after every other remedy has failed. If you reside in a country place far from a physician, the Pain-Killer can be relied upon; it never fails.

FOR SUDDEN COLDS, SORE THROAT, &c. The proverb "A stitch in time saves nine," is never so well illustrated as in the treatment of these complaints. A teaspoonful of Pain-Killer taken at the beginning of an attack will prove a certain cure and save TOOTHACHE, BURNS, SCALDS, CUTS, BRUISES, &c.

The Pain-Killer will be found a willing physician, ready and able to relieve your suffering without delay, and at a very insignificant cost. GOOD FOR MAN AND BEAST. For Colic, Cramps and Dysentery in horses, the Pain-Killer has no equal, and it has never been known to fail to effect a cure in a single instance.

It is used in some of the largest livery stables and horse infirmaries in the world. To resuscitate young lambs or other stock chilled and dying from cold, a little Pain-Killer mixed with milk will restore them to health The Pain-Killer is for sale by Druggists, Apothecaries, Grocers and Medicine Dealers throughout the world. The Pain-Killer is put up in 2 oz. and 5 oz. bottles, retailing at 25
