Poetry.

A SERMON IN RHYME. If you have a friend worth loving, Love him. Yes, and let him know That you love him, e'er life's evening Tinge his brow with sunset glow. Why should good words ne'er be said Of a friend-till he is dead?

If you hear a song that thrills you Sung by any child of song, Praise it. Do not let the singer Wait deserved praises long. Why should one who thrills your heart, Lack the joy you may impart?

If you hear a prayer that moves you By its humble, pleading tone, Join it. Do not let the seeker Bow before his God alone, Why should not your brother share The strength of "two or three" in prayer?

If you see the hot tears falling From a brother's eyes, Share them. And, by sharing, Own your kinship with the skies. Why should any one be glad When a brother's heart is sad

If a silvery laugh is rippling Through the sunshine on his face, Share it. 'Tis the wise man's saying-For both grief and joy a place. There's health and goodness in the mirth In which an honest laugh has birth.

If your work is made more easy By a friendly helping-hand, Say so. Speak out brave and truly, Ere the darkness veil the land. Should a brother workman dear Falter for a word of cheer?

Scatter thus your seeds of kindness. All enriching as you go; Leave them. Trust the harvest Giver. He will make each seed to grow; So, until its happy end, Your life shall never lack a friend.

WHO RANG THE BELL

BY MISS M. E. WINSLOW,

I'm strong in the hands.' always flashed across the plain, almost repulsive face. He had a little Spitz dog for company, and apparently having finished his story. was often surrounded by a flock of tame pigeons, who hopped about on the pavement and ate easily out of his hand, so nearly was he on their level; and chest of a man, and the legs and feet of an infant. A wearisome existence, one would think; yet he never looked dull, and when our acquaintance ripened into a speaking one, he never spoke self upon the poor any more than on the rich, and an' I thought such a crooked little feller couldn't be I waited to be met half way. I think it was the of use that way; but maybe it's just the same it dog that first drew us together. I am a greatlover you do it by dying. I thought, too"-and the of animals, and my cat being in need of something voice dropped still lower-" of the picture I saw that the home larder did not supply, gave me an hangin' there as I crawled through the church, and excuse for entering the little shop. I went quietly out of the room then, placing my

"he's such a companion for me. You see all my other boys grew up and had to go away and leave me, but this one will be mine always. I don't know how I should get along without him.

The flush of absolute delight which lit up the poor fellow's face at these words caused me to say, " How pleasant it is to be of use, if only just by living;" and I went on my way pondering over what seemed to me as pretty a piece of real sentiment as I had ever heard, albeit spoken by an old, not over-cleanly Irish mother of her deformed, repulsive looking boy.

It was quite winter when I again saw my country home. City visits, fall shopping, and other claims detained me till just before the Christmas holidays when according to custom, all the bachelors of the family came together to keep the old-time festival. As usual we spent many hours of those delightful preparation days down at the church, twining the shining green garlands and shaping the illuminated texts which were to make beautiful the fooprints of the coming King. Here among much of the neighborhood gossip I learned the particulars of the autumn inundation which had ruined so much property, and had at one time threatened utter destruction to low-lying parts of the town. The village calamity had, of course, been announced to me by letter, but the details were all new, and a large part of the conversation was devoted to recounting them. It seemed that a great stream of water, Why, he would not come to the door for it if he the whole lower portion where stood the thickly clustered dwellings of the poor, flooded the lower and in some cases the second stories, and sweeping away or destroying whatever was in the path of the waters. But the people warned by the mysterious ringing of the church bell near the bridge, had been able to remove all the women and children and the greater part of their valuables in time to a place of safety. Who had rang the bell, and discovered the danger so opportunely, was one of the village mysteries. At last, at night-fall on Christmas eve, the church work was finished, the last garland twined and hung, the last shining twig of holly put in its place. The shadows crept up from the corners, and the smell of pine and balsam spoke like the altar in cense of old of the sweet mystery of the morrow's service. Then leaving the sexton to sweep up the fragrant refuse, I armed myself with a sprig of glossy leaves and scarlet berries, and while my younger fellow-workers climbed noisily up the hill, I turned to say a few words of Christmas cheer to my little friend. He was not at his usual post outside, nor yet inside of the door, and the store was empty save that in the low chair which I knew so well the white Spitz was curled up in an after-dinner nap. I entered, and as I stood hesitating what to do next, I heard muffled footsteps upon the

"Yes, honey, he's that bad with the rheumatizflamatory they call it—that the doctor's give him up, and he said he wanted so much for to see you and tell ye something.' " But how did it happen?" said I, thinking with mixed sensations of the mother's loneliness and his blessed release from that monotonous life. "Did he get wet in the inundation?" 'Yes, shure, if that's what ye call the big freshet.

He never was well a bit since he rung the bell." "Did he ring the church bell? They told me no one knew who it was. How could he do it?" "'Deed, an' he did thin, an' whin I found him where he'd been up to his neck in wather, he was that cold as if he'd been dipped in ice. Ye see I was runnin' about distracted loike lookin' for him, while all the people was busy gettin' out their things an' carryin' out the childer, an, o' course I niver thought of lookin' in the church. Thin whin Just as God leads me, I abribe, the wather came, I had to run with the rest, an' when it was all over, an' we ventured to come back, His strength is ever by my side— I heard his voice a callin', an' me an' the sexton opened the church door an' went into the bell tower, an' there he sat upon the winder ledge soaked through an' through.'

"But how could"-I was beginning, when a moan up-stairs caught the car of the watchful mother. "It's the pain, poor darlint," and she ran quickly up-stairs. She returned again directly, however, saying, "He says he knows the lady's voice and wants her to come up and see him. Will you come?' Of course I followed, and there upon his poor bed of suffering lay my little deformed friend. His deformity was less conspicuous now that the sheet and coverlid lay above it. The hands were visible and fearfully contorted with pain, but the face had a refined, spiritualized look which I had never seen upon it before. As of old, a crimson flood of delight spread over it at my greeting, then died away and left the blue-veined fore-head deathly white and chill.

"You said it was noice to be of use, an' I tried to be," said the pale lips; "but couldn't just reckon up how, as I sat alone in my chair, till the freshet came, an' thin I rang the bell. I wanted to thank you for tellin' me. It is noice like." "But what made you think of it? How did you

"I've sat by the bridge there many a long year an' listened to the roaring of the waters. I know whin a freshet's comin', and I knowed this 'ud be the biggest ever we'd seed. I looked at all the little children playin' round, children with long He had sat there almost as long as I could re- legs an' straight backs, and I thought how their "Aud then ?" said I, as the poor fellow stopped,

So when Monday morning came, he seemed to have no difficulty in determining which one he would keep. He chose Harry, and entrusted the shop to his care for a few months while he was away on business, and was so well pleased with his management that when work commenced in the fall, he gave him the position of superintendent.

Five years afterward, Harry was Mr. Wilson's partner; and George worked in the same shop quired for six men, working six hours per day, to again, but as a common laborer.

HAY FOR Hogs. - Few men are aware of the fact that hay is very beneficial to hogs, but it is true nevertheless. Hogs need rough food as well as horses, cattle, or human race. To prepare it you should have a cutting-box or hay-cutter; and the greener the hay the better. Cut the hay as short as oats, or shorter, and mix with bran, shorts, or middlings, and feed as other food Hogs soon learn to like it, and if soaked in swill as other slopfood, is highly relished by them. In winter use "Whist," a voice said preceding them, "he's and you will find that, while it saves bran, shorts,

-Lampertus, 1625. CHINESE DWARF TREES

We have all known from childhood how the Chinese cramp their women's feet, and so manage to make them keepers at home; but how they contrive to grow miniature pines and oaks in flowerpots for half a century has always been much of a secret. They aim first and last at the seat of vigorous growth, endeavoring to weaken it as much as may be consistent with the preservation of life. Take a young plant-say a seedling or cutting of a cedar-when only two or three inches high, cut off its tap-root as soon as it has other rootlets enough to live upon, and replant it in a shallow earthen pot or pan. The end of the tap-root is generally made to rest on a stone within it. Alluvial clay is then put into the pot, much of it in bits the size of beans, and just enough in kind and quantity to furnish a scanty nourishment to the plant. Water enough is given to keep it in growth, but not enough to excite a vigorous habit. So likewise is the application of light and heat. As the Chinese pride themselves on the shape of their miniature trees, they use strings, wires, and pegs, and various other mechanical contrivances to promote symmetry of habit or to fashion their pets into odd fancy figures. Thus, by the use of very shallow pots, the growth strong growth is prevented. Then, too, the top and side roots being within easy reach of the gardener, are shortened by his pruning-knife or seared by his hot iron. So the little tree, finding itself headed on every side, gives up the idea of strong growth asking only for life, and just life enough to look well. Accordingly each new set of leaves become more and more stunted, the buds and rootlets are diminished in proportion, and at length a balance is established between every part of the tree, making it a dwarf in all respects. In some kinds of trees this end is reached in three or four years; in others ten or fifteen years are necessary. Such is fancy horticulture among the Celestials .-Boston Watchman.

THE other morning a gentleman and his wife were in such haste to reach the railway train that they were obliged to omit family worship. The next time they sat down to read the mother remarked that the first chapter of Ephesians was the

THE POWER OF SONG .- A touching story is told but as the working season was almost over, and of a little girl sent by her parents from Spain, durmonths, their employer informed them as they refuge with some friends in England. The vessel settled up on Saturday evening that he could only was lost on a rock-bound coast during a severe very sorry; but it was the best he could do. He forts of some heroic men. PARKS' COTTON YARNS! AWARDED THE ONLY MEDAL GIVEN AT THE CENTEN NIAL EXHIBITION For Cotton Yarns of Canadian Manufacture.

Nov. 5's to 10's. WHITE, BLUE, RED, ORANGE AND GREEN. Made of good American Cotton with great care, Correctly numbered and Warranted Full Length and Weight.

WE would ask the purchasers of Cotton Warp to remember that our Yarn is spun on Throstle Frames, which make a stronger yarn than the Ring Frames, used in making American yarn.
It is also better twisted and more carefully reeled; each hank being tied up in 7 leas of 120 yards each. This makes it much more easy to wind than when it is put up without leas—as the American is—and also saves a great deal of waste. Those acquainted with weaving will understand the great advantage it is to them to use yarn put up in this

COTTON CARPET WARP, Made of No. 10 Yarn, 4-Ply Twisted. WHITE, RED, BROWN, SLATE, &c. All fast colors.

Each 5 lb. bundle contains 10,000 yards in length and will make a length of Carpet in proportion to the number of ends in width. We have put more twist into this warp than it formerly had, and it will now make a more durable Carpet than can be made with any other material Since its introduction by us, a few years ago, it has come into very general use throughout the country.

All our goods have our name and address upon them. None other are genuine. WM. PARKS & SON. New Brunswick Cotton Mills, St. John, N. J

Counting House File THIS file has been only a short time in the market, but has made its way SIMPLY ON ITS MERITS, with surprising rapidity, and is acknowledged to be the most convenient, useful and satisfactory file made. THE WORKING EXPENSES OF THIS SYSTEM OF FILING ARE ONLY HALF OF THAT OF ANY OTHER, as no filing case or box is required in which to put the index after it is filed and removed from the filing case. THE INDEX ITSELF IS A PERFECT FILE, HOLDING THE LETTERS SECURELY. The case for holding the indexes will last for years, and once obtained the only expense is for indexes,
