

Poetry.

AN ANSWERED PRAYER

Give me a message of quiet,"
 I asked in my morning prayer;
 For the turbulent trouble within me
 Is more than my heart can bear.
 Around there is strife and discord,
 And there is storm that does not cease,
 And the whirl of the world is on me—
 Thus only canst give me peace."

I opened the old, old Bible,
 And looked at a page of psalms
 Till the whisper of my trouble
 Was soothed by its summer-calm;
 For the words that have helped so many,
 And that ages have made more dear,
 Seemed now, in their power to comfort,
 As they brought me my word of cheer.

They did not find it easy—
 Those writers of long ago—
 To live in this world of sorrow,
 And its lights and shades to know;
 They often were sad and weary,
 Their hearts were sore afraid,
 But they were in whom they trusted,
 And they were not quite dismayed.

Like music of solemn singing
 Their words came down to me:
 The Lord is able to save,
 And of mercy, great is he;
 Each generation praiseth
 His works of long renown,
 The Lord upholdeth all that fall,
 And raiseth the bowed down.

That gave me the strength I wanted!
 I knew that the Lord was nigh;
 All that was making me sorry
 Would be better by and by;
 I had but to wait in patience,
 And keep at my Father's side,
 And nothing would really hurt me
 Whatever might befall.

I found that when he gives quiet,
 No other can trouble make;
 Pardon and perfect safety
 Lie in the path I take.
 So, stronger to carry the burden,
 I met my day of care,
 For my heart was lightened and joyous
 With the peace of an answered prayer.

THE TURN OF THE YEAR.

BY MRS TERRA COOKE.

The days are brief, and dark, and cold;
The barren fields are brown and sere;
The world is chill, the world is old,
And speeds the flying year.

The birds and flowers are gone away,
Or sleep in mother Earth's warm breast.
But I amid the storms must stay,
And toil and never rest!

Hush, hark, heart unquiet and dismayed!
Soon shall the sun in strength return:
Why then, my dear mourn, of life afraid!
Soon the bleak year will turn.

The darkest day prebodes the light,
Howe'er man depth bewails;
After the longest, loneliest night
The morning never fails.

What if that year be near its end?
If failing heart and flesh be faint?
What if thy lovers, kin, and friend,
Be deaf to thy complaint?

Even as turns the faithful year
In the slow days of storm and gloom,
And Springs begin her journey here
To tempt the earth to bloom,

So shall thy Sun unveil his face
And all these mists in radiance burn.
Wait but his hour; take heart of grace;
Thy year begins to turn!

The Fireside.

TENDERLY GATHERED IN.
BY ERNEST GILMORE.

[illegible]

"One of them pretty dollies in my arms than to tell, I believe," and Tilly's eyes glowed over a sweet-toiled doll, dressed in snowy white, with a sash like a band of gold.

"Dolls won't feed you when you're hungry, Tilly Count. You're poor body, but ye can't get much more," her Jim said decidedly; but Tilly answered, "No, Jim! I'm just griny hand for her breast with a dressing gesture."

"You don't know, Jim. I think a doll would feed me."

Jim looked at Tilly; there was a longing look in her pretty eyes he could not fully understand. He said his hands upon hers tenderly as if to show her that he did care for her, but he said gruffly:

"Gals are funny critters."

"Jim," called the gentleman, as he returned with softened light in his handsome face, "come here moment."

"Yes, sir."

"I've been over in the court to enquire about you. You're a brave boy, Jim, and I'm proud of you. Will you let me call you friend?"

"Sir?" said the boy in amazement. A gentleman asking him if he could be called friend!

"I heard how kind you were to your poor mother and those five little brothers and sisters; how you roared rays, and almost started to keep them alive. God will bless you for it, Jim! It's hard to have a drunken father, my boy," and the gentleman lowered his voice, "but keep working and praying as you have done, and I believe God will bless your life and multiply him."

A little more conversation between the gentleman and little Jim, and then the latter started toward his home in the wretched court, while the former, with a heavy bundle in his arms, entered a cab and was rapidly driven to a beautiful home on the avenue.

Christmas eve has come. Just glance into Jen's dove a moment. It's a wretched-looking place generally, but there has been a grand transformation since going on. Jen's face is fairly radiant as he talks to his mother and brothers and sisters, who are laughing and crying for joy. The floor is covered with packages.

"Mother," he says, "isn't he a friend worth havin'! Just think of his givin' us a home an' rememberin' us. Here's sugar an' tea an' chickens, an' a whole roll of calico, an' flannin' an' does for me, an' dolls, an' a book, an'— O mother! let's kneel down an' thank God for him." Jen finished huskily.

Just a peep into the home on the avenue and we are done. In a beautiful room a lady sits at the piano, playing and singing—

"Open the doors to the children, Tenderly gather them in."

A lovely child seated in a gentleman's lap listens to the sweet words with rapt attention. She glances at the Christmas-tree, the vines and red berries, the beloved gentleman holding her so tenderly, and the golden-haired dollies held close to her happy little heart, and whispered softly :
 "Isn't I tenderly gathered in?"

The gentleman looks into the sweet, upturned blue eyes, presses the little form still closer to his sheltering bosom, and answers humbly, "Yes, my child, you are tenderly gathered in."

Even as he speaks his thoughts take an upward flight, and his unspoken prayer is :
 "Dear Jesus, Thou hast tenderly gathered my one lamb into Thy bosom, and I have the blessed privilege of gathering in one of Thy lambs."—Temperance Advocate.

MISS CHAPIN'S EXPERIMENT

BY MRS. C. EMMA CHENEY.

"'Neenah, are you ready to come out?"
No answer.

"'Neenah, 'Neenah, do you hear!"

A rustling noise as of some one moving about was the only sound.

Sadly Miss Chapin turned from the closed door, and went slowly to the study.

"Once admitted, she said dismally:

"'I have come to see you about 'Neenah. She still refuses to yield, and there is but one penalty left."

"'Well, well," Mr. Allen replied, a little impatiently. "I can't see why that should not be resorted to, if she remain surly and disobedient."

"This is her second day of confinement in her room without communication, and she is as hard as ever," Miss Chapin went on. "If the poor girl were not an Indian, having had no mother's teaching to help her, I should not feel so badly."

"But you would have her obey, surely! I see to what way left now but the 'solitary confinement' with bread and water diet and the hard bed—yes, Miss Chapin, that's above all," Mr. Allen urged.

"A wholesome use of both will be beneficial to Miss 'Neenah Crow Wing. At all events I'll try it."

Seeing that all discussion was useless, the teacher again returned to her willful pupil. This time she entered without the permission which she had asked in vain.

Seating herself beside the girl, she took one of Neenah's tawny hands in her own, and tried to win her to a right mind by gentle argument. Now and then the dull red of the Indian girl's cheek grew a little more bright, but by neither word nor sign did she reply.

After half an hour spent so fruitlessly, Mr. Chapin left her. With a light step she hastened once more to the study.

"Mr. Allen, at the risk of being unwelcome, I have to trouble you again upon the same business."

"Will you let me try an experiment in Neenah's case?"

Mr. Allen hesitated. "You must not let that girl go too free," he said at length.

"But may I not choose her punishment?"

"Well, if you will really inflict a punishment—yes. I think I can trust your discretion. Will you tell me what it is?"

"If you insist, certainly; but I would rather not. Will you not wait to see the result?"

"I would like to know beforehand."

"Very well, then," and the bright flush rose to Miss Chapin's cheek, but she spoke very quietly; "I am going to bear Neenah's penalty for her."

"You will do no such thing, madam," he exclaimed, excitedly. "The person who commits an offence in this school must bear the consequences."

"That was our not Lord's way in dealing with

"she snarled softly. "It surely must be safe to follow his example. I beg you to permit me to stand in this poor girl's place this once," she pleaded. "That nothing else can conquer her, I am sure; his may not, but let me try."

The Principal was all out of patience. "Fiddle-de-dee!" he exclaimed. "Have we returned to the times of knight-errantry!" Then, seeing Miss Chapin's disappointment in her face, he added pleasantly, "But do as you please. Send for me in time to make your will, however, for you're sure to end your days in the 'dark chamber' you wait for Neenah's repentance."

His Chapin went straight to the culprit.

"Neenah," she said, kindly, "Mr. Allen has mistaken you for the dark chamber" until you are willing to do what is right, and you know only too well, poor girl, what that means."

Neenah's face only grew more dogged.

"I grieve to think of you, dear, shut up in that lonely room so dark and bare, with such a hard bed lie upon, and only your own naughty heart for companionship. So I have asked Mr. Allen to forgive you freely, and I am going to bear your punishment for you."

The girl started and looked at Miss Chapin, then her eyes stared at dull indifference again.

"When I shall say forgiveness, Neenah, come up and I will give it to you. I shall not see you again until you come to seek me."

So saying the teacher closed the doors above her, and immediately gave herself up, a prisoner in the dark chamber."

He could not see the sky distinctly as it turned her friend, but she also felt a keen sense of freedom.

Her old way she tried to enjoy her liberty.
It was Saturday, and in the general bustle of a day Miss Chapin was scarcely missed.
Her affair was known only to a few; and no exceptions were necessary.

On Sunday evening found her still a prisoner. That night the chapel was crowded, for a stranger addressed the students, and the singing was especially effective.

During the services Mr. Allen received the urgent call that Miss Chapin desired to see him immediately.

He had been conscious for an hour that something was stealthily moving outside her door, and at a paper had been thrust under it. She had been for Mr. Allen to ask that this paper might be given to him, as possible as she had no light.

She came from Nemoah, in rude, unformed letters a poor child told who she had lain awake all the night thinking of her teacher, and what she suffering for her sake. She could bear it no longer, and she humbly begged to be forgiven, promising to be a good girl always.

Even Mr. Allen's heart was touched, and Miss Chapin wept for joy. They went together to Nemoah's little room and found her crying bitterly.

She was ashamed of her tears. She repeated over and over, "I am not good gladly."
Honest and unreservedly faithful, kindly and in this, as well as in her tenderness for her teacher, this Indian girl put many a power of the blessed Jesus to shame; for we often forget who bore our punishment because he first did us.—Sunday-School Times.

PLAYING SANTA-CLAUS.

When Christmas is over, I'm going to tell Santa, I played it so well, and a nice apple, so large and so red, wrote grandma's name and tied it on with thread; and in her work-basket I put it with care, and hoped she would think Santa-Claus had been there.

"I watched till she found it; she said, 'Who'd have thought! It must be an apple that Santa-Claus brought.' I hid it in a corner and laughed, full of glee, and think grandma's Santa was only just me.

"Because for his glasses I made my papa, and an apron so dainty for precious mamma; and my grandma, she helped me to keep out of sight my uncle's stitches, and do it all right.)

"Santa-Claus even thinks of such odd folks as we!"

"I claimed my papa as he called me to see, and mamma sweetly said, 'Nothing nicer than this child Santa Claus has brought me,' and gave me a kiss.

"I like to play Santa, and now I've begun to mean every Christmas to keep up the fun.

MY MOTHER'S BEEN PRAYING

February, 1861, a terrible gale raged along the coast of England. In one day (Hartlepool) it wrecked eighty-one vessels. While the storm was at its height the Rising Sun, a stout brig, struck on the ground rock, a reef extending a mile from one end of the bay. She sank, leaving only her two masts above the foaming waves.

The life-boats were away, rescuing wrecked crews. The only means of saving the men clinging to the swaying masts was the rocket apparatus, therefore it could be adjusted one mast fell. Just as the rocket bearing the life-line went booming out the mortar the other mast toppled over.

Sadly the rocket men began to draw in their lines, when suddenly they felt that something was attached to it, and in a few minutes hauled on to the beach the apparently lifeless body of a sailor.

He lay, trailed and tender hands worked, and in a short time he became conscious.

With amazement he gazed around on the crowd of kind and sympathizing friends. He looked up to the weather-beaten face of the old fisherman near him, and asked,

"Where am I?"

"Thou art safe, my lad."

"Where's the cap'n?"

"Drowned, my lad."

"The mate, then?"

"He's drowned too."

"The crew?"

"They are all lost, my lad; thou art the only one saved."

The boy stood overwhelmed for a few moments; then he raised both his hands, and cried in a loud voice,

"My mother's been praying for me! my mother's been praying for me!" and then he dropped on his knees on the wet sand, and hid his sobbing face in his hands.

Undoubtedly that day this tribute to a mother's love, and to God's faithfulness in listening to our father's prayers.

WINTER EVENING AMUSEMENTS.

To apparently burn water, fill a glass lamp with water, and put into it for a wick a piece of camphor. The lamp should not be quite full, for the camphor may be left to float upon the surface. On touching a lighted match with the camphor, it should burn in a clear steady flame, and as it sinks below the surface of the water, so the flame is surrounded by the liquid, and it continues to burn for a long time. If the camphor be ignited in a large dish of water, it will commonly float on it while it burns.

Get a piece of thick wrapping paper, then dry the stove; while warm lay it down upon a varied table or dry wooden cloth, and rub it briskly with a piece of India-rubber. It will become highly electrified, and if tossed against the wall, the electric sparks will stick some time. Tear a piece of paper into one-eight inch squares, and lay a piece of paper, electrified, will draw them to it. Or lay a smooth tea-tray, and put it on three dry rollers. Lay the electric paper on it; and, on placing the tray you will get a little spark; lift the paper out of the tray, and on touching the tray you will get another spark, but of the opposite electricity; replace the paper and you get another, and so on.—Illustrated Weekly.

A MOTHER'S LESSON ON HOME

A MOTHER'S LESSON ON HOME
ETIQUETTE.

A mother who tenderly cares for her children,
has justly wrote down for their "punctual observ-
" the following rules under the head of

CHILDREN'S ETIQUETTE.
Always say "Yes, sir" if No, sir "M.

"Yes, sir," "No, sir," "Yes, papa,"
 "No, papa," "Thank you," "Good night,"
 "Good-morning." Use no slang words.
 Clean faces, clean clothes, clean shoes, and clean nails indicate good breeding.
 Never leave your clothes about the room. Have a place for everything, and everything in its place.
 Go up before entering a room, and never leave it without your back to the company.
 Always offer your seat to a lady or old gentleman.
 Never put your feet on cushions, chairs, or sofas.
 Never overlook any one when reading or writing, or read or talk aloud while others are reading.

OME-MADE PUDDING.—An excellent pudding is made by soaking one pint of fine nice bread crumbs in a quart of sweet milk; beat the yolks of six eggs and the whites of two till they are very light; mix with them one tablespoon of sugar, one spoonful of melted butter; stir these in with the bread crumbs, add the grated rind and the juice of one lemon. Bake in a deep pudding dish. When done, spread a layer of tart jelly over the top, and serve with a meringue made of the whites of three eggs, and sugar. This should be reserved for this purpose. Set in the oven to brown the top; this takes a very short time if the oven is hot, not more than four or five minutes being required for it.

STRICTLY PURE.
HARMLESS TO THE MOST DELICATE.

In Consumptive Cases

It approaches so near a specific that "Ninety-five" per cent. are permanently cured where the directions are strictly complied with.

There is no chemical or other ingredients to harm the young or old.

As an Expectorant it has no equal.
It contains no Opium in any form.

PARKS' COTTON YARNS

AWARDED THE ONLY MEDAL GIVEN AT THE CENTRAL EXHIBITION

For Cotton Yarn of American Manufacture

No. 7's to 10's.

WHITE, BLUE, RED, ORANGE AND GREEN.

Made of good American Cotton with great care, Count numbered and WARRANTED Full Length and Well Made.

WE would ask the purchasers of Cotton Yarn, member that our Yarn is spun on Throats Fly which make stronger yarn than the King Frame, making American yarn.

It is also better twisted and more carefully reeled than any other cotton yarn, and being tied up in 7 lbs. of 120 yards each makes it much more easy to wind than what is without less—as the American is—and also saves deal of waste.

Those acquainted with weaving will understand great advantage it is to them to use yarn put up number.

COTTON CARPET WARF,

Made of No. 10 Yarn, 4-Ply Twisted

WHITE, RED, BROWN, SLATE, &c.

All fast colors.

Each 5 lb. bundle contains 10,000 yards in length will make a length of Carpet in proportion to the size of beds in width.

We have put more twist into this warp than most others, and it will stand a longer time before the carpet can be made with any other material. Since its introduction by us a few years ago, it has come into vogue throughout the country.

All our goods have our name and address upon them and are genuine.
