Comfort one another; For he way is growing dreary, The feet are often weary, And the heart is very sad. There is heavy burden bearing, When it seems that none are caring, And we half forget that ever we were glad.

Comfort one another: With the hand-clasp close and tender. With the sweetness love can render. And the look of friendly eyes.

Do not wait with grace unspoken, While life's daily bread is broken, Gentle speech is oft like manna from the skies.

Comfort one another: There are words of music ringing Down the ages, sweet as singing Of the happy choirs above. Ransomed saint and mighty angel,

Lift the grand deep-voiced evangel, Where forever they are praising the Eternal Love. Comfort one another :

By the hope of him who sought us In our peril-Him who bought us, Paying with His precious blood; By the faith that will not alter, Trusting strength that shall not falter, Leaning on the One Divinely Good. Comfort one another ;

Let the grave gloom lie behind you.

HOW VOSS BRAVERY WAS TESTED. A group of young men were standing one morning last April on the banks of the river Aar, which flows by the quaint old Swiss town of Berns There was J hann Leid, the baker's son, and Fritz Bund, the wood carver, and half a dozen other with their sisters and sweethearts. Bund, as usual, was loud-monthed and voluble.

He talked with one eye on the girls to see the

"Come, girls!" cried Bund. The girls drew nearer, shy but curious. "Here's a question of courage to be settled. Leid wants me to try a throw with Voss, but it wouldn't be fair, for I could fling him with one finger, and blow him over for that matter.' Voss changed color; he played nervously with the dog's collar. He knew that it was true that he could not compete with Bund in a trial of strength, but it was hard to be told it; before little Jeanette,

" But there's something Voss can do as well as I. " What is it ?" said Nicholas eagerly.

"You can swim. Come, jump into the river yonder with me, and see which of us can reach the The girls looked at the river. It was swollen the Englishman was slowly gathering up his forelegs and drawing himself toward it. There was scarcely any sound in the crowd. Men grew pale and turned away sick. A woman who had never seen the child before, fell in a dead faint on the ground. But its mother stood quite still leaning over the pit, her hands held out to it. There came a wild cry from the crowd. A man had jumped into the pit. The bear turned, glared at the intruder with sudden fury, and then rushed upon him. He dealt it a blow straight between the

The man, bleeding and pale, was pushed to the wall the child lifted high in his arms. The savage brutes surrounded him. There was a trunk of a tree in the center of the pit, placed there for the bears to climb upon. He measured it with his eye, gathered his strength, and then with a mighty bound, he reached it and began to climb. The bears followed to the foot of the trunk. "A rope! a rope!"

The rope was brought, and flung towards him. "He has it! He will tie it about his waist. No, it is the child be ties. He will save it first." He fastened the child, and watched it some across in safety. When they threw him the ropagain he did not catch it. He was looking at the mother when they put her baby in her arms. When he had taken the rope and tied it about him, a hundred strong hands English, French, Swiss, were ready to help pull him in. As he swung across the chasm, going half way to the bottom of the pit. the bear caught at him, but its hold slipped at the animal fell back with a baffled growl. But Nicholas had disappeared in the confusion Nothing else was talked of the next day in Berne. In the shops and kitchens; at the balls, in the orilliantly-lighted great houses; even in the Government Council, the story was told, and the lad was spoken of with praise and kindness. At the theatre, somebody called for a cheer for him, and the whole house rose with the vivats! A few acres of stony land, a dozen sheep and one cow, supported them. The sheep clothed them, and the cow gave milk, and did the work of a horse in ploughing and harrowing. Cornbread, milk, and bean-porridge was their fare.

Nicholas looked at the lads waiting and at the from the sheep, and in one week the suit was on it. And if this be true of the "good morning," it

THE WRONG CANDLE.

Among many amusing anecdotes of the Russian mperial family, related in the late Karl Bender's remoirs, is the following highly characteristic story of the eccentric Grand Duke Constantine, Czar dexander's eldest uncle. While residing at War-.w. Constantine gave a splendid banquet to a numof the great Polish nobles, to each of whom, at conclusion of the feast, an ordinary tallow canle was served on a plate by the attendant lackeys. as soon as all his guests were supplied with these peculiarly unappetizing objects, the grand duke, who had given orders that an imitation candle, admirably executed in marchpane, should be placed on his plate, rose from his seat and exclaimed. 'Gentlemen, let us eat, to the honor of Russia, the favorite national comestible of my country. Look at me. This is the way to do it." So saying, he threw back his head, opened his mouth wide, and inserted therein two inches or so of the dainty in question. As he closed his teeth, however, the expression of his countenance suffered an extraordinary change. One of the noblemen sitting in his immediate vicinity had contrived to substitute his own genuine tallow candle for the marchpane imitation set before the grand duke, who, not choosing to betray himself to his guests, found himself condemned to chew at least one copious mouthful of good Russian tallow, as an example to all the victims of his detestable jest, none of whom, of course dared to abstain from doing as the terrible Constan tine did. It is needless to say that the dexterous appropriator of the marchpane candle, while devour ing that toothsome article with a joyful heart, baf fled suspicion by the most hideous visual contor tions, expressive of loathing and nausea. - London

THE ACTIVE BOY .-- Your little son is perhaps troublesome. He is never quiet, and he constantly demands attention. How shall you abate this nuis ance? You may try to destroy these bad habits by scolding him, by rebukes, by lectures, by punishments. That is one way, but not the best. These bad habits often spring from an instinct of activity an intense desire to do something-which the Creator has given the child as a means of mental and moral growth. In pulling up the tare, you are in great danger of rooting out the wheat also. I you succeed by force in changing his disagreeable torment of perpetual activity into a dull quiet, you have changed a bright boy into a dull one. COMPOUND SYRUP OF

FOR THE RELIEF AND CURE

WASTING DISEASES. Consumption, Bronchitis, Asthma, General Debility, Brain Exhaustion, Chronic Constipation, Chronic Diarrhœa, Dyspepsia, or Loss of Nervous Power. It is unequalled in the treatment of Palpitation of the Heart, Trembling of the Hands and Limbs, Loss of Appetite, Energy or Memory.

It acts with vigor, gentleness and subtlety, owing to the exquisite harmony of its ingredients, akin to pure blood itself. Its taste is pleasant, and its effects permanent. Its first apparent effect is to increase the appetite. It assists digestion, and causes the food to assimilate properly—thus the system is nourished. It also, by its tonic action on the digestive organs, induces more copious and regular evacuations. The rapidity with which patients take on fiesh while under the influence of the Syrup, of itself indicates that no other preparation can be better adapted to help and nourish the constitution, and hence be more efficacious in all depression of spirits, shaking or trembling of the hands or body, cough, shortness of breath, or consumptive habit. The nerves and muscles become strengthened, and the blood purified.

READ WHAT THE INVENTOR, MR. FELLOWS, HAS TO SAY ABOUT HIS SYRUP OF THE HYPOPHOSPHITES.

In the summer of 1864, I was suddenly effected by a copious expectoration of muco-purulent matter. I had been declining in health for some months, and, being exceeding y nervous, the symptoms aused alarm. As my business was that of a dispensing chemist, the shop was constantly visited by medical men, all of whom tendered their advice. During 1864 and 1865 my chest was examined by ten first class physicians, some of whom pronounced the case Bronchitis; some, not wishing to cause alarm, or unwilling to venture an opinion, gave no decision; some stated unequivocally that I had Tubercular Disease of the Lungs, and located the trouble where the pains were felt. By professional advice, I used, in turn, horse-back exercise, country life, eggs and ale in the morning, tonics, Bourbon whiskey, cod-liver oil, electricity, tar, and various inhalents, but the trouble increased. Expectoration became more profuse and offensive. Night-sweats set in. Cold chills, diarrhoa, dyepnosa, cough, blood-streaked expectorations, loss of sleep, loss of appetite, loss of memory, loss of ambition, accompanied by general prostration, showed themselves. Under the microscope the blood was found to contain but a small portion of vitalized corpuscles; the heart's action was feeble; the pulse intermittent; the stomach could not digest properly, so that flatulency and acidity was the result. Finding the symptoms indicated Consumption, I determined to use every effort to stay its progress, and, if possible, to cure it. I selected the most powerful tonics and moderators, and combined them with the vital constituents of the human body. For months I endeavored to amalgamate them before my efforts were crowned with success. I cannot speak too plainly or too strongly of the effects produced, and the benefits I receiv-at first my appetite increased; the expectoration became easy, digestion better; the faces became more copious and less frequent; cold chills ceased; night-sweats lessened; I gained in weight; the backing cough left me; refreshing sleep returned; my spirits became buoyant, the mind active and vigorous. I continued taking the Syrup month after month; but owing to the damp, foggy climate of St. John, my recovery was necessarily slow, although I could observe a gradual return of strength for three years, during which time I continued taking the remedy. My present weight is one hundred and eighty-eight, being thirty-eight above my usual. I have no symptoms left denoting disease. The only notable sign during twelve months was the expectoration. Now that has stopped, and I consider myself well. The reader may ask, How do you know your difficulty to have proceeded from ulcerated or tuberculated lung? I answer, In the most certain of all modes for ascertaining. In March last I coughed from the right lung a piece of PHOSPHATE OF LIME, half the size of a pea, which could have come from no other place, and which the highest authority in Lung Diseases (Laennec) states is the result of tubercle, which has been cured. Added to this, I had the leaden-colored, purulent, blood - streaked expectoration, and the opinion of one of the best diagnosticians in the country. I believe I have experienced all the symptoms incident to the two first stages of Consumption, and have successfully combatted them, so that I do not despair of any case where there is left sufficient lung-tissue to build upon. I can only add that the mere monetary consideration of increased sales would never induce me to publish this report, but a sincere sympathy for the poor Consumptive, with whose misfortune I believe it villany to trifle.
