Perfect Through Suffering.

God never would send you the darkness If He felt you could bear the light; But you would not cling to His guiding hand If the way were always bright; And you would not care to walk by faith, Could you always walk by sight.

'Tistrue He has many an anguish For your sorrowful heart to bear, And many a cruel thora-crown For your tired heart to wear ; He knows how few would reach heaven at all If pain did not guide them there.

So He sends you the blinding darkness, And the furnace of seven-fold heat ; Tis the only way, believe me, To keep you close to His feet, For 'tis always so easy to wander When our lives are glad and sweet.

Then nestle your hand in your Father's And sing, if you can, as you go ; Your song may cheer some one behind you Whose courage is sinking low; And, well, if your lips do quiver-God will love better so. -Selected.

Jesus and the Cause of Christian Missions.

In my study of the gospels I have been forcibly impressed with the fact that the Lord Jesus Christ never manifested any direct and special interest in any cause save that which we to-day designate by the term Christian Missions. Whenever he manifested any interest in any other cause it was for the simple reason that that cause had to do more or less directly with the cause of Christian Missions.

Nor is it at all strange that such should be the case. How could it be otherwise ? He was the first, and infinitely the greatest, missionary who ever appeared on earth. All others

It is comparatively easy for us to maintain a correct external life, but not so easy for us to walk with God and work with God in those spiritual things which really constitute the Let every soldier of Jesus Christ fall Christian life in distinction from the merely moral life. Nor is the strength prayed for of any ordinary character or in ordinary degree. "That he would strengthen you with might by his Spirit;" or we might say, "mightily strengthen you with his mighty strength." What a suggestion is here, as to the strength of the powers we have to meet in our spiritual welfare, and how great the work is that we are called upon to do. Are we not in danger of underrating both these, supposing at least that a little strength will suffice for the ordinary use of the Christian. Joshua supposed that a handful of men would suffice to take Ai, but God showed him that the whole army must go up. We may not persume that a little_strength is enough for anything. It required the mighty power of Jesus as much to raise the little daughter of Jairus to life tho but just dead, as it did to raise Lazarus, the grown man, who had "been dead these four days." But the resource of strength for us is abundant. It is "according to the riches of his glory by his Spirit." Out of this mine of strength came the whole creation ; by this strength we were born again, and by it the mighty resurrection from the dead is accomplished. Let us lay hold on it by uniting with the apostle in his prayer for us. In physical weakness there is misery and inefficiency; but in health and strength there is gladness and effici ency. There is just this difference be tween the spiritual and the unspiritual Christian. One is miserable and inefficient, while the other is rejoicing in God always and strong for every good word and work. Let no one despair of this attainment; for God is "able to do exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think, according to the power that worketh in us. Independent.

Hence the angel, who announced to Joseph His immediate coming, said: " And thou shalt call His name Jesus; for He shall save His people from their sins;" and He Himself adds: "The Son of man is come to seek and to save that which is lost."

Webster defines the word "missionary" as "one who is sent upon a mission ; especially one sent to propagate religion." Does not Jesus Christ exactly answer to this definition ? that Sapores, the king of Persia, besieged the city of Nisibis, with every prospect of success. St. James, the holy bishop of the city, prayed God most earnestly to confound the enemy. In answer, there came an infinite number cf gnats, who so preyed upon the horses and their riders as to throw the army into great confusion. This insignificant insect caused Sapores to raise the siege, and under God saved the city. The weakest things, with God for their ally, are stronger than the mighticst armies contending against the right." In 1746, a French armament of forty ships of war, under the Duke D'Anville, was destined for the virtually papal conquest of New England. While this formidable fleet was expected, a day of fasting and prayer was observed by the churches of New England generally, and on the occasion, as Mr. Prince was officiating in the house of the Old South Church in Boston and praying most fervently that the dreaded calamity might be averted, a sudden gust of violence, though the day till then had been perfectly calm and clear. He paused in his prayer, and looking around on the congregation with countenance of hope, again commenced, and with great supplicatory ardor besought the Almighty to cause that very wind to frustrate the object of their enemies. A tempest ensued, in which the greater part of the French fleet was wrecked. The Duke and his principal general committed suicide Many died with disease, thousands were drowned. A small remnant returned to France, without health and spiritless, and the enterprise was abandoned ferever ; while New England thus remained Protestant, instead of becoming Roman Catholic by then coming into the possession of France. The incentives to the exercise of true Christian courage, such as Paul expressed when he said, " If God be for us, who can be against us ?" are many and great. They are forcibly presented by Bishop Ken, who says,--
