Temperance Notes.

—High license never closed a single brewery or distillery, while prohibition has closed every one in Maine, Vermont, Kansas and Iowa.

—From 1880 to 1889 the assessed value of property in Kansas, under prohibition, has increased over $200,000,000, while Nebraska, under license has increased only $72,000,000.

—When a laboring man undertakes to support a family and a saloon at the same time, the saloon will grow rich and the family grow poor.

—Pope Leo XIII., in a letter to Bishop Ireland, says:

We are rejoiced to learn with what energy and zeal the Catholic Total Abstinence Union is combating the destructive vice of intemperance. Hence we esteem worthy of all commendation and approval the association and its noble resolves. The greatest of all in this matter should be the priest. Let pastors, therefore, do their best to drive the plague of intemperance from the fold of Christ by assiduous preaching and exhortation, and let them shine before their congregations as models of total abstinence, so the many calamities with which this vice threatens both Church and State may by the strenuous endeavors of these pastors be averted.

—M. Bourcier, a meat inspector in Paris, gives some significant results of experiments with meat exposed to the fumes of tobacco smoke and then fed to animals. They demonstrate conclusively that the tobacco nicotine impregnates and poisons the meat. Some thin slices of meat exposed for a considerable time to the fumes of tobacco, then concealed in bread and fed to a dog, caused most distressing symptoms in a few minutes and the dog soon died in great agony. The juice squeezed out of some real perfectly saturated with tobacco smoke, was injected into a rabbit, and death resulted in a few moments. Fresh killed meat is most readily impregnated. A few jets of smoke from Belgian tobacco on a dish of raspberries will, it is stated, suffice to destroy the delicate flavor of the fruit, and to render it uneatable. In the light of these experiments, the sanitary effects of smoking in meat markets, and in other places where other foods are sold, must be altogether unfavorable to those who buy and consume the meat and foods thus exposed to the penetrating fumes of tobacco smoke. —Nat. Advocate.

PROHIBITION CONVENTION. — The second Maritime Prohibition Convention was held in St. John last week. There was a very good attendance. No public meeting was held, but there was considerable work done and planned to be done. It is proposed to put a candidate of the new party in the field whenever possible, even when the nominees of the other party are prohibitionists. This plan, if carried out, is we think a mistake. Where neither of the candidates of the existing parties is a pronounced prohibitionist, one ought to be put in nomination; but it does not look like wisdom to oppose prohibitionist to prohibitionist.

MRS. HUGHES, wife of Rev. B. N. Hughes (Baptist) of Havelock, K. Co., died very suddenly last week, of paralysis. Mrs. Hughes was an excellent christian lady, and had a wide circle of friends by whom she was highly esteemed. To Bro. Hughes and family we extend christian sympathy in their sore bereavement.

THE SEAL FISHERY. — The Christian Standard suggests that the seal fishery dispute is likely to be settled by the extinction of the seals. Where these animals abound by millions five years ago they are already scarce, and it seems that they are rapidly going the way of the late lamented buffalo. It is a sad comment on the wastefulness of civilization, and shows that man is yet a prodigal, wasting his substance.

ARMENIA. — Accounts continue to come of miseries endured by the Armenian population under Turkish rule. Most respectable men are hauled up before the authorities on trumped-up charges and made to pay blackmail to avoid being sent to Constantinople. Christian women in certain districts have been violated by Turks with impunity. The roads are infested by Kurdish robbers, who strip the traveller of all he possesses. The Armenian patriarch, after withdrawing his resignation, has again resigned, the real reason being, it is said, the discontent of the Armenian Community at his having withdrawn it. Meanwhile Russia is holding in check the Armenians of the Caucasus who are burning to rush to the aid of their fellow-countrymen.

THE LORD CHANCELLOR OF ENGLAND, says a contemporary, has been speaking some wise words in advocacy of foreign mission work, which come with great weight from such a quarter. He said that when he was a younger man it was said that there were two dark places on the earth—China and Africa—which could not be assailed; but China, instead of refusing help, had now a regular Ambassador to the Court of St. James, and Africa had been much in men's thoughts of late. People forgot at what cost and sacrifice of human suffering and noble lives missionary enterprises were carried on. Although in some of the darkest places of the earth one might sometimes find noble determinations to gain knowledge of the truth, was it true that the great mass of the world was attracted by the greatest of all truths? He would not attempt to suggest that the time was approaching when the lion would lie down with the lamb, and the reign of peace begin. No cause was ever advanced by overstating the truth. Opportunities were increasing for mitigating evil, but when one contrasted efforts for worldly conquest with efforts for propagating the Gospel of God, men must feel humiliated. Half a million was spent upon one ironclad, but on the other hand, wide fields of ignorance and folly were left with no one to help or save. Let them get rid of the easy, slumbering conscience. They might thank God that there were signs of the rising light; yet until the Gospel was preached in all lands the glorious end would not come.

TOSCANELLI, one of the most prominent conservative members of the Italian parliament, who has for years been the warmest friend of the Pope and was intimately acquainted with the policy and aims of the Vatican, has surprised friend and foe by the publication of a pamphlet against the claims of the Papacy. What has led to this change of heart does not appear; but indications make it probable that Toscanelli could no longer consistently prove true to both his constituents and the Vatican at the same time. The sensational feature of Toscanelli's fact that the Foreign Office of the Vatican had secretly instructed their representatives to use their influence to break up the Triple Alliance between Germany, Austria and Italy as early as 1887, thwarted a feasible scheme for the reconciliation of Italy and the Vatican by the threat that then the French bishops would withdraw from the supremacy of the Pope and by holding out the hope that the war which was soon expected to break out between France and the Triple Alliance would end with the restoration of the temporal power. It also is shown that the Pope had already made arrangements with the French Ambassador to take up his residence in France, when the warning words of Cripiti, to the effect that in the case of his departure the Vatican would be made State's property, kept his Holiness in Rome. Toscanelli thus gives authentic confirmation of what was heretofore only rumor and report.

ALL SORTS.

The women factory inspectors of Chicago receive $1,000 a year for their services; the same sum is paid to the men holding similar positions.

Sebastopol is to be finally closed early next year to trade, and made into an arsenal only, all trade and consular business being removed to Kaffa.

We should never eat when we are angry, unless we wish indigestion; yet lots of men could hardly eat a dinner without the satisfaction of grumbling at it.

"Bridget, has Johnny come home from school yet?" "Yes," "Have you seen him?" "No." "Then how do you know he's home?" "Cause the cat's hidin' under the stove."

All the members of the firm of Harper & Brothers are practical printers, and it is a rule of the house that each member of the family who expects to be taken into the firm must first become proficient in type-setting or press-work.

A middle-aged old woman, sneering at a young mother's awkwardness with her infant: "A woman never ought to have a baby unless she knows how to hold it." "Nor a tongue, either," was the quiet rejoinder.

"She did wrong to look back, didn't she, Bessie?" "Yes, mamma." "And what do you think Lot did when he saw his poor wife turned into a pillar of salt?" "I don't know, mamma, I 'spec' he wondered where he could get a fresh one."

"There are three great rocks," says Mr. Carnegie, "ahead of the practical young man who has feet upon the ladder and is beginning to rise." "Wonder how the rocks keep balanced on the rounds. This reminds us of the flight of rhetoric of the anarchist who exclaimed, 'The chariot of revolution is rolling along, and gnashing its teeth as it rolls.'"

Bobby: "What's the matter with that horse, mamma?" Mother: "The horse is balky; he won't obey his driver." "Well, what's the man patting him for?" "He is coaxing him." "That ain't the way you treat me when I'm balky."

A naughty little boy one day eluded punishment by creeping under a table, where his mother could not reach him. Shortly after his father came in, and when told of the state of affairs, crawled on his hands and knees in search of his son and heir, when to his astonishment he was greeted with this inquiry: "Is she after you, too, father?"

The ubiquitous reporter has been interviewing Mr. Barnum, the "great object teacher of the age," as he calls himself, since his arrival in London, and certainly with some remarkable results. The veteran showman, who is now over eighty years of age, says he has been a total abstainer since 1847, and never regretted it, and that he has not smoked for twenty years. Before that time he used to smoke as many as ten cigars a day, and had trouble with his heart, and now he has no pains anywhere, and is as cheerful as when he was only forty.

Dr. Parr (the celebrated scholar) was once preaching in the country parish of another clergyman, and, as was his habit, used very learned language. The rector afterward said to him, "They could not understand you." "Nonsense," said Dr. Parr: "I am sure there was nothing in my sermon which they could not comprehend." "Well," said the rector, "I will call one of them in, and see if he understands the meaning of the word 'felicitity.'" So he called in a laboring man, and said, "John, can you tell me what is the meaning of 'felicitity'?" "Well, I don't know, sir," said John; "but I believe it is some part of the inside of a pig."

Another article formerly considered worthless has been added to the useful products, and is known as mineral India-rubber asphalt. It is produced during the progress of refining tar by sulphuric acid, and forms a black material very much like ordinary asphalt, and elastic like India-rubber. When heated so that the slimy matter is reduced to about sixty per cent. of its former size, a substance is produced, hard, like ebony. It can be dissolved in naphtha, and is an excellent non-conductor of electricity, and therefore valuable for covering telegraph wires and other purposes where a non-conducting substance is needed. Dissolved, the mineral India-rubber produces a good waterproof varnish.

Some experiments have recently been made at Spezzia on the Italian man-of-war, Messaggiero, with a view to ascertaining the speed attainable with coal and petroleum mixed for fuel, and they seem to have resulted in producing a high speed at a given moment. The Messaggiero, which never before surpassed fifteen knots an hour, reached almost seventeen with the new process of combustion, so that the increased speed supplies a very valuable assistance to a ship imperfectly defended. It is stated, however, that the immense heat generated affects the boilers injuriously, but arrangements are being made for obviating this in the future.

A boy of twelve years of age, going to confession lately, revealed to his father confessor that he had been guilty of turning "flim-flams" on the previous Sunday. The good father, anxious to award a strictly suitable penance, but ignorant of the exact character of the offence, inquired, "What are these flim-flams, my son?" "I'll show you, Father," said the boy; and straightway he jumped up from his knees and turned a couple of hand-springs before the confessional box, to the utter astonishment, but secret amusement, of the priest. The next penitent, in turn, who had anxiously witnessed this strange performance, was a stout, red-faced, middle-aged woman, who knelt, with evident trepidation, and stammered out, "Och, Father, dear, don't be givin' me such a Lenten penance as that, for the dear Lord's sake!" —Cambridge Chronicle.

Literary Notes.

There are now nearly 200,000 "King's Daughters" in the land, and Mrs. Margaret Bottoms, an energetic New York woman, is their President, as she is also founder of the Order. With October 1st, Mrs. Bottoms takes up the editorial pen, and becomes one of the editors of The Ladies' Home Journal, in which periodical she will hereafter write and edit a department entirely devoted to the best interests of "The King's Daughters." Through this channel it is Mrs. Bottoms's intention that her "Daughters" and herself shall come closer together in feeling and sympathy.

Noticeable in this month's St. Nicholas is the article "Through a Detective's Camera," illustrated with bits of child life. A real juvenile story is "Betty's By and By," in which is told a headless heroine's experiences in that great rendezvous of procreation. Another story with a sly moral administered in a well flavored medium is "The Gwynnes' Little Donkey." This tells of the substitution of a pet donkey for the overworked drudge of a tinker's cat. It is the sort of story that is sure to make young people think. Other features are a short illustrated story of Edward the Sixth, a bright story telling how a Yankee with a rifle proved himself a match for a Chilean torpedo boat; and many bright pictures, clever hits in verse, well-sustained departmental attractions, and all the serials. The man who can not find interesting reading in this number should consult his physician.

The October Century opens with a frontispiece portrait of Joseph Jefferson. The last installment of the autobiography accompanies this paper. Professor Darwin contributes a paper on "Meteorites and the History of Stellar Systems." A striking photograph of a nebula, in which a system like our own solar system seems to be in actual formation, accompanies this paper. "A Hard Road to Travel Out of Dixie," is the title of a paper in The Century's new war-prison series. "Prehistoric Cave-Dwellings" is a profusely illustrated paper, on the prehistoric and ruined pueblo structures in Chaco Canyon, New Mexico, the Canon de Chelly Arizona, —the ancient home of the most flourishing community of cave-dwellers,—and other extraordinary cave villages now now inhabited. "Letters from Japan" have for their most striking feature this month the description, in word and picture, of fishing by means of comorants in a Japanese river. "Women in American Literature," reviews the whole field of American female authorship. The "Bric-a-Brac" contributors are the late John Eliot Bowen and Edward A. Oldham.

The Methodist Magazine for October, 1890. Price $2 a year; $1 for six months; 20 cents per number. Toronto: William Briggs.

The Canadian Tourist Party in this number have reached the quaint old city of Innsbruck, the capital of the Austrian Tyrol and one of the most picturesque in Europe. The illustrations are good. A pathetic interest accompanies a Lady Brassey's account of her journeyings in the Island Continent of Australia. The Rev. Geo. Bond, M. A., describes and illustrates his residence in Damascus, the oldest city in the world. There is a graphic sketch of Father Taylor, the eccentric "Sailor Preacher." A judicious paper on the relations of the Church to the Capital and Labor question will repay reading. Excellent papers on Pastoral Work, and Local Church Organization, are of interest. "Geoffrey Hallam's Quandary" is an amusing story; and "James Blackie's Revenge" is strongly written.

"Make Hens Lay."

Such is the caption of an advertisement that appears not only in the local, but many leading agricultural papers and which suggests the propriety of a few thoughts upon the subject. It may be laid down as a rule that most farmers indulge in raising poultry not for the pleasure it gives, but for the profit that is realized from the same which must come from young chicks or eggs, and since the chicks must come from the eggs, the real profit may be traced to egg production, so the advice given in these words is of vital consequence to the ambitious farmer. ment referred to recommends Sheridan's Condition Powder to make hens lay and so do we," says Mr. Hunter, poultry editor of the N. E. Farmer.

"A hen to lay prolifically must be in perfect health, must be in condition, and here is based the true theory of the value of Sheridan's Condition Powder—it promotes the general good health of the fowl, gently quickening digestion, and stimulating all the various organs of the body as well as the ovaries, to perform their functions." At this season of the year the use of Sheridan's Condition Powder is very valuable for moulting hens and young pullets. By its use now they will get to laying earlier when the price for eggs is very high. Any person buying and using Sheridan's Condition Powder now, will get their hens in good laying condition before cold weather, and stand a good chance to win one of the large gold premiums to be offered later by I. S. Johnson & Co., 22 Custom House Street, Boston, Mass.
