INTERNATIONAL LESSON

First Quarter-Lesson XII.-March 20. REVIEW.

The review is one of the most difficult and yet, when well done, one of the most important and interesting lessons in the quarter. It is not a mere going over the separate lessons as so many distinct subjects, with a few remarks or each. It is necessary to look at the section of history we have been studying, as a whole, to obtain a clear idea of its facts, its tendencies, and its teachings. To study rocks and water, and trees and flowers is one thing. It is another to see them together as a landscape. It is not possible to get all there is for us to learn unless we study in both ways. The Place in History. During the lessons of this quarter, several great and well-known events took place in the world, and it makes the Bible history more vivid to connect its story with great secular events. The Assyrian monuments, discovered in the old site of Nineveh, and the Babylonian cylinders and bricks, are throwing great light on this period. It was during the three great assaults on Jerusalem by Nebuchadnezzer, that the seven wise men (including Solon and Periander) flourished in Greece (about B. C. 590). Rome was founded (B. C. 753) not long after Isaiah was born. Numa Pompilius (715) reigned while Isaiah was prophesy ing. The famous three Horatii. who decided the supremacy of Rome by overcoming the three Albanian

Miss Wallace, agent of the British Women's Temperance Association, delivered an address on the "open door" of responsibility and opportunity which stood before all in these days in connection with Gospel temperance work. She repre sented with pathetic power the degradation wrought by drunkenness, drawing largely on her own experience in rescue work in Glasgow for facts and graphic incidents. And this was saved from becoming mere declamation by the speaker relating of the Building are reported separately. simply that which she herself had seen and heard.
