DEDICATION - The Free C. Baptist Meeting House at Charleston, C. Co. was dedicated on Sunday the 13th inst. The house is not very large, but is large enough for the community. It is 34x24 feet, with 16 feet posts, and a sixteen arrests were made in the city thence north fifty-four degrees and fifteen hanging roof that gives it a very nice in three years. The expenses last minutes east one chain and sixty two and appearance. It faces the high way, year were $83. and is on a slight elevation; and in its general features is a neat, compact and beautiful building. Its interior arrangements are in good taste, and comfortable. There are only two rows of seats, with an aisle between them. It is wainscotted all around, and the seats are finished in ash panneling with heavy walnut trimming, and varnished. The windows are narrow and high, giving plenty of light, and are covered with very neat linen blinds. The Pulpit stands on a platform of about two feet high, the platform is covered with a nice tapestry carpet. The reading desk is simple and ' plain, and in keeping with its surroundings; the three pulpit chairs give the platform a graceful appearance. The aisle and same place the space before the pulpitare covered with a neat woollen carpet; the chandelier, the pulpit lamp, and the stove all contribute to the general appearance of comfort. There is a commodious shed attached for the shelter of horses. Mr. John Lippset gave the land, and, although not a member of in the 77th year of his age, leaving a our church, gave, and did as much towards the erection and furnishing of their loss. When he died one of Nature's the building as any man in the comcredit, for their energy and liberality reward

The opening services commenced at 10.30 a. m. There were present Revs. J. W. Clark, G. W. Foster and A. Taylor. The travelling was bad, it being nearly out of the question to get along on the roads with a team; but, notwithstanding, a respectable congregation was present, the house was filled. Doubtless many more would have been present had the travelling permitted. Rev. A. Taylor read hymn 815, which was sung in good style; Rev. J. W. Clark read the Scriptures ; A Taylor offered prayer; Rev. J. W. Clark read the second hymn 816, and the congregation sung it heartly as unto the Lord, and not unto man; Rev. A. Taylor preached from Psalms 96:6, "O, come let us worship and bow down: let us kneel before the Lord our Maker." The subject was "The prosperity and benefits of worship." At the close of the sermon Rev. J. W. Clark offered the Dedicatory prayer, and Rev. G. W. Foster and a number of others spoke for God. A collection was always interested in its prosperity. He died in the faith of the Gospel.
