AT MY POST.

"The battle is not yours, but God's." This battle is too hard for me to fight ; My flesh and spirit fail me with affright. If they hadst bid me in the conflict go Where war is fiercest 'gsinst the deadly foe, I had been ready; but to hear Thee say, "Keep out of action," fills me with dismay.

I mark the tide of battle from this spet Where Thou hast bid me stay. It rages In many a point I see our colors lie Dragged down and trampled by the enemy.

Some, wounded in the fight, still holding Beneath the hot rays of the scorching sun I see the hosts of hell are mustering fast; With devilish skill their fiery darts they

Gainst fearful odds he wrestles, spent and While yet the thought that meath his Captain's eye He fights has nerved him to fresh energy I hear the thrilling trumpet call to arms Where in some hard-pressed point are tresh

And many a soldier leads a hope forlern.

The war-cry sounds, it falls upon mine ear It calls not me-I must stay idle here: Though every fibre of my heart may thrill, I must not fight. It is my Captain's will.

And yet I think that Thou hast bid me do The hardest work of all for soldier true-Just to do nothing, while his comrades go With eager haste to face and fight the foe. to talk just now." Just to keep out of action and obey— This is the battle I must fight to-day;

And my heart fails me. But I hear the "Look up! Fear not! This battle is the Lord's.; Put thou the corflict in thy Captain's hand, Ask Him to speak the word of strong command, Then, passive at His feet, wait victory; It must be thine since He will fight for

So I will stay at my appointed post; By glad obedience I shall please Thee most Some cups of water Thou wilt let me take My wearied comrades' parched lips to And in Thy time—that time is ever right—Thou'lt bid me join them in the open fight. -Sunday at Home.

Our Serial.

MURIEL'S KEY-NOTE

EY AGNES GIBERNE.

CHAPTER XIX.

FADING.

The month at the seaside was lengthened to six weeks. Until Sybel and Chesney had left Bushby Rectory for London, old Mr. Rivers would not hear of returning.

The weeks passed as weeks beside hope. the sea usually do pass. There was bathing, and sitting on the shingles, and driving out, and pacing of the parade, and ransacking of the library, and meeting of friends unexpectedly. At first Muriel rambled about alone a good deal, reading and thinking. The thinking was to some purpose. Certain heart-searchings were followed by selfcondemnation. Self-complacency fled before stronger self-knowledge.

Thought for others followed. made the effort once again to break through the ice-crust which covered over the opening to her sister's heart. A hard surface it had seemed, and little hope felt Muriel of success a second time. But the ice yielded as to a mere finger-touch. It came over Muriel strangely one day, that while she had complained of loneliness, one by her very side had been vainly thirsting for her sympathy, and suffering from a loneliness no less real than her own. For Mrs. Bertram could not satisfy Lilias' needs.

Sea-air did not seem to do Lilias good. She was listless and weak, and the cough had returned. A doctor was called in, and his looks were grave. What he said to Mrs. Bertram Muriel did not know. She only saw by her mother's haggard looks, whenever Lilias was not present, that great pain lay below.

Intense pity grew up in Muriel's heart towards her mother. She had not known the feeling before. Suppose Lilias were to die! Muriel hardly thought of herself in the matter. She could not picture her mother existing without Lilias. Mrs. Bertram, deprived of her youngest child, would be objectless, broken-hearted.

"Better far that I should die," thought Muriel sadly, and yet she did not know that it was so in reality. "That would be a small matter to mamma-but what would she do, if she had not Lilias ?"

The fading went on-intermittent, uncertain, but with a steady downward tendency. Waves might now and then break higher, nevertheless the tide was going out.

Was Lilias ready ! Muriel put that question to herself often with an aching heart. She could not tell. A happier spirit of interccurse had by this time grown up between the sisters, and coldness seemed to have fled, but Lilias' reserve was unconquerable. Some-

Muriel looked for more she met with disappointment.

Muriel hardly realized how steadily her sister had gone down the hill, till they reached home. Looking back eix weeks, she plainly saw the change, and Mrs. Bertram saw it too. No one talked of Lilias as ill, but she was rarely off the sofa, and a doctor's visit every day had grown to be a thing of course. Their own doctor, coming in next morning for the first time, had a startled look. Muriel whether Lilias observed it. The quiet white face showed no change. But an hour later Muriel found her mother alone in an agony of weeping.

" Mamma-" said Muriel timidly. She could better have comforted any one in the world than her own mother, Mrs. Bertram drew herself suddenly upright on the sofa.

" What is wanted ?" " Mamma, has it anything to do with Lilias ?"

"Nothing that concerns you," said Mrs. Bertram coldly. "I do not wish Mariel's eyes were full. "It does concern me," she said in a trembling voice. "Lily is my sister, and surely I ought to know. Mamma, does Dr. Peters think very badly of Doctors are often mistaken. You are not to say anything depressing to

" Mamma, does she know she is in danger ?"

"I did not say she was." But it would not do. Self-control failed there. Mrs. Bertram's head went down in a pitiful anguish of sobs. Muriel had a very passion of longing to kneel down, and throw her arms round that bowed graceful figure, and beg her mother to be comforted. She dared not do so. Her own tears fell like rain, and she was shaken by weeping scarcely less violent than Mrs. Bertram's-yet not so much for Lilias, as for the lack of her mother's love. The one pain swallowed up the other. In a little while the words came again-"You must not tell Lilias. She is not to know."

"Mamma, she ought to know." "She shall not. That is her only

"Is there any hope?" asked Muriel

Again no answer, except convulsive sobs. Mrs. Bertram presently rose, and went away to her own room, stiffing sounds of grief by the way.

Neither of the two dared show herself to Lilias for some time after. But at luncheon Mrs. Bertram appeared, calm and collected, with no traces of tears, while Muriel's eyes were heavy, and her face flushed with weeping. Lilias' eyes were often upon her.

Luncheon over, Mrs. Bertram called "Muriel this will not do," she said

'You must not give Lilias any reason to suppose we feel anxiety.'

"Mamma, is it right?" asked "Of course it is. I will have nothing else. You understand. Lilias must not think anything of her illness. She was watching your face all luncheon.'

"I know," Muriel said sorrowfully. "You must command yourself better. If you cry it shows in your face so long after," continued Mrs. Bertram, without a trace of the morning's anguish in tone or look. "The only way is for you to keep from cry-

"I could not help it," faltered

"You must learn to do so. Lilias has made me promise to go out for an hour's drive this afternoon, leaving you in charge of her. But unless I can depend upon you, I will not go.'

"I will take care," said Muriel. "If she asks you why you cried, you are not to tell the reason." "It was not only for Lilias," Muriel said half to herself. "It was not?"

" No-not only."

"What was it?" Muriel could not speak at the moment. Afterwards she wished that the heart-ache within her had broken forth in words. "Well, tell her anything you like, except what will make her nervous about herself. Mind, Muriel, I de pend upon you. If you disappoint me, you shall not be left alone with her

EMANCIPATED.

Amos Kelly was a church member and a good man, humble and inoffentimes Muriel ventured a few words on sive. He was always kind and helpful religious subjects. They were heard and courageous to do and dare, and yet quietly, but no response came, and he was called a coward; he even called Lilias' pale, passive face was at all himself so; and still that did not shame times hard to read. No reserve is so him out of it. He was afraid of death tenacious of existence as the reserve of | in any manner and in any guise. There a rather small nature. There was in was hardly a waking moment that the Lilias no breadth of mind or passion consciousness was not present with him of soul to work upon. She had been speaking in almost audible voice, "You passively cold; she grew to be gently must die!" It darkened his whole exaffectionate. That was all; and if istence. He never attended a funeral he had never seen anyone die. had been merciful to him, and his own household was still unbroken. He was nearing middle age, and "through fear of death had all his lifetime been subject to bondage."

One midnight a knock came to his door, and on answering it a pleading voice said, "O, Mr. Kelly, won't you come over to our house? Papa's dreadful sick, and we think he's dying." "Certainly, my boy ! I'll come right over," he answered. But how his very heart sank within him! His neighbor who had only been slightly ill for a day or two-dying, and had sent for him! There was not another neighbor in half a mile, and he could not refuse such a request, for they had been faithful friends for years, and never had either failed to respond to the other's need.

But his limbs almost refused to carry him along the lonely field-path which shortened the distance, and his knees fairly smote together as he stood on the door-stone, and he leaned on the doorway a moment to steady himself and quell, if he might, the loud beating of his heart before he entered.

There was no fearful scene being enacted in that sick-room, but instead the dying man's face wore a welcoming smile, and extending his hand he said, "Amos, dear old friend, you were good to come. I'm going away, and l wanted to see you once more."

The visitor was reassured. This was not death, only a sick man's fancy. He attempted to say as much, but was prevented by the entrance of the doctor, who, strange as it seemed, instantly recognized the presence before whom all human skill is powerless.

"It's no use, doctor," said the sick man. "I'm called, and it's all right. I did want to see the boys grow up, but when I think of seeing their mother I can hardly wait. Dear little Ruth! ah, I shall soon see her now. Amos, dear friend, I wanted to ask you to look after the boys a little, and mother, poor soul; I'm sorry for her.' He dozed fitfully, and the end seemed very near; but he roused again and said, while his face was very luminous, "It isn't hard to die, Amos. Jesus, 'Jesus can make a dying bed as soft as downy pillows are."

The hour before dawn was one never to be forgotten, for heaven really seemed to come down to greet his soul That night marked an era in Amos Kelly's history. At first he was filled with joy as he felt that his fear of death had been swept away; then he was humbled into the dust as he real ized how he had distrusted and dishonored the Master he professed to love and serve, believing that he would extend his loving-kindness and care through life's day, and then in its dark and desolate night would forsake His own.

His heart was well nigh broken as he thought it over and read again and again the promises he had never before believed. But out of the depths of repentance he came up to the heights of absolute trust, and thereafter the sun shone for him out of a cloudless

No more was his daily life filled with dread and gloom. He was emancipated. It was wonderful how speedily he became one of the most devoted watchers with the sick and a minister of consolation to the bereaved. Wherever there was sickness or trouble within his reach, there he was found with help and sympathy, and his presence was a tower of strength.

Not many months after his friend's joyful translation a sweet little girl, the pet of the neighborhood, was taken sick, and her illness was painfully long. Night after night did the tender-hearted man traverse the long, lonely mile to cheer and relieve the troubled parents and soothe the child by carrying her in his strong arms up and down the room, whispering meanwhile of the One who loves little children and singing of the "happy land, far, far away," but which is not so very far away after all.

"I wouldn't go over to-night, Amos," said his wife after a while, "you're so tired, and their friends came to-day."

"Yes, I'm tired. But then, Mary," he continued, using almost the selfsame memorable words of Uncle Tom, "when that child goes into the kingdom they'll open the door so wide that we'll all get a glimpse of the glory. And then I promised the dear little one that I'd come to-night, too."

And that very night the devoted watcher handed the peaceful, contented little child straight from his arms into the sheltering arms of the Lover of children. And then he so pictured her transcendent happinness to the bereft parents that even in that supreme moment they felt that it was " well with the child," and were com-

Surely some who still wear the garb | if we do them, we shall thus make acof humanity are sent forth as ministering angels !- Church Weekly.

The Christian's Motto: - I Will Trust.

"Commit thy way unto the Lord trust also in him and he will bring it to pass." This means what it says; give the Lord the direction of your steps. Paul, when he felt drawn to Rome as a witness for Jesus, did not trouble himself whether he went there as a passenger or a prisoner in chains. This trust must be a continuous process-the daily habit of our lives. When the Lord is driving us we must not be all the time grasping the reins. The tourist who goes up the Matterhorn must not tell the guide the route or what implements it is safe to carry. If he is not willing to trust his guide, he had better stay at the base of the

Remember that for what we trust to God you and I are not responsible. What we leave to him belongs to him. He is our trustee. It is his "lookout" whether we fail or succeed. Paul was not responsible for the number of converts at Athens and Rome, nor whether there should be one solitary convert to the truth. He had but to preach faithfully, and to live righteously, and leave results with his Master. -Ex.

THE following story from the Tri bune presents an example in counter interpretation that ought to be imi-

"This is a good story which the Rev. Dr. Rush, Secretary of the Freedmen's Aid Society of the Methodist Episcopal church, tells to the Annual Conference, before which he presents the claims of his society. A young negro in the South had been converted, and at once wanted to preach. His elders thought he was not fitted for the important work; but he well-nigh staggered them by relating a vision, in which he had plainly seen the letters G. P. C .- which could mean only 'Go preach Christ.' A white-haired negro preacher slowly arose, and told the ambitious young brother that, while he had no doubt seen the letters in vision, he had failed in the interpretation. They probably meant, 'Go pick cotton,' or 'Go plough corn.' This settled the matter.

RANDOM READING.

Devotion sweetens all that courage must endure.

Prayer is the key of the morning, and the bolt of the night.

Delay is injurious to anyone who is fully prepared for action. The humility that can yet talk has need of careful watching. Old habits return unconsciously at great moments in a man's life.

The greatest act of obedience, is to take Christ Jesus.

The fear of man will make us hide sin, but the fear of the Lord will make us hate it. It has been said by men of discernment and experience, "If you want to spoil a man for a great work, begin to praise him early." He is strongest who can withstand temptations; and he is wisest who can adjust himself to circumstances without a jar, a sigh, or a sad face. A great part of life consists in right thinking thinking nobly, upwards, onwards. Many a career has been spoiled by thoughts that trifled and Stories first heard at a mother's knee are never wholly forgotten-a little spring that never dries up in our journey through scorching years. He only is advancing in life whose heart is getting softer, whose blood warmer, whose brain quicker, whose spirit is entering into living peace. -

Our superfluities must be given up for our neighbor's conveniences; our conveniences for our neighbor's necessities; our necessities for our neighbor's extremities.

The difference between a man being in the world and the world being in him is the difference between a ship being in the water and the water being in the ship. -D. L. Moody.

The only freedom I care about is the freedom to do right; the freedom to do wrong I am ready to part with on the cheapest terms to anyone who will take it of me. -- Prof. Huxley.

Take your directions from your Master, and pay no heed to other voices if they would command. Live to please him, and do not care what other people think. You are Christ's servant; "let no man trouble" you. Because our minds are so common place, have so little of the divine imagination in them, therefore we do not recognize the spiritual meaning and worth, we do not perceive the beautiful will of God in the things required of us, though they are full of it. But quaintance with them, and come to see what is in them. - A Sea-Board Parish. | apr28

Seter Henderson Our Seed Warehouses, the largest in New York, are fitted up with every appliance for the prompt and careful alling of orders. of the NEWEST, BEST and RAREST SEEDS and PLANTS, will be mailed on receipt of cts. (in stamps) to cover postage.

TO OUT OF TOWN

CUSTOMERS

Special Advertisement.

THE UNLAUNDRIED WHITE SHIRT at $1.00, manufactured by MAN-CHESTER, ROBERTSON & ALLISON, St. John, has now become a standard production, giving employment to a great many of our own people. It is a better Shirt in every way than any imported garment that can be sold for the price. We claim that this Shirt is a perfect fitting garment, every size being proportionate throughout.

It is made from an extra quality of White Cotton; the Linen in Fronts and Cuffs, is specially selected for its good wearing qualities. Every Shirt is Reenforced or made with a Double Thickness of Cotton in Front, where the strain of the Braces is most felt, and the best workmanship is used on every part—Sizes 131 to 18 inch neck—Buy the same size neck for Shirt as you wear in collar.

SPECIAL. As these Shirts may now be had from dealers (to whom we allow a very small discount) in many of the principal towns of New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island, at the same price as if bought direct from us, viz., $1.00 each, out of town customers can save express charges by buying from their local dealers. Be sure and ask for MANCHESTER, ROBERTSON & ALLISON'S White Unlaundried Shirt, at $1.00.

onvinced it is the best value in the Do-M. R. & A. will send one Shirt as sample, post free, to any part of the Dominion on receipt of $1.00. Give size of Collar

Try one as a sample and you will be

Manchester, Robertson & Allison apr7 27 & 29 KING STREET.

St. John BUSINESS COLLEGE.

Odd Fellows', Hall, Saint John, N. B.

We give as full and thorough a course of study as any Business College in Canada or the United States. Students do just such work as will be required of them when they enter a merchant's or accountant's office, preceded and accompanied by such training as will fit them to do that work intelligently and Circulars, containing terms, course of study, &c., mailed free. Kerr's Book-Keeping mailed to any address on receipt of $1. Students can enter at any time. Evening Classes re-open on MONDAY 10 Per Cent. Discount will be allowed those who enter for full Evening Term months.

NO VACATIONS. S. KERR, Prin.

MANCHESTER. ROBERTSON

Silk Department. PLUSHES. COL'D PLUSHES

& ALLISON

are now showing a full line of thes EARLY SPRING TRADE, In Burgundy, Caroubier, Sultan Bronze

Blue, Dark Olive, Florentine Gold, Dark Gold, Venetian Red, Light Blue, Crimson, Sapphire, Paon and Black.

FOR DRESS COMBINATION We have the latest novelties, both in Strips and Broche designs, for trimming both Woollen and Silk Fabrics. N. B.- - We shall from this date be in veekly receipt of Novelties and New Shades in DRESS SILKS and SATINS personally selected by Mr. Manchester.

CLIFTON HOUSE 74 PRINCESS AND 143 GERMAIN STS.,

A. N. PETERS, PROPRIETOR.

SAINT JOHN, N. B

TELEPHONE COMMUNICATION HEATED BY STEAM THROUGHOUT. jan20 ly

CODFISH HERRING. NOW RECEIVING:—LARGE FAT EASTERN HERRING. Bbls. and Also-100 Qtls. MEDIUM CODFISH GILBERT BENT & SON,

5 to 8 South Market Wharf. SALT. SALT.

Now Landing 7,700 S ACKS Coarse Salt; 550 Sacks Factory Filled Butter Salt, White Sacks. For sale low from ship.
GILBERT, BENT & SONS, apr28 South Market Wharf.

SUN LIFE Assurance Co..

35 & 37 Cortlandt St.,

OF CANADA.

UNCONDITIONAL INCONTESTA.
BLE LIFE POLICIES.

Assets about $1,300,000

THE objection is very often made to Life Assurance that the Companies may take advantage of some of the numerous and complicated conditions on the policies, and thus either avoid entirely the payment of claims, or compromise with the widow for a small sum. There is considerable force in this argument, but it cannot be urged indiscriminately against all Companies. THE SUN LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANY OF CANADA, issues absolutely unconditional policies. There is not one restriction of any kind on them. The assured may reside in any part of the world without giving notice or paying one cent of extra premium. He may change his occupation at will; he may travel, hunt or do anything else without any extra of any kind. The contrast is remarkable with other policies. Ask an Agent to show you one: it speaks for itselt.

REMEMBER THE SUN IS THE ONLY COMPANY IN AMERICA WHICH ISSUES AN ABSOLUTELY UNCONDITIONAL POLICY.

If You Want the simplest and best form of investment policy which is issued by any company, You Want Term Assurance at the lowest possible rate, with an investment for

If You Want Cheap Life Assurance while your children are young, and an endowment to yourself when they are grown up, If You Want accoumulation of Tontine profits without the risk of losing all you your savings at compound interest, have paid by missing any payment, If You Want Assurance with an unconditional policy which is sure to be paid without delay or trouble. Then You Want a Non-Forfeiting "Semi-Endowment" Policy in the SUN LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANY OF CANADA.

If you want to take an ACCIDENT policy, remember the SUN LIFE ACCIDENT ASSURANCE COMPANY OF CANADA. Remember THE SUN is the only Company in America which ssues uncondi-

"SUN" ACCIDENT POLICIES They are the most liberal in existence, having days of grace and other privileges which are given by no other company.

DIRECTORS. THOS. WORKMAN, Esq., PRESIDENT F. GAULT, Esq., VICE-PRESIDENT Hon. A. W. Ogilvie. A. F. Gault, Esq. J. S. McLachlan, Esq.

D. Morrice, Esq. E. J. Barbeau, Esq J. Whitehall, Esq. R. MACAULAY, MANAGING DIRECTOR. Risks taken also in the Glasgew and London Fire Insurance Company of Great

S. H. Ewing, Esq.

McMurray & Co.

J. B. GUNTER, GENERAL AGENT for

above Companies, Fredericton.

BOOKSELLERS,

STATIONERS AND DEALERS IN

PIANOS, ORGANS AND SEWING MACHINES.

We handle only first-class Instruments, which we sell at very low prices and on easy terms. WE EMPLOY NO AGENTS, but give the large commission paid agents to the buyer. Call and see our Stock, or write for Prices and Terms. WE MAKE A SPECIALTY OF ORGANS Having furnished over twenty churches in New Brunswick and Nova Scotia with

Organs, for which we make a special discount both to the church and clergyman. Any person in want of any of the above Goods, will find it to their advantage to write us for prices, terms, etc.

McMURRAY & CO. P. S.-Reference, by permission, to the Editor of this Paper, who has two of our Organs in his Church. McM. & Co. FREDERICTON. mar10 ly BARBADOS MOLASSES. To Arrive :- The Cargo of the "Levose:" PUNS, TIERCES AND BBLS. GILBERT BENT & SONS. South Market Wharf.

W. FENWICK.

COMMISSION MERCHANT. Agent for the Sale of all kinds of

AGRICULTURAL PRODUCE, BUCKWHEAT. CARROTS

POULTRY, &c. NORTH MARKET STREET, SAINT JUHN, N. B.

will bear fru Ah hopeful wo Through day He labored in And when le But the desert And wan wi Yet ever and e Words of co. As he said, This barren Then as seed t went, And the d toil, And he sorroy In the cold, He cheered hi

It was wel

To-morrow, to

Ah! many to

And his hear

His once brig

Of dust, fr

And wearing

That fanne

And the la

When a fierd

Sorrow and

While he care an

Of the harv

THE B

A laborer stood

And he saw as h

For seed had be

A burden of v

Had dropped snatched and more and

grown, Each swift re

But the laborer

With a hope

will, As he said, "I

That there w will work wh

Perchance m

And the seed i

For the soil The long, But the poor Ye who ha The days of Had wrou And he had So he calle In another But they Yet, he sow And the fast, The laborer Shivered, Then! layi He said,

And back

Of hours What will

Both fiel

In their

And the fr

the boy which is Hale in thing ei but it is value of There name L teen yes his left boy in man, ole firelock General Hessian left at l

held th

Chitten

had to and the

gone an men gal Luke w who the here?" "Ye "Is laughin there n "It often t blow th horse's up the So I took do > had lef even n horsen walk. find a " W " with And self of Luke creatu which a light.

ed up

heated to th fit," h "I rider. footed five n An nails made was f I het shoe.' onel, tarrie