----Minister's Wives.

A minister's wife should, of course, be a devoted Christian woman, and sympathize and co-operate with her husband in every good work. But it is preposterous for a church to claim double duty from her. She has all the cares of a common housewife -and more than fall to the lot of an ordinary woman. Why, then, should a church imagine that they have hired her public services as well as those of her husband? If a man employs a lawyer, physician or mechanic, would he have the brass to claim the services of the wife as well as the husband? It is this double burden-bearing that is and has been crushing the life out of many a minister's wife. And if a church is so heartless or thoughtless as to demand from her public service, which only a paid missionary without the cares of a family should be expected to do, surely her husband should not be so foolish as to yield to this unjust demand. Furthermore, it should be remembered that her home is not a public justitution for the inspection and criticism of every idle gossip in the parish. If any professional man's wife but a ministers should be subjected to one half the busy-bodying in domestic and private affairs that the minister's wife endures, the whole community would rise in reprobation of such
