To Boys Commencing Business.

Be on hand promptly in the and make it a point never to be late, and perform cheerfully every duty. Be respectful to your employers, and to all in authority over you, and be polite to every one; politeness costs nothing and it will help you wonderfully in getting on in the world. And above all, be honest and truthful. The boy who starts in life with a sound mind in a sound body, who falls into no bad habits, who is honest, truthful and industrious, who remembers with grateful love his father and mother, and who does not grow away from qualities of mind and heart that will insure him success to a remarkable degree, even though he is endowed with only ordinary mental capacity; for honor, truth and industry are more than genius. Don't be foppish in your dress, and don't buy anything before you have the money to pay for it. Shun billiard saloons, and be careful how you spend the evenings. Cultivate a taste for reading, and read only good books. With a love for reading, you will find in books friends ever true, and full of cheer in time of gloom, and sweet companionship in lonely hours. Other friends may grow cold and forsake you, but books are always the same. And in closing, boys, I would say again, that with truth, honesty and industry, and a living faith in God

A Word to Boys.

Many people seem to forget that character grows-that it is not something to put on, ready-made, with manhood or womanhood, but day by day, here a little and there a little, grows with the growth and strengthens with the strength, until, good or bad, it becomes almost a coat of mail. Look at a man of business, prompt, reliable, conscithan me. Christ must be loved free from the moral evils which entious, yet clear-headed and Lace Leather and Larragin Leather a supremely, or he is not loved at all. contaminated other children. They energetic. When do you suppose he developed all those sdmirable qualities? When he was a boy late at school, stands a poor chance to be a prompt man. The boy who neglects his duties, be they ever so small, and then excuses himself by saying, "I forgot, I didn't think," will never be a reliable man.

"I will" and "I won't" are very the children, and the foundation of important factors in human life. They go far toward settling one's people, themselves, were not aware destiny.
