WM. DOWNEY.—The many friends of the Rev. Wm. Downey in this Province and in Nova Scotia, will be glad to learn that his health has greatly improved, and that he hopes soon to be again at work at his beloved employ, of preaching the gospel and winning souls to Christ.

TRACEY STATION, S. Co.—Some time has passed since I have written anything for the INTELLIGENCER, and even now have nothing of interest to write. The churches of my pastorate, viz. (Fredericton Junction and Tracey Station) are moving along as usual, with regular services, and the attendance is fair. I am reminded now that another year's labor with these churches is drawing to a close, and reviewing the year I feel there is much to be grateful for, though the year has not been as visibly fruitful as he would have liked; but it may be difficult for us to tell what has been done, perhaps eternity alone will reveal it. I have spent almost four years with these churches. They have been the most pleasant years of my life, and I shall ever, with grateful memories, think of the people of Tracey Station and Fredericton Junction. I may here say that I am undecided as to what I shall do for another year. I have sometimes thought that perhaps it would be better for me and perhaps for the churches to make a change when this year is up. I do not believe that it is always best to remain in charge of any field too long. I do not say this because I am tired of the people or they of me, but because I believe it is generally best for the cause to change. I have no engagement for the coming year, and have no definite plans laid, but would like to do the will of God.

Yours, etc.,

GEO. W. FOSTER.

July 25, 1892.

John Howard.

"About the close of the year 1773," says Peter Bayne, "there might have been seen on the high-roads of the counties adjoining Bedford, England, a gentleman on horseback travelling at the rate of forty miles a day. At every town where he rested he visited the jail. There was no hurry in his motions; he never lost a moment; he never gave a moment too little to the business in hand; nothing escaped his eye, and there was no spot into which he did not penetrate. He went into places where the noisome and pestilential air compelled him to draw his breath short, where deadly contagion lurked, where physicians refused to follow him; unagitated, yet earnest, he measured every dungeon, explored every particular respecting fare, accommodation, and fees, inquired after the prevalence of disease, with the means adapted for its prevention. He rested not until he had gone east and west, until he had carried his researches over the jails of Britain and Europe, until he could credibly declare what was the state of the prisons of the world. That gentleman was John Howard."

We may not, like Howard, be called to devote ourselves exclusively to such philanthropic work. We must admit, however, that in all the chief cities and towns of our country the demand is urgent for Christian service in prisons. This missionary work is especially fitting on the Lord's Day. Were Christ now upon the earth in His visible presence, would He not commend those who are thus engaged on the Sabbath? When the task is rightly performed—done in the broad spirit of that charity in which He relieved human distress—surely the blessing bestowed upon the worker is far beyond any benefit he may have imparted. We are aware that much is being done in various parts of our country. In Nashville, Tenn., for example, Christian men and women regularly devote several hours each Sabbath to the visitation of prisoners. Similar service is freely rendered in many other places. In New York city no Sabbath passes without earnest Christian labor in the Tombs, Jefferson Market prison, Yorkville prison, Essex Market prison, Harlem prison, Morrisania prison, the County Jail, etc. How much better is it to spend the holy Sabbath in such ministrations than to waste it in frivolous amusements or needless self-indulgence!

Wherever the name of "the founder of modern philanthropy" shall be spoken, it cannot fail to kindle admiration for his exalted character. One has said: "It is pleasant to follow poets and painters through their career of elegant literature and art; but we feel ourselves to be in a far different presence, one that gives us inspiring and solemn views of human duty, as we track the footsteps of John Howard. He has something more serious to do than to gather flowers and echo back nature's sweet music; he has to trample on serpents, to rend asunder chains, and to let rays of light and love into the cells of the captive. Appropriate is the statue to him in St. Paul's London, with huge iron manacles and fetters under foot, and a great key in his hand. But, after all, Howard only walked at an humble distance in the footsteps of Him whom the Hebrew seer described as binding up the broken hearted, proclaiming liberty to the captives, and the opening of the prison doors to them that were bound. Howard's benevolence was but a reflected beam of His who gave Himself for the redemption of the race out of a bondage worse than Algerine. His beneficent course was only an outgrowth of the Gospel he embraced. He always set a high value on Sabbath privileges, and was exact and careful in his attendance on the means of grace. That he might neither increase the labor of his servants, nor prevent their attendance on public worship, he was accustomed to walk to the chapel at Bedford, where he attended when not engaged in philanthropic efforts abroad."

Ignorance of Our Own Land.

As to our scenery, we are rather better informed; and yet every year many thousands of un-American Americans go to Europe to see scenery infinitely inferior to our own, upon which they have never looked. We say there are no ruins in this country, and cross the ocean to admire crumbling piles less majestic and less interesting than remain in America. We read of famous gorges and defiles abroad, and are eager to see them; unknowing that in a desolate corner of the United States is the greatest natural wonder of the world—a canon in which all the rest of the world's famous gorges could be lost forever. And not one American in ten thousand has ever looked upon its grandeur.

Of course, we know the Sahara, for that is not American; but you will seek far to find anyone who is familiar with an American desert as absolute and as fearful. We are aware of our giant red-woods in California—the highest trees in the world, but did you ever hear of a petrified forest. Did you ever know that in one territory alone, we have the ruins of over fifteen hundred stone cities as old as Columbus, and many of them far older? Have you ever heard of towns here whose houses are three-story caves, hewn from the solid rock?—Eastern paper.

THE RELIGIOUS PAPER IN THE HOME.—There are some families who depend upon the secular newspapers and magazines for all the religious reading they have. It is as though a lawyer should rely on these same sources for his legal reports or a physician for his latest medical intelligence. No lawyer or physician underrates the secular press, but no one of them is so unintelligent and unenterprising as to depend on it for his professional information. The religious paper is a factor needed in every family to supplement the instruction of pastor and parent, to give information as to church-life and missions, to keep one informed as to temperance and educational work, Sabbath-school efforts, and the religious life and thought and activity of the day.

It is only a few days since that a secular newspaper, one of the papers most widely circulated in this region, said in regard to Spurgeon, perhaps the most widely known and useful minister in the Christian Church of this century, that he had not been heard of for twenty-five years. In all probability not by those who have read that paper although they have had minute information as to every event in the political and commercial, sporting and criminal world with amplified details. And yet the religious papers have had something of his magnificent work and words almost incessantly as he has sought to lead the world out of its sins and sorrows to Christ.

What a misfortune to any person or any family to look out in the world and get glimpses of it only through the columns of the secular newspaper. He will learn of commerce, politics, war, crime, literature, but only the faintest intimations will come to him of the work being done, and of the workers doing it, to bring the world to Christ. As truly as the artist needs the companionship of artists and the influence of the art-gallery, so as to see the effects produced by others, the Christian and the Christian family need the help that comes from communion with kindred souls, with loving hearts and consecrated minds in the Church of Christ to-day.—Pres. Wit.

THE SCARLET FEVER epidemic in London is severely taxing the hospital accommodation. On Tuesday there were nearly 2,500 patients, in the six hospitals set apart for their reception, the great majority being children. Notwithstanding the scarlet-fever epidemic and excessive mortality from diphtheria and measles, the death-rate of London last week was very low. Four deaths from small-pox were recorded, and three from influenza.

The Salvation Army funds are in a bad way in London. Of the £30,000 asked and expected by General Booth for his great schemes, only £4,000 have come in. An appeal is issued by influential friends.

THE KING OF DENMARK, who is fond of travelling incog., during a recent visit to Hamburg bought several expensive presents for the queen. Discovering, when he came to settle the bill, that he had not enough money, the poor monarch found himself at once suspected of swindling and put down as a common sharper. A hotel official had to be summoned by telephone before the housekeeper could be pacified.

SUNDRIES.—New York has 157 millionaires. . . . Washington officials believe that there is a vast underground ocean in Dakota. . . . In the Old Testament only one woman's age is recorded, that of Sara, Abraham's wife. . . . The oldest building in the world is the tower of London. It antedates Caesar's conquests. . . . There are now in India 573 newspapers and periodicals published in sixteen different languages of India. . . . The deepest mine in the world is the rock salt mine near Berlin, which is 4,175 feet deep. . . . The elephant's sense of smell is so delicate that when in a wild state it can scent an enemy at a distance of 1,000 yards. . . . Kansas has four cities in which the vote of the women is larger than that of the men. One entire set of councilmen is women. . . . It is estimated that over 100,000,000 of people now speak the English language, over 69,000,000 German and over 41,000,000 French. . . . Ceylon has a spider which spins a yellow web, the threads of which are almost as large as buttonhole twine. Its webs are often from six to eight feet across. . . . The three tallest trees in the world are believed to be a sequoia near Stockton, Cal., which is 325 feet high, and two eucalypti in Victoria, Australia, estimated to be 485 and 450 respectively. . . . A gas engine that runs at the rate of 540 revolutions a minute has been made in England.

All Sorts.

Philadelphia has nearly 400 miles of street railways.

The percentage of women who successfully pass the examination for government positions is greater than that of men.

The magnitude of the railroad business may be imagined from the fact that it gives employment to one in every twenty-four men in the United States, and whose prosperity is one-sixth of the national wealth.

A Kansas newspaper man wrote a communication to a rival editor calling him an ass, and then signed it, "yours fraternally."

The largest farm in the world is said to be in Louisiana. It is one hundred by twenty-five miles, and embraces one million acres. It cost $50,000 to fence it.

The vitality of the snail is remarkable; one that had been glued to a card in the British Museum four years came to life upon being immersed in warm water; some specimens kept by a naturalist revived after they had apparently been dead for fifteen years.

It has been settled by actual tests that a cablegram can be sent to London from the New York Exchange and an answer be received in four minutes. Ordinarily, the time is much longer; but on this occasion a special effort was made, with the above remarkable result.

An enterprising Northern man who has been down in Florida on a business trip says that they have three kinds of time in that state—sun time, standard time, and behind time; and that business is generally gone on the latter time.

Thomas A. Edison has taken out more patents than have been given to any other inventor in the United States, and probably in the world. He is credited at the Patent Bureau in Washington with more than 600 inventions, mostly in electrical appliances, and during one week eight sets of letters-patent were issued in his name. It is said that so great is the proportion of patents taken out in Connecticut that one citizen out of every 700 is an inventor.

Queen Victoria has a number of Indian domestics in her household, whom of late years she has been in the habit of taking with her on her various trips to the Continent, to the no small inconvenience of the officers who have to make all the arrangements. These Orientals have to travel by themselves, with separate saloon and meals. At the stopping stations they cannot go to the buffets with the suite and the other servants, but require that refreshments be served them in the train. Special arrangements have to be made at the hotel at a good deal of trouble and expense. They have practically no duties, and are by many considered perfectly useless.

His name was Samuel. He had a younger sister named Jessie, who went to a fashionable boarding school. He remarked that he hoped she wouldn't acquire any of the affections so often learned in those places, but she did. She wrote him a letter signed "Jessie." Instead of Jessie. He replied as follows:—

"DEAR SISTER JESSIE:—Your welcome letter received. Mamma and papa are well. Aunt Mary and Uncle George started for Glasgow yesterday. I have bought a new horse you ought to see it; it is a beauty. Its name is Maudie. Your affectionate brother, 'SAMUEL.' Her next letter was signed 'Jessie.'"

JEWS.—There were in the British elections twelve Jewish candidates—four Conservatives, four Liberal-Unionists and four Liberals.

Literary Notes.

Mr. Bok has succeeded in unearthing a quantity of unpublished material by Henry Ward Beecher, which will shortly be published in a series of articles in The Ladies' Home Journal. The material is especially valuable since it deals with a range of topics both varied and timely, and will advance, for the first time in print, the great preacher's views on a number of such interesting questions as home government, woman in public and private life, politics, etc., etc.

THE THIRD MILLION.—It is not often that a publication passes the millionth milestone in its circulation, but H. L. Hastings' lecture on The Inspiration of the Bible, delivered before the Annual Convention of the Y. M. C. A. Association of Massachusetts in 1881, before 1892 had reached a circulation of more than two millions, and is still marching on more rapidly than ever; Mr. John K. Hastings having when in London issued a single edition of more than five hundred thousand copies in English for circulation throughout the British Empire. Persons who are interested in seeing a lecture on the Bible which circulates by millions among skeptics and Christians, which has been translated into more than a dozen languages, and which has been commended by the most eminent Christian workers on both sides of the Atlantic, should send a few shillings to H. L. Hastings, 47 Cornhill, Boston, for samples of this and the various other fine print pamphlets included in the ANTI-INTIDEL LIBRARY.

What I saw at Edgecombe's. 192 and 194 Queen Street, Fredericton.

RULES AND MAXIMS WHICH PAYE THE WAY TO SUCCESS.

In walking through the beautiful and very spacious establishment the other day to see the recent additions, and improvements Mr. Edgecombe had been making, "I need not say that I was both astonished and delighted with the changes made." I noticed, framed and hung up in a conspicuous place the following printed rules where all passing might read them. These had been there for over a quarter of a century, and they certainly commend themselves to old and young.

"OBSERVE."

Put everything in its proper place.
Use everything for its proper purpose.
Do everything at its proper time.

REMEMBER?

That nothing can be done without "Order," "Promptitude," and "Perseverance." And any thing that is worth doing, "is worth doing well." Also, remember that, "Whatever man has done, man may do." "Punctuality is the soul of Business." "Waste not, want not." "Never spare attention to a small thing, as from matters small, larger matters spring." Above all, "Do unto others as ye would they should do to you."

Mr. Edgecombe's business has assumed large proportions—he has now one of the largest and without doubt, the finest, and most modern store in the Maritime Provinces.—Indeed, we know of but one this side of Montreal or Boston larger; and that has not nearly so wide a front or so much ground floor. And in looking over this code of "rules and maxims" it seemed to me as if every one was a stepping stone to success, each seemed to be a rung in the ladder on which friend Edgecombe has climbed to his present high business position. Just read them over or commit them to memory, if you will. There is a stimulus in them to urge you on to the accomplishment of any worthy object. Guided and encouraged by such rules as these, and actuated by the rule of all other rules—the golden one—you cannot help but succeed in the attainment of any "good thing." There is a sermon in every one of them and using the Proprietor of this House as an illustration—we think he must have committed them very carefully to memory years ago—and his large and prosperous business establishment today, is the outcome of it—"not the finale" for the prosperous business must grow—it cannot stand still or go back and we hope to see greater success in the near future.—Advt.

Deaths.

ARTIST.—At Fredericton Junction, S. Co., on the 20th inst., after a brief illness, Carrie, beloved wife of William Artist, aged 35 years. She leaves a sorrowing husband and two children, with a large number of other relatives and friends to mourn their loss. She was respected and beloved by all who knew her. Funeral services by the writer.—G. W. FOSTER.

DOWNEY.—At Kary, Kings Co., on the 18th inst., after a severe and lingering illness, Mr. Samuel Downey, aged 77 years. Owing to the widow being prostrated with a severe attack of La Grippe no funeral service was held at the time of the burial, but as soon as she recovers sufficiently to be present a memorial service will be held.

BOONE.—At Tracey Station, S. Co., on the 15th inst., of typhus fever, Violetta Boone, aged 17 years and three days. Our dear young sister sought the Saviour about two years ago, and united with Tracey Station F. C. E. church, of which she was a faithful and consistent member at the time of her death. She leaves a sorrowing mother, one sister and two brothers to mourn their loss, which we believe is her eternal gain.—G. W. FOSTER.

SINCLAIR.—At Lincoln, S. Co., on the 20th inst., Mrs. W. M. Sinclair, aged 74 years. Sister Sinclair was a member of Rusagornis F. C. E. church and marked for her faithfulness and integrity. She was beloved by her family and all who knew her, and both the family and the church deeply mourn their loss.—G. W. FOSTER.
