The Desired Haven.

Across the bar, at set of sun,
With gentle motion, tranquil slow,
Harbor gained, her voyage done,
I see the stately vessel go.

A glory strikes her from afar,
Deep crimson lights her masts enfold;
Gleams, silver pointed, every spar,
And all her sails are cloths of gold.

I see the friends along the shore,
I hear their voices full and clear—
'Good ship! Good ship! Thy toils are o'er,
Soul, find thy rest. Cast anchor here.'

Well earned the greeting; earned the rest,
Pilot Divine, whom winds obey,
To us who still the billows' breast,
Like entrance grant at close of day!

Fourth Quarter—Lesson 4—Oct. 23

THREE MIRACLES.—Matt. 9: 18-31.

GOLDEN TEXT.—According to your faith be it unto you.—Matt. 9: 29.

A RULE OF THE SYNAGOGUE APPLIES TO JESUS FOR AID.—Vers. 18, 19.

While he (Jesus) spake these things unto them. Unto the Pharisees, who were watching while "he ate with publicans and sinners."

There came. To Matthew's house, where the feast was held. A certain ruler.

Of the synagogue; probably the chief or president of the board.

And worshipped him. By falling at his feet. Saying, My daughter.

An only daughter about 12 years of age. Is even now dead. She had been given over when her father left her, and actually was dead before he could return. But come and lay thy hand upon her, and she shall live. He had strong faith in the power of Jesus.

And Jesus arose. From the table. And so did his disciples. Accompanied by crowds of people.

Jairus' Faith was strong, expecting Jesus to raise to life one already dead; it was earnest; it was benevolent, seeking blessings for others; it was intelligent founded on knowledge of what Jesus had done, it was tried by the scorn of those in the house, it was successful faith, for Jesus immediately went to the ruler's house.

A SUFFERING WOMAN'S FAITH.—Vers. 20-22. And behold a woman which was diseased. Nothing is known of her. But there is a tradition that she was a Gentile, that she caused to be erected in front of her residence a bronze monument in commemoration of her cure. Twelve years. Mentioned to show the incurable nature of her sickness. Came behind him. Shrinking and retiring. And touched the hem of his garment. The border of the outer robe, or cloak, flowing loosely, after the manner of the East.

For she said within herself, If I may but touch his garment. Great was her faith, though perhaps it was intertwined with some imperfect notions.

But Jesus turned him about. Because he was conscious within himself that healing power had gone forth from him. He knew what was done because he willed it. And when he saw her, he said. Mark and Luke give the story more in detail. Daughter, be of good comfort. Be not afraid, I am not displeased. Thy faith hath made thee whole. Hath saved thee. In the higher and in the lower sense, soul and body.

THE DEAD RESTORED TO LIFE.—Vers. 23-26. And when Jesus came into the ruler's house. On the way there, while he was speaking to the woman, a message came from Jairus' house that his daughter had died. But he continued his walk, saying to Jairus, "Be not afraid; only believe." Saw the minstrels. Flute-players, who employed mournful instrumental music, on occasion of deaths.

Give place. Withdraw. Your services as mourners will not be required. For the maid is not dead, but sleepeth. She will not remain dead. To speak of death as a sleep is an image common to all nations. Thereby the reality of the death is not denied. And they laughed him to scorn. They who knew the signs of death were certain, and they scorned the suggestion that she was only sleeping.

He went in. To the sick chamber. And took her by the hand, saying, Damsel, arise. And the maid arose. On the instant, and walked, as an evidence of her restoration.

And the fame. The report. TWO BLIND MEN RECEIVE SIGHT.—Vers. 27-31. And when Jesus departed thence. From the house of Jairus, possibly from the city. Two blind men. Blindness is very common in the East; the dust, the hot sun, the sleeping in the open air, are among the causes said to produce it. Two went together for company and mutual help. Followed him. The noise and conversation of the crowd would point out to them where Jesus was. Crying, Thou son of David. The popular title of the Messiah, implying that they believed Jesus to be the Messiah. Have mercy on us. The Messiah would be full of loving kindness and tender mercies.

And when he was come into the house. His home at Capernaum, or the house where he was staying.

Believe ye that I am able? In the light of the prophecies was a question as to their faith in him as the Messiah.

According to your faith be it unto you. Faith is the hand which takes what God offers.

And their eyes were opened. The cure was instantaneous and complete, so that the blind men straightway went out from his presence to proclaim their cure.

PRACTICAL HINTS.—It is right to pray for temporal as well as spiritual blessings.

Sorrow often leads men to Jesus. We should not stop for set times and places, but seek Jesus wherever we can find him.

Strong faith, though mingled with error, brings the blessing.

We need to come in personal contact with Jesus.

People may come into the presence of Jesus, dwell in the midst of his work and worship, and yet, like the crowds around Jesus when the woman touched him, receive no healing or help.

It is the heart of faith and love that brings blessings from Christ.

Christ sometimes delays the answer to our prayers in order that he may grant us larger and fuller answers than are possible at first.

The rule of spiritual gifts is, "According to your faith be it unto you."

Death, sickness, blindness, are types of sin. Jesus has come to remove them from the world.

Two Girls.

There is a girl, and I love to think of her and talk of her, who comes in late when there is company, who wears a pretty little air of mingled responsibility and anxiety with her youth, whom the others seem to depend on and look to for many comforts. She is the girl who helps mother.

In her own home she is a blessed little saint and comforter. She takes unfinished tasks from the tired stiff fingers that falter at their work; her strong, young figure is a staff upon which the gray haired, white faced mother leans and is rested. She helps mother with the spring sewing, with the weeks' mending, with a cheerful conversation and congenial companionship that some girls do not think worth while wasting on only mother.

And when there comes a day when she must bend, as girls must often bend, over the old worn out body of mother lying unheeded in her coffin, rough hands folded, her long disquiet merged in rest, something very sweet will be mingled with her loss, and the girl who helped mother will find a benediction of peace upon her head and in her heart.

The girl who works—God bless her!—is another girl whom I know. She is brave and active. She is not too proud to earn her own living or ashamed to be caught at her daily task. She is studious and painstaking and patient. She smiles at you from behind counter or desk. There is a memory of her seen into each silken gown. She is like a beautiful mountaineer already far up the hill, and the sight of her should be a fine inspiration for us all. It is an honour to know this girl—to be worthy of her regard. Her hand may be stained with factory grease or printer's ink, but it is an honest hand and a helping hand. It stays misfortune from many homes; it is the one shield that protects many a forlorn little family from the alms house and asylum.

A Remarkable Clock.

The most remarkable clock in America, if we consider the place in which it was built, is the one that was made by a miner in the Hallen-back colliery at Wilkesbarre, Pa. This clock was made out of bits of board and iron, and with the roughest tools that can be imagined. It was made nearly half a mile under ground, and it occupied the maker nine years before he could say it was done. The clock is about nine feet high, and there are sixty-three figures that move by machinery. There are only twenty-two moving figures in the Strasburg clock. On the front of the Wilkesbarre clock—the one we are speaking of—there are three shelves or balconies. Along the lower balcony, a mounted general leads a file of continental soldiers. The liberty bell rings, and a sentinel salutes the procession. A door in the upper balcony opens and shows Molly Pitcher, who fires her historic cannon, the smoke of which is blown away from the interior of the clock by a fan. Then the portraits of the first twenty Presidents of the United States pass along in a kind of panorama. The Declaration of Independence being held aloft by Thomas Jefferson. On another of the balconies, the twelve apostles go by, Satan comes out, and the cock crows for the benefit of Peter.

When Christ appears, a figure of Justice raises a pair of scales, while a figure of Death tolls the minutes upon a bell.—Selected.

Discipline For A Grand Duke.

The sons of kings and emperors, when in the army or navy, are expected to obey orders like common soldiers or sailors. They have no choice between obedience and punishment. The following is a striking case:—

The Russian emperor's third son, Alexis, is in the naval service. Somewhat more than a year ago, when holding the rank of midshipman, the flag-ship in which he was serving was wrecked on the coast of Denmark. The admiral ordered the life-boat to be lowered, and directed Alexis to take charge of the first boat. The royal midshipman declined to obey. It was peremptorily repeated.

"I, your commanding officer, order you into the boat."

"Admiral, I cannot obey you," replied the young prince. "It would not become the son of the emperor to be the first to leave the ship. I shall remain with you to the last."

"But I shall put you under arrest for disobedience of orders as soon as circumstances will allow me to do so."

"I mean no disobedience, but I cannot obey," rejoined the youthful hero.

In due time, almost the entire crew reached the shore in safety, only some four or five having perished in the transit from the ship. Among the last to land were the admiral and the Grand Duke Alexis.

Tents were hastily erected from the sails and spars of the ship saved from the wreck, and the rigid discipline of ship life was promptly resumed. The young prince was placed under arrest for his previous disobedience of orders.

As soon as possible, the Russian minister at Copenhagen was informed of the facts, and telegraphed them to the emperor, from whom he received the following reply:—

"I approve the act of the admiral in placing the midshipman under arrest for disobeying orders, and I bless and kiss my son for disobeying them."—Good Cheer.

He Hears.

"Of all that I brought with me from the home of my childhood into the world," said a leading business man in the west, "the most valuable possession was the habit of kneeling to ask God's blessing night and morning. Often it was a mere mechanical form; at times, when I was in desperate straits, my prayer was a single inarticulate groan for help. But it kept alive in me the idea that there was a Power stronger than I, than money, or business, or life itself. That idea saved me."

An African explorer, one of the first to venture into the dark continent, wrote, "In all the dangers through which I passed, in the long fever, and even in the criminal excesses to which I, a young man and far from home, was a half-consenting witness, one thread kept me from sinking and utter ruin. It was the knowledge that on the other side of the globe an old, gray-haired woman was praying for me. No man can go utterly to destruction as long as his mother keeps one hand on him and the other on God."

Disagreeable Habits.

Nearly all the disagreeable habits which people take up, come at first from mere accident, or want of thought. They might easily be dropped, but they are persisted in until they become second nature. Stop and think before you allow yourself to form them. They are disagreeable habits of the body, like scowling, winking, twisting the mouth, biting the nails, continually picking at something, twirling a key or fumbling at a chain, drumming with the fingers, screwing and twisting a chair or whatever you lay your hands on. Don't do any of these things. Learn to sit quietly like a gentleman, I was going to say, like a lady, but I am afraid even girls fall into such tricks sometimes. Have a care about your way of sitting, and standing, and walking. Before you know it you will find that your habits have hardened into a coat of mail that you cannot get rid of without a terrible effort.

FACTS WORTH KNOWING.—This is the season of the year when the blood needs to be cleansed and purified. The best preparation that we know of to accomplish this is Gates' Life of Man Bitters and Invigorating Syrup. They extract the water and purify the blood, regulate the bowels, increase the appetite, excite the liver to action and renovate the whole system. A dozen bottles only cost five dollars and fifty cents. If every person should use this quantity each spring, we are sure that they would save pounds in the long run as it will certainly ward off disease and save many a sickness.

NEGLECTED COLDS, pain in the chest, and all diseases of the lungs, are cured by using Allen's Lung Balm.
