Sunday-School Don'ts.

Don't scold continually, or for every little trifling offence; "familiarity breeds contempt," and your pupils will soon come to think that scolding is your forte, and you do it for fun. Thus its effect upon them, when deserved, is lost.

Don't attempt to teach by comparison until you weigh well that the minds of children are easily confused; and in your care to teach the correct, by showing the incorrect, you run the risk of impressing upom them the very thing you seek to eradicate.

Don't try to have your pupils learn too many things, or spend your strength in advancing them too rapidly. You might as well "pour water through a sieve."

Don't forget that your pupils are rational beings, and that they have a code of rights that should be respected as sacredly as the rights of their elders.

Don't forget the time when you were a soldier in the battle of childthat your own childish trials and Goods. discomforts are still fresh in memory.

Don't forget that your pupils are the men and women of to-morrow; that they are essentially what they are made, either by precept or example; that to primary pupils, example is of more value than precept.

Don't think that order consists in the quiet of the tomb, or fancy that the air of an Egyptian mummy is creditable in a child.

Timely Advice. Young man, young woman, put something away for the days which are coming. Times may not always be so good as now. Your health and ability to earn may not be so vigorous a few years hence as they are now. The decay which comes with age is the lot of all; therefore, save while you are young and strong | renovate and tone up the whole system. and thrifty. What spectacle is more sad than frail old age struggling from day to day for the necessaries of life? And what an innumerable number of such misfortunes could have been averted if the fruits of younger years of industry had been garnered!

According to the census of 1880 the aggregate wages paid in Allegheny County alone amounted to $22,000,000 yearly. It is probable that they amount now to $30,000, 000. The reports of the savingsthat they amount now to $30,000, 000. The reports of the savingsthe spirit and follows the example Bishop Whateley says that he who banks show that not only a goodly number of wage-winners save a portion of their earnings, but that many of these are small earners. This verifies the old saw that "where there's a will there's a way."

Now, let everybody try the experiment of saving something. Start with a dollar, if you have no more; it will be a nest-egg. The savings-bank will take good care of it, and pay interest on it. Then add another and another, as often as you can. You will find it a pleasure while in progress and an individual comfort in old age .-Pittsburgh Penny Press.
