

BRONCHITIS

Is an inflammation of the bronchial tubes—the air-passages leading into the lungs. Few other complaints are so prevalent, or call for more prompt and energetic action. As neglect or delay may result seriously, effective remedies should always be at hand. Apply at once a mustard poultice to the upper part of the chest, and for internal treatment, take frequent doses of

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

C. O. Lepper, Druggist, Fort Wayne, Ind., writes: "My little sister, four years of age, was so ill from bronchitis that we had almost given up hope of her recovery. Our family physician, a skillful man and of large experience, pronounced it useless to give her any more medicine, saying he had done all it was possible to do, and we must prepare for the worst. As a last resort, we determined to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and I can truly say, with most happy results. After taking a few doses she seemed to breathe easier, and, within a week, was out of danger. We continued giving the Pectoral until satisfied she was entirely well. This indisputable evidence of the great merit of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral has given me unbounded confidence in the preparation, and I recommend it to my customers, knowing it cannot disappoint them."

"Ayer's Cherry Pectoral cured me of a bad cough and my partner of bronchitis. I know of numerous cases in which this preparation has proved very beneficial in families of so that the medicine is known among them as 'the consoler of the afflicted.'—Jaime Rufus Vidal, San Cristobel, San Domingo. "A short time ago, I was taken with a severe attack of bronchitis. The remedies ordinarily used in such cases failed to give me relief. Almost in despair of ever finding anything to cure me, I bought a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and was helped from the first dose. I had not finished one bottle before the disease left me, and my throat and lungs were as sound as ever."—Geo. B. Hunter, Altoona, Pa.

In Thine Own Time.

BY MARTIN BUTLER.

In thine own time, O Lord, will all things change.

The crooked be made straight; And we shall see with clearer, wider range, If we will only wait.

The doubts and fears that so perplex our minds, Will vanish as the night.

When morning comes—"Like clouds on angels' wings," And floods the vales with light.

Beyond this "fleeting breath,"

This short, but painful struggle of a day, The clouds and mists that have obscured our path, Will vanish all away.

And in that heavenly home,

The mansions bright, prepared for all the blest, Life's struggles o'er, life's passions over-blown, We shall forever rest.

No woes or pains or clouds or doubts shall mar

The Eternal Sabbath Day; Beyond the light of yon illumining sky, 'Tis but a little way.

REVIEW AND CHRISTMAS.

After a year's study of the life of Christ, it is well, both for review, and as a fitting Christmas lesson, to take, as it were, a bird's-eye view of his life, and impress upon the scholars the main incidents, leaving a picture which never can be effaced.

Below is given a series of questions, showing one way in which this general view of Christ's life may be set forth.

SUBJECT.—THE LIVING, CRUCIFIED, AND RISEN LORD, THE CENTRAL POWER OF THE NEW KINGDOM.

I. His Birth and Early Life.

When and where was Jesus born? His mother's name? Give three incidents of his early life. In what place did he live for how many years? What was his occupation? When and where was he baptized?

II. The Time and Place of his Ministry.

How old was Jesus when he began his public ministry? How long did it last? In what two countries was most of it spent? What other countries did he visit? Name the chief cities in which he taught? Name two mountains, a lake, and a river connected with his life.

III. His Teachings.

What sermon of Jesus is recorded? In what way did he do much of his teaching? Name some of the principal parables he spoke. Give some of his illustrations. What were some of the leading truths he taught?

IV. His Miracles.

Name some of the principal miracles. What was the purpose of the miracles? Over what evils and enemies of men did they show our Saviour's power? Were they all miracles of help and blessing?

V. Incidents revealing his Character.

How did he gain the victory over temptation? What did his example teach about the Sabbath? What was revealed concerning him on the Mount of Transfiguration? What by his night of prayer? by his washing the disciples' feet? by his agony in the garden? by his words upon the cross?

VI. The Atonement on the Cross.

By whom was Jesus betrayed? where? By whom was he condemned? On what occasions was he mocked? Where was he crucified? How many times did he speak on the cross? What happened at its close? Where was Jesus buried?

VII. His Resurrection.

How long was Jesus in the tomb? When did he rise? Who saw him first? How many times did he appear? In what places? For how long? What was his last act on earth? From what place did he ascend to God? Where is he now?

VIII. His Last Commands.

What was Jesus' last message to his people? (Mark 16:15, 16.) Who is to go? Where are they to go? Are any nations to be omitted? What are we to preach and teach? What are we to preach and teach? (Matt. 28:19, 20; Luke 24:46, 47.) What aids did God give them? (Mark 16:17, 18.) Have missions been successful? Have any churches succeeded without the missionary spirit? Is such a Saviour worthy of being preached everywhere?

OUR MOTTO.—If God be for us, who can be against us.

Questions of the Day.

In the name of our mothers who lean upon the manhood of their husbands and sons. In the name of our fathers who are broken-hearted over their besotted sons, and in the name of the little children, joy-forsaken, destitute, hungry, ragged and forgotten, we ask "How long, Oh Lord! how long shall man's inhumanity to man be tolerated?"

"Vengeance is mine and I will repay it saith the Lord of hosts." And a terrible vengeance it will be to those who barter souls for gold. The poisoned arrow back to their own hearts shall come all dipped in blood, the blood of innocence. I know of more than one woman who waits tonight for the unsteady step of her husband. Cold and hungry they sit while the little children sleep the blessed sleep of childhood however scanty their covering. O the weary pitiful waiting when will it end! Is there no pity, no mercy, in the drunkard's heart? No humanity? Has the greed for gold blotted out their manhood or how is it that they can look calmly upon the despair and suffering of their victims? We could give the names of those tonight who sorrow without hope but for the present forbear as we would not add another pang to the helpless misery of the long suffering wives and mothers who are at our very doors. Where are our rulers who wink at the illegal traffic? It is high time for them to awake out of their unreasonable sleep.

M. J. S.

—On the platform of the National Convention was a pictured woman's face, sweet and strong, yet one none of us recognized. In response to eager questioning, we were told, "That is Lady Henry Somerset, president of the British Women's Temperance Association." Looking at it, we do not wonder at the enthusiasm she has aroused.

—Some declare that the W. C. T. U. is not doing much, but I would remind them that no fort is thought to have surrendered so long as its colors are flying, and ours are never brighter. Don't stand off and criticise, but come and help us.

Anxious parents and forsaken wives are learning to appreciate the help of the W. C. T. U. in caring for their wayward, absent ones, and the saying of a woman thus consoled becomes of wider significance every year: "The W. C. T. U. gives to each boy a score of mothers." May this faith deepen the motherliness of all our hearts.

—Bishop Thoburn, in a recent address on India, said: When you want to raise a building you put screws and levers under its lowest parts. When you lift the lowest brick you lift every brick above it. A better figure cannot be found by which to impress the importance of work for the home makers, since the chief corner-stone of the state is the hearthstone. The supreme object of the W. C. T. U. is to elevate the home and protect its members, one and all—the stronger from legalized temptation, the gentler from oppression.

I suggest a pledge that the boys and girls will not do, say or listen to anything they could not tell to mamma. One of our women writes: This promise has been a wall of defense to my children all through their school-life, and the habit of confidence thus formed is not easily broken. I believe we can place this pledge in the hands of primary teachers to excellent advantage. The White Cross and White Shield pledges are now well known among us, and are kept in stock at Headquarters with all the leaflets necessary to a full understanding of the work, and suggestions for mothers who would gladly talk with their children about personal purity, but hesitate for lack of language.

For Young People.

Boys and girls who think at all know that every day habits are acquired that will cling through life, and those habits reveal to others the kind of homes in which they grew up. There are habits for which parents or training are not at fault. Not long ago I heard a very wise mother say to her little daughter of twelve years, who was inclined to stoop: "No one can help you to overcome that unhealthy habit unless you try yourself. I can remind you, but if you do not remember to throw your shoulders back, to sit and stand erect, then you must bear the penalty when you are a woman. You will be crooked, and then of course you will not be strong." And what this mother said was true. The best pair of shoulder braces is a strong will with a desire to be strong and straight. And so it is with everything we really want to be in this life. No person, no matter how strong their love, can do our work for us; we must co-operate with them, work with them for our own advancement. The best teacher in the world cannot make a boy or girl a good student independent of his or her will; they must work with their teacher, or the teacher will fail. An employer may give every opportunity, but if the employee does not work to improve it the fault is his own.

No boy or girl can truthfully lay all the blame on father or mother for bad manners, or bad habits, or lack of success. Every book, every paper, every magazine, tries in some form or other to teach lessons in manners and morals, and it is only the poorest and most ignorant who can be excused. It is really painful to see how thoughtlessly rude many boys and girls are who grow up in refined homes. They may modify their habits when they become men and women, but there is always a tinge that reveals the heart, for bad manners are largely the result of selfishness.

Don'ts For Young Writers.

Don't punctuate your manuscripts with dashes in place of commas, semi-colons, and periods. A manuscript which is not worth the trouble of punctuating properly is not worth sending. If you don't know how to use commas, semi-colons, and periods correctly, learn. Don't spin out an involved sentence over a whole page. Shorten or divide the sentences, and see how much more direct and forcible they will be. If an editor kindly straightens, polishes, or condenses your English for you, don't fly at him wrathfully with a charge of "mutilating" your copy.

When your manuscript is bought and paid for, don't importune the editor to mail gratuitous copies of the publication to this, that, and the other address. The publisher has bought your goods; buy his, and send wherever you wish.

If an article is declined, don't send long letters beseeching or demanding the reasons, and asking all manner of criticisms, comments, and directions for future attempts. Save your time and stamps.

Don't send directions that such and such words of your copy must be italicized. Every publication has its own standard of taste about such matters, and will probably adhere to it. If an article offered in summer, but suited only to the depth of midwinter, is accepted to be used "when reasonable," don't begin in September writing letters to know if it has been published, and when it will be published, and why and wherefore it has been deferred so long.

In short, don't make your correspondence so troublesome and exacting that your work won't be wanted on any terms.—The Writer.

Bring One.

Children, I want each of you to bring a new scholar to the school with you next Sunday, said the superintendent of a Sunday-school to his scholars one day. I can't get any new scholars, said several of the children to themselves. I'll try what I can do, was the whispered response of a few others. One of the latter class went home to his father, and said, Father, will you go to the Sunday-school with me? I can't read my son, replied the father, with a look of shame. Our teachers will teach you, dear father, answered the boy, readily, with respect and feeling in his tones. Well, I'll go, said the father. He went, learned to read, sought and found the Saviour, and at length became a colporteur. Years passed on, and that man had established four hundred Sunday-schools, into which thirty-five thousand children were gathered! Thus you see what trying did. That boy's efforts were like a tiny rill which soon swells into a brook, and at length becomes a river. His efforts, by God's grace, saved his father; and his father, being saved, led thirty-five thousand children to the Sunday-school!

SCIENTIFIC ITEMS.—Electricity is now used to clean files, and it is claimed that by its use they are restored almost to their original condition.

With the view of testing therapeutically of electric welding, twenty pieces of one-inch common round iron bars with rough ends were recently welded together by two men in thirteen minutes.

It is claimed that will paper can be made in such a way that the passage of low tension electric currents will heat it moderately warm to the touch and diffuse throughout the room an agreeable temperature.

The coughing and wheezing of persons troubled with bronchitis or asthma is excessively harassing to themselves and annoying to others. Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil obviates all this, entirely, safely and speedily, and is a benign remedy for lameness, soreness, injuries, piles, kidney and spinal troubles.

To be free from sick headache, biliousness, constipation, etc., use Carter's Little Liver Pills; strictly vegetable. They gently stimulate the liver and free the stomach from bile.

Did you ever buy a horse and not have some misgivings as to his points till they were fully tested? Not so with Ayer's Sarsaparilla; you may be sure of it at the start. It never disappoints those who give it a fair and persistent trial.
