Consumption is said to be the cause of one death in four among the Indian tribes. The Irish contribute more cases of consumption to the death lists than do any other race of white or colored people.

A Baptist Clergyman in Dakota has held a great owing and sowing bee, and seeded to wheat a ter. rge tract of land given by a wealthy member. If all goes well, the church will have several thousand shels of wheat next season.

The consumption of tea has been gradually increasing of late years in Great Britain, until now the English drink five times as much tea as coffee. n this country coffee is the favorite beverage, and we consume eight times as much coffee as tea.

The weight of Alpine avalanches is enormous. The volume of one that slid down the slope of the composing it was 45,000 tons.

In 1860 only 5,253 newspapers were published in the United States, or one for every 6,000 inhabitents. Now 13,494 are published, or one for every 3,716 inhabitants. This is certainly a remarkable growth in twenty-five years.

A Philadelphia Press writer finds the King of Denmark to be a tall, mild-mannered man, with compact, gray side whiskers, not particularly imposing in appearance, with little appreciation of poetry, science or art, but sociable, and, for a monarch, he imagines, very condescending. He speaks English indifferently.

Eyesight among civilized people is by no means so strong as among savages. An American in Zululand, by the assistance of a powerful glass, made out two distinct objects on the horizon, which he guessed to be a mounted man with a walking companion. The Zulus with him were able at once to inform him who the man was, and that he was accompanied by his wife on foot.
