At half-past three o'clock His Worship Mayor Jones called the meeting to order. He said it seemed fitting that the citizens should take some action in reference to the death of President Garfield, and the meeting was called for the purpose of giving an opportunity to pass resolutions of connce with the American people and the family of the President. The movement was quite spontaneous, and the Sheriff had kindly tendered the Circuit Court room as a place of meeting. He then called upon Chas. H. Fairweather, Esq., to address the meeting. Mr. Fairweather spoke of the impression that was made by the news of the President's death, and his true Christian character. He then moved the following resolution:

Resolved, That we, citizens of St. John, in the Province of New Brunswick, hereby express our great sorrow at the sad intelligence recorded this day of the death of His Excellency James A. Garfield. President of the United States of America, and record our profound sympathy with the Govern-ment and people of the United States in the inex-pressible affliction which has befallen them, and while we would not intrude upon sorrows which are sacred and into scenes of mourning where the voice of the stranger seems out of place, yet we would most respectfully place upon record our sincere and deep sympathy with the bereaved members of the household of the late head of the nation. > THE FAMILY AT HIS BEDSIDE. Long Branch, Sept. 20, 1 A. M. - Previous to his death the only words spoken by the President were that he had a severe pain about his heart. It is supposed by his surgeons that death was occasioned by a clot of blood forming on the heart, Dr. Bliss was the first one notified of the President's expression of pain and upon entering the room at once saw the end was near. The members of the family were immediately summoned to the bedside. All arrived and perfect quiet prevailed. Mrs. Garfield bore the trying ordeal with great fortitude and exhibited unprecedented courage. She gave way to no proxysms of grief and after his death became evident she quietly withdrew to her own room. There she sat a heart-stricken widow full of grief but with too much Christian courage to exhibit it to those about her. She, of course, was labouring under the terrible strain and despite her efforts tears flowed from her eyes and her lips became drawn by her noble attempt to bear the burden with which she had been afflicted. Miss Mollie was naturally greatly affected and bursts of tears flowed from the child's eyes notwithstanding her to the solemnity of the scene. noble efforts to follow the example of her mother. The death scene was one never to be forgotten. Perfect quiet prevailed and not a murmur was heard while the President was sinking. After death had been pronounced the body was properly arranged by Dr. Boynton. Telegrams were immediately sent to the President's mother in Ohio, to his sons, Harry and James, now at Williams College, as also to Vice-President Arthur and other prominent public men.
