A Child That's Still. "If mychild were but different !" ribly ? The mother said, and sighed. Ah me!! Come to this house across the street-A child that's different you shall see.

"She is so faulty, noisy, rude ! Not like the children-well, I mean ' The sweet ideal darlings that In dreams and books I've often seen.

"A moment she is good-an hour Perhaps-What did you say tomme ? 4 different child across the street? Not one that's still ? That cannot be.'

Yes, still; and O, so very good ' That white rosebud below her face. She is so still, for hours and hours Has nestled in that very place.

The soft and dainty dress she wears, She's worn ('tis true) a day and night ; And yet she is so very good, 'Tis orderly and spotless white.

She has not spoken in that time-Unless to angels, it may be, And they will bear with her, no doubt. They know she's but a child, you see.

You guess my meaning. Ah! that gush Of loving tears, that sudden thrill, Means that you pray your naughty child May never be as good and still.

And when she's careless, rude and wild,

Not so. Bruno calmly stretched himself full length before the door. He explained, as perfectly as possible, that " he knew his duty." No one should leave his master's room in his absence. When the girl tried to pull the door open sufficiently, he growled, showed his teeth, and finally tried them on her legs. The woman's screams brought another maid, and yet another, and then in succession all the waiters. Bruno was glad to let them all in, but he allowed no one out. The room became pretty well crowded, and every bell in the house, meantime, rang, while the walls echoed cries of "Waiter! waiter !" Finally, the lady who kept the hotel appeared, and pushed her way irately into the room, asking angrily, as she walked in, what sort of picnic they were all holding here. Bruno let her in, too, but not out again-oh, 'no ! When the lady's husband appeared, she called him loudly, for heaven's sake, to keep outside, to send messengers scouring the city for the banker, and, meantime, to endeavor to pacify the angry customers downstairs.

THIS Ointment has been used with the greatest success in the speedy cure of all eruptions arising from an impure state of the blood or from infection. It relieves nd cures ECZEMA, SALT RHEUM, ITCH, SCURVY, BOILS, PILES, ULCERS, CHAPPED HANDS and LIPS, INSECT STINGS, &c. In use 50 years. At all dealers. 25 Cents.

Allen's Lung Balsam was introduced to the public after its merits for the positive cure of such diseases had been fully tested. It excites expectoration and causes the Lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucus; changes the secretions and purifies the blood ; heals the irritated parts ; gives strength to the digestive organs; brings the liver to its proper action, and imparts strength to the whole system. Such is the immediate and satisfactory effect that it is warranted to break up the most distressing cough in a few hours' time, if not of too long standing. It contains no opium in any form and is warranted to be perfectly harmless to the most delicate child. There is no real necessity for so many deaths by consumption when Allen's Lung Balsam will prevent it if only taken in time. For Consumption, and all diseases that lead to it, such as Coughs, neglected Colds, Bronchitis, Asthma and all diseases of the Lungs, ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM is the Great Modern Remedy. For Croup and Whooping Cough it is almost a specific. It is an old standard remedy, and sold universally at 50 cents Allen's and $1.00 per bottle. The 25-cent bottles are put out to answer the constant call for a Good and Low-Priced COUGH CURE. If you have not tried the Balsam, call for a alsam 25-cent bottle to test it.

is my wish that you should do it. Can you not try to please your father?" "Yes, papa, I will try, though know I cannot do it very well."

"Do the best you can, and I will not blame you, dear boy."

Peter went to bed troubled over the matter, and all night it was upon his mind, so much so that before daylight he sprang from his couch exclaiming, "I have a subject ! I have a subject ! His father, awakened by the noise, asked from an adjoining room what the matter was. "Oh! I am going to write my composition," called out Peter. "A rather strange hour for such work as that," said the father; "but go ahead."

Peter wrote rapidly, having thought the theme all over in his bed, his subject being "Reputation," and hewrote well, for a sort of inspiration had come over him for the time.

When morning dawned the composition was read to his father, who pronounced it fairly well done, and Peter took it with him to school. When called upon to read it Peter felt some trepidation, but read in clear, distinct tones, that could be heard by all. He felt when he sat down once more that he had obeyed his father, and that was reward enough ; all he could expect when so many were older and wiser than himself. Presently the prizes were distributed, and every.

boy was on the alert. " Peter Redmond !" Peter started in surprise, and did
