THE VILE OPPRESSOR. What! rob a poor man of his beer,

And give him good victuals instead ! Your heart's very hard, sir, I fear, Or else you are soft in the head. What! rob a poor man of his mug,

And give him a house of his own ;

With kitchen and parlor so snug ! 'Tis enough to draw tears from a stone. What! rob a poor man of his glass, And teach him to read and to write?

What! save him from being an ass. 'Tis nothing but malice and spite. What! rob a poor man of his ale,

And prevent him from beating his wife, From being locked up in a jail, With penal employment for life?

What? rob a poor man of his beer, And keep him from starving his child? It makes one feel awfully queer, And I'll thank you to draw it more mild.

It was a beautiful morning, and the last Friday in April; the sun was just rising in the eastern sky, illuminating the dew-drops of the grass and trees which sparkled like diamonds.

In the village of S- lived two little girls, Mary Harden, aged 12 and Minnie Bensing, aged 11. Their homes were side by side, so that they spent most of their time together. Back of the two houses was a large and beautiful grove, and here they played together. Against the trunk of a hugh oak tree they had erected a bench, out of the dead limbs of fallen trees and when they had covered this with a shawl, it made quite a comfortable seat. At this bench (if the weather was clear) they would meet nearly every morning.

On this morning, which has been described Mary arrived there first and seemed very impatient until Minnie came, but at last she came tripping lightly along, up to were Mary stood. "O! Minnie," exclaimed Mary, running toward her, "I have something to tell you. Last night mamma received a letter from my cousin, whose name is Fannie Summers; saying she was coming on a visit and that we might expect her any day. She is twelve years old, and just the age of me. I have never seen her, and I know she is good and dresses nice.' "I would not judge by appearances," said Minnle. "But this is what I wanted to tell you. I want you to come over to our house and help me fix up the spare bed-room, because she may be here today or to-morrow.' "Well, I will go and ask mamma, and be back

When Minnie returned, the two light-hearted little girls went in together to fix the spare room for the welcome visitor, and after that was completed, they chatted nearly all day about the unknown cousin.

"Be sure and be early to-morrow, Minnie." "I'll be up before the sun is up."

The next morning was bright and clear, and this time Minnie arrived at the beach first. Mary, look here, I have two invitations - one for you and one for me, to be present at a picnic, given by Mary Dolen, at Warner's grove. O wont we have fun ; mamma said I could go if you did. Hurry up and ask your mamma if you can go and don't stay a minute." Mary soon returned almost breathless with ex-

"O mamma, I am going to wear my new one. I dont want to wear that ugly old hat.' Her mother did not say anything, for she knew Mary would learn a lesson some time, for she was very apt to rebel against her mother's wishes.

So Mary put on her new hat and went after Minnie, who took her mother's advice and wore her old one. "Minnie," said Mary when they had started, At last, coming close to the table, she said, in a if I were you I would wear the new one, any naive way, "If you'll believe it, I used to be foolish how."

picnic. Mary had cleaned up her little bedroon and helped her mother wash the breakfast dishes before she went after Minnie.

So they started out to the woods, with about fifty other merry-hearted children. When they arrived at the woods they were tired, and sat down on the cool green grass to rest. After they were rested they had many merry games together. When noon came they were hungry, and spread their dinners on the grass. Before they were through, a poor little ragged girl was seen approaching them. "Will you please give me something to eat, said Mary.

In the wild chase of pleasure and song, Minnie looked reproachfully at Mary and said "O Mary, would you refuse a hungry little girl In the life that hereafter shall be, when we have so much?" But Mary turned disdainfully away. Minnie gave the little girl a large | Canst thou tell, what will Christ think of thee ? plate full and she thanked her and went away. When the sun was sinking in the west, the children took their homeward course. Just as they reached the gate Mary's younger brother ran out and told them that Fanny had arrived. When they heard While thou'rt striving more wealth to obtain, this they ran joyfully in to meet her, when to their utter amazement they beheld the beggar girl at the In the life that hereafter shall be, picnic, but not clad in rags. PARKS' COTTON YARNS! AWARDED THE ONLY MEDAL GIVEN AT THE CENTEN NIAL EXHIBITION For Cotton Yarns of Canadian Manufacture.

No . 5's to 10's. WHITE, BLUE, RED, ORANGE AND GREEN. Made of good American Cotton with great care, Correctly numbered and Warranted Full Length and Weight.

WE would ask the purchasers of Cotton Warp to re W member that our Yarn is spun on Throstle Frames, which make a stronger yarn than the Ring Frames, used in making American yarn.
It is also better twisted and more carefully reeled; each hank being tied up in 7 leas of 120 yards each. This makes it much more easy to wind than when it is put up without leas-as the American is-and also saves a great deal of waste. Those acquainted with weaving will understand the great advantage it is to them to use yarn put up in this

COTTON CARPET WARP, Made of No. 10 Yarn, 4-Ply Twisted. WHITE, RED, BROWN, SLATE, &c. All fast colors.

Each 5 lb. bundle contains 10,000 yards in length and will make a length of Carpet in proportion to the number We have put more twist into this warp than it formerly had, and it will now make a more durable Carpet than can be made with any other material. Since its introduction by us, a few years ago, it has come into very general us: throughout the country.
All our goods have our name and address upon them None other are genuine, WM. PARKS & SON, New Brunswick Cotton Mills, St. John, N. J.
