ments hang all the Law and the Prophets." Matt. 22: 39, 40.

EXODUS 20: 12-21.

TOPICS.—Duty to parents; Social duties: The law from God.

NOTES AND HINTS.

The first four commandments, relating especially to our duties to God, are often called the first table of the law; the remaining six, treating of our duties to our fellow-men, constitute the second table of the law. These are taken up in our lesson to-day.

I. Duty to parents. The family is the cornerstone of society and the State. The fundamental duty of the parent is to rear the child in the fear of the Lord. This authority is of divine appointment, and, therefore, entails the parent the reverence and filial regard of the child. All this is embodied in the single word "honor," in the fifth commandment. That includes a cheerful recognition of the claim of the parent upon the child, as the author of his existence, as his protector, and as his natural guardian. The child is to be obedient to the parent, as he is to be obedient to God, and to the laws of the State.

The spirit of this command includes within its scope all those who, in the course of our experience, may be in a relation similar to that of parent and child. The teacher and pupil, the master and servant, the employer and the employed, the husband and wife, the brother and sister, the friend and neighbor, all are bound by the spirit of this command to mutual respect, confidence and love; in a similar but different degree, and in a different manner, but all are bound by the duties of the relation are distinguished. The precious promise of God's blessing upon those who obey the commandment, and lead their children to the Lord, is a promise of blessing to all who are faithful to their duty.

II. Social duties. Here follow several precepts regulating man's intercourse with his neighbor, prohibiting certain grave offenses against social peace, civility and order. There are some things which man is permitted to call his own, and which he has a right to defend, against those who have a right to defend their own. These commandments are directed against specific acts, the gravest of their kind, and each is designed to include and cover all minor offenses of its class. Murder is the greatest crime against human life, and the law forbidding it, prohibits, also, every thing which would lead to the commission of murder, such as the use of violence, the use of poison, the use of fire, the use of any other means of destruction; each is to be interpreted according to its spirit and not merely according to its letter.

The seventh forbids every violation of chastity or purity; the eighth, every trespass upon the property of others; the ninth, every form of misrepresentation or detraction; the tenth, every desire to get what we have no right even to wish for. In all these things we are to be governed by the principle afterwards announced in the Golden Rule.

III. The law from God. After the giving of the law, the people perceived plainly that Jehovah had spoken unto them. The words were not from Moses, though spoken by his lips.
They were deeply impressed by the manifestation of his presence and power; they became conscious of their own unworthiness and shortcomings; they shrank from the immediate presence of the deity, and besought Moses to speak for them; they humbled themselves before God and devoutly worshipped him. The law does not create the sin which it condemns, nor does it create the sin which it reveals. The light of the sun reveals the dirt which it neither creates nor removes. The law, coming from God, is like its author, holy, just, and good, and is, for that reason, worthy of our highest consideration and most careful regard; its authority is as supreme and absolute, resting upon the most substantial foundation, and ought never to be denied; its administration of justice is as full of wisdom, mercy and love, that we ought to be drawn into an affectionate and loyal obedience to all its commandments.
This is to follow a careful study and thorough understanding of our relations to him.

THOUGHTS AND APPLICATIONS.

I. God's law touches and makes sacred all human relations.
II. Some of the most dangerous sins may be hidden away in the heart of the sinner, and be entirely unsuspected by others.
III. God ought always to be approached with profound reverence.

TOPIC FOR THOUGHT AND STUDY.

I. The letter and the spirit of the law.
II. The relation of the law to the Gospel.
III. How love fulfills the law.

BIBLICAL.

A SERMON BY REV. T. DEWITT TALMAGE.

(PRELIMINARY IN THE BROOKLYN TABERNACLE.)

Fire shall consume the tabernacles of bribery.—Job xv, 34.

The grandest earthly science is the science of politics. National order, national prosperity, national defence, national morality—all sweep by that circle. In that field Clarkson, and Colden, and Brougham, and Daniel O'Connell, and Sir Rowland Hill won their laurels on the other side of the sea, and on this side we have had our Washington, and our Adams, and Benjamin Franklin, and our John Jay, and our Theodore Frelinghuysen, Senator from New York; John McLean, Supreme Judge from Ohio; the "Great Exponent" of Massachusetts; while the scroll of honorable statesmen, living and long dead, the attempt to speak their names would be a bewildering. From our own city we have sent into the State and national councils some of our very best citizens. But politics, from being the science of good government, has often been dragged into the mire of trickery and turpitude. A monster army plausible, potent, pestiferous, has gone forth to do its dreadful work in all ages. Its two hands are rotten with leprosy. It keeps its right hand hidden in a deep pocket. The left hand is clenched, and with its index finger it taps at the door of the court-room, the legislative hall, the Congress, and the Parliament. The door swings open and the monster enters, and glides through the aisle of the council chamber as softly as a slipped page, and then it takes its right hand from the deep pocket and offers it in salutation to judge or legislator, and the hand is taken, and the palm of the intruder crosses the palm of the official, the leprosy crosses from palm to palm in a round blot, round as a gold eagle, and the virus spreads, and the doom is fixed, and the victim perishes. Let bribery accuse of God and man stand up and defend the Bible against it again and again. Samuel says of his two sons who became judges, "They took bribes and perverted judgment." David says of some of his pursuers, "Their right hand is full of bribes." Amos says of some men in his day, "They take a bribe and turn aside the poor in the gate from their sight; while Eliphaz in my text foretells the crushing bolts of God's indignation, declaring, 'Fire shall consume the tabernacles of bribery.' It is no light temptation. The night has fallen under the star of Mammon, Lord Chancellor of England, founder of our modern philosophy, author of "Novum Organum" and a whole library of books, the leading thinker of his century, so precocious that when a little child, he was asked by Queen Elizabeth, "How old are you?" he replied, "I am twenty years older than your Majesty's reign," of whose cradle Ben Jonson wrote, "The fear of every man that heard him was lest he should make an end," having an income which you would suppose would have put him beyond the temptation of bribe, and yet he was found guilty of bribery under the name of a gift, and he was banished from the country, and he died in poverty, and Wickham Court a gift, and he was banished from the country, and he died in poverty, and Hertfordshire and Gorbungham—yet under this temptation to bribery falling flat into ruin, and on the confession of taking bribes giving the excuse that all his predecessors took them. He was fined two hundred thousand dollars, and imprisoned for a year, and he died in poverty, and his name is a curse to the nation, and his name is a curse to the nation, and his name is a curse to the nation, and his name is a curse
