FACE TO FACE WITH GOD. DEUTERONOMY XXXIV. 10.

The mountain lighted by the fires of God. Seemed more than Horeb ; seemed like part of heaven. For there the angel of the Lord appeared And talked with Moses. All the desert round Became a temple : and in solemn state The man was set apart for higher work Than any of his fellows. Yet he asked, How it could be that he who was not great, Nor bold, nor eloquent, should win the names-Leader, Deliverer, Lawgiver to those For whom God cared-His people, Israel ? And the swift answer came-Be satisfied, I will be with thee certainly. And so, The man, no more afraid, would henceforth live His life, as face to face with God.

He stood Before King Pharaoh. Stern, unyielding eyes Looked in the monarch's face, and the slow words Were full of meaning. As he spoke, the king Counted his troubles. First the poisoned Nile, And last the thick, black darkness of three days, And in the midst such foes that all the land Was ravaged by them. Now who was this man That he should hurt the king? And who his God That He must needs be feared ? There were swift ways

In Egypt to bring down the haughty head. And angry Pharaoh threatened the bold man With death if he should see his face again ; Then answered Moses, " Thou hast spoken well, Lo I will see thy face no more."

And then, He turned and looked into the face of God ; And stronger still, and yet more fearless, went On His behests.

They were away and free A little later. They, the captive host, The slaves of Pharaoh fled from the old life Of want and bondage, toward their promised land But news had come which made their faces white For Pharaoh's host pursued them, and the sea Stretched out before them. Then their leader spoke, " Be not afraid ; stand still, and ye shall see The Lord's salvation." Presently his rod Waved o'er the waters, and the sea became Strong walls to shelter them, until they gained The other shore ; and Moses' hand called back The flood, and Israel's foes were in their graves ! But who shall find them in the desert, bread, And how shall they get water ? Manna came, And water flowed from out its rocky bed, And birds come down to them, and they were fed. For evermore their leader saw God's face, And evermore obeyed Him.

Moses stood Upon Mount Sinai, and the lightnings flashed, The thunders rolled, and with great pomp and power

CONSECRATION.

AN ANGEL'S TOUCH

BY JOHN E. GOUGH

One evening, not long ago, a little girl of nine or ten entered a place in which is a bakery, grocery, and saloon in one, and asked for five cents' worth of tea. "How's your mother ?" asked the boy who came forward to wait on her. "Awful sick, and ain't had nothing to eat all day." The boy was just then called to wait upon some men who entered his saloon, and the girl sat down. In five minutes she was nodding, and in seven she was sound asleep, and leaning against a barrel, while she held the poor old nickel in a tight grip bedeclaring to himself that he knew how to manage her as he came from the bar, and, after asking who she was, said : " Say, you drunkards, see here. Here we've been ponring down whiskey, when this poor child and her mother want bread, Here's a two dollar bill that says I've got some feeling left.' 'And I can add a dollar," observed one. " And I'll give another.'

> They made up a purse of an even five dollars, and the spokesman carefully put the bill between two of the sleeper's fingers, drew the nickle away, and whispered to his comrades " Just look a-herethe gal's dreaming !" So she was. A big tear had rolled out of her closed eyelids, but the face was covered with a smile. The men tiptoed out, and the clerk walked over and touched the sleeping child. She awoke with a laugh, and cried out, "What a beautiful dream ! Ma wasn't sick any nore, and we had lots to eat and wear, and my hand burns yet where the angel touched it !' When she discovered that her nickle had been replaced by a bill, a dollar of which loaded her down with all she could carry, she innocently said Well, now, but ma won't hardly believe me that you sent up to heaven and got an angel to come down and clerk your grocery.

THE BROKEN WINDOW

" I've no kind of a notion why I was discharged." A very pleasant incident occurred in a Public grumbled Charlie to his mother. "He said he had School sometime age. It seems that the boys atno fault to find, only he saw that I would'nt suit tending the school, of the average of about ten-It's my opinion that he doesn't want a boy at all years, had in their play of bat and ball broken one and takes that way to cheat. Mean old fellow ! of the neighbor's windows, but no clue to the of-It was Crawford Mills who was hired next. He fender could be obtained, as he would not confess knew neither of the other boys, and so did errands nor would any of his associates expose him. The in blissful ignorance of the "long box," until the case troubled the teacher, and on the occasion of second morning of his stay, when in a leisure hour one of our citizens visiting the school, she privately he was sent to put it in order. The morning passed, and briefly stated the circumstances, and wished dinner-time came, and still Crawford had not aphim, in some remarks to the school, to advert to peared from the attic. At last, Mr. Peters called the principle involved in the case. The address to the school had reference princi " No, sir ; there is ever so much more to do." "All right. It is dinner-time now ; you may go pally to the conduct of boys in the streets and at their sports-to the principles of rectitude and back to it after dinner." After dinner, back he kindness which should govern them everywhere, went. All the short afternoon he was not heard even when alone, and when they thought no one from ; but, just as Mr. Peters was deciding to call could see and there was no one present to observe. The scholars seemed deeply interested in the re-"I've done my best, sir," he said, " and down marks. A very short time after the visitor left the at the bottom of the box I found this." " This " school, a little boy rose in his seat, and said: was a five-dollar gold piece. " That's a queer place "Miss Low, I batted the ball that broke Mr. for gold," said Mr. Peters. It's good you found Jones' window. I am willing to pay for it." There was a death-like silence in the school as the boy was speaking, and it continued a minute after he had closed. "But it won't be right for him to pay the whole," said another, rising in his seat. "All of us that were playing should pay something, because we

The bearer of the laws ; and he henceforth Must teach the people of the will of God, And his "Ye shall," or "Ye shall not," should be Their law for ever.

So the great man lived. And saw his brothers and his sisters die, And led the host amid the wilderness, And told them how to prosper and to win, And taught them precepts to be handed down Unto all times ; and blest the people there, Rebuked and punished them, and was indeed Greater than any king. God made him great, And crowned his life with honor and with power Until at last He drew him with His eyes Away from the fair prospect of the land, To be for ever face to face with Him, And Moses teaches us that through all times. He is the greatest man who lives with God.
