Robert T. Ballentine, postmaster of Westfield Centre, on Sunday night frustrated a diabolical attempt to wreck the Canadian Pacific express. He was awakened by the flickering of a light in the direction of the railroad. Thinking it was a fire caused by a spark from a passing locomotive, he hastily dressed and hurried down to extinguish the blaze. The night was quite dark. When he reached the track he found, within a few feet of a culvert, two large planks laid across the rails in such a way as to wreck the first train that came along. Almost at the instant he noticed the planks he heard a locomotive whistle in the distance, and as he threw the first plank from the rails a bullet from a revolver whizzed past his head. A second later, he removed the other plank, and jumping over the fence fell to the ground, where he lay unconscious for some minutes. The C. P. R. authorities are leaving no stone unturned to hunt down and bring to justice the miscreants in question, who are believed to be professional train robbers.

A man was found dead at Little Harbor, near New Glasgow, last Sunday. The body was uninjured but the flesh was gone from the face; the eyes were out, and the scalp and hair gone from the skull. There was nothing to show how he came there, or where he came from. How he lost his life is a mystery.

You Can't get too Much

Of a good thing. This is eminently the case with Polson's Nerviline, and great pain cure. It is an honest remedy, for it contains the most powerful, the purest, and most certain pain subduing remedies known to medical science. It is honest, for it does all it claims to do. It is honest, because it is the best in the world. It only costs 25 cents to try it, and you can buy a bottle at any drug store. Nerviline cures toothache, neuralgia, pain in the back and side. All pains are promptly relieved by Polson's Nerviline.

The Ontario Government crop bulletin says the excessive drought, especially over the large western area, has caused a great falling off in some crops. Considerable damage was done by grasshoppers in midland counties. The fall-sown crops show the best average; spring wheat very poor; hay good; oats and barley under the average; corn fair; peas and roots poor; average crop fruit, except in the east; fall apples up to the average.

Kirby Barnum, who arrived at Minneapolis on Friday from a dangerous trip down Thief River, brought news of extensive forest fires in that region. Half his journey was made between flaming trees. The fire crossed Thief River and levelled the forest to a width of sixty miles. Barnum's boat caught fire several times. He met many small parties of Indians fleeing from the fire. There has probably been much loss of life. The fire was started by a man who wanted to get some hay land from the government but was refused it. The people of Thief River Falls threaten to lynch him if he is caught.

Roy Foster, aged 46, a well known citizen of Burlington, was shot and killed by three unknown highwaymen near Billerica Centre, late Sept. 12. Foster was a milkman and was returning home in his team from Boston. About four miles south of Billerica, he was chased and overtaken by the men in the wagon. They pulled up his team and with drawn revolvers compelled him to give up all his money. He was then released and drove towards Billerica for assistance. Weapons were secured and the party drove back to the scene of the robbery. The highwaymen were overtaken and a lively firing ensued. When the firing ceased, Foster was found lying in the middle of the road dead from a bullet wound in his head. The highwaymen escaped. Foster leaves a wife and five children.

AN OPEN LETTER

From a Prominent Physician.

A REMARKABLE CURE OF CONSUMPTION IN ITS LAST STAGES—IS THIS ONCE DREAD DISEASE CONQUERED?—IMPORTANT FACTS TO ALL SUFFERING FROM DISEASED OR WEAK LUNGS.

ELMWOOD, Ont., Aug. 21st, 1894.

DEAR SIR:—I wish to call your attention to a remarkable cure of consumption. In March, 1893, I was called in my professional capacity to see Miss Christina Koester, of North Brant, who was then suffering from an attack of inflammation of the left lung. The attack was a severe one, the use of the lung being gone from the effect of the disease. I treated her for two weeks when recovery seemed assured. I afterwards heard from her at intervals that the progress of recovery was satisfactory. The case then passed from my notice until June, when I was again called to see her, her friends thinking she had gone into consumption. On visiting her I found their suspicions too well founded. From robust health she had wasted to a mere skeleton, scarcely able to walk across the room. She was suffering from an intense cough, and expectoration of putrid matter, in fact about a pint each night. There was a burning hectic fever with chills daily. A careful examination of the previously diseased lung showed that its function was entirely gone, and that in all probability it was entirely destroyed. Still having hopes that the trouble was due to a collection of water around the lung I asked for a consultation, and the following day with a prominent physician of a neighboring town again made a careful examination. Every symptom and physical sign indicated the onset of rapid consumption and the breaking down of the lungs. Death certainly seemed but a short time distant. A regretful experience had taught me the uselessness of the ordinary remedies used for this dread and fatal disease, and no hope was to be looked for in this direction. I had frequently read the testimonials in favor of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in wasting diseases, but not knowing their composition hesitated to use them. Finally, however, I decided to give them a trial, and I am free to say that I only used them at a stage when I knew of a absolutely nothing else that could save the patient's life. The test was a most severe one and I must admit an unfair one, as the patient was so far gone as to make all hope of recovery seem impossible. A very short time, however, convinced me of the value of Pink Pills. Although only using an ordinary soothing cough mixture along with the pills, within a week the symptoms had abated so much that it was no longer necessary for me to make daily calls. Recovery was so rapid that within a month Miss Koester was able to drive to my office, a distance of about six miles, and was feeling reasonably well, except for weakness. The expectoration had ceased, the cough was gone and the breathing in the diseased lung was being restored. The use of the Pink Pills was continued until the end of October, when she ceased to take the medicine, being in perfect health. I still watched her case with deep interest, but almost a year has now passed and not a trace of her illness remains. In fact she is as well as ever she was and no one would suspect that she ever had been ailing, to say nothing of having been in the clutches of such a deadly disease as consumption. Her recovery through the use of Pink Pills after having reached a stage when other remedies were of no avail is so remarkable that I feel myself justified in giving the facts to the public, and I regret that the composition of the pills is not known to the medical profession at large in order that their merit might be tested in many more diseases and their usefulness be thus extended. I intend giving them an extended trial in the case of consumption, believing from their action in the case, (so well marked) that they will prove a curative in all cases where a cure is at all possible—I mean before the lungs are entirely destroyed.

Yours truly,

J. EVANS, M. D.

Literary Notes.

The value of Littell's Living Age as an educator cannot be easily overestimated. It would be an interesting study, were it possible, to trace its exact influence during the fifty years of its existence in developing a refined and catholic taste. And it increases in value as it grows older. Recent issues contain some magnificent articles, proving it still the well-nigh friend of the intelligent and educated people of this busy age. No better opportunity was ever offered for subscribing to this magazine, for the publishers will send absolutely free the weekly issues for the remainder of this year to every new subscriber now remitting for the year 1895. Choke-Damp.

A curious story, illustrating the preservative properties of choke-damp, comes from China. In the province of Anhui a party of miners recently struck an ancient shaft, where history records that a great catastrophe occurred 400 years ago. The miners, on reaping the old shaft, came upon upward of 170 bodies of the former workers, lying where they had been overcome with foul gas four centuries back. The corpses were as if those of yesterday, quite fresh looking, and not decayed in any way. The faces were like those of men who had only just died. On an attempt being made to move them outside for burial, they one and all crumbled away, leaving nothing but a pile of dust and the remnants of the stronger parts of their clothing. The miners, terrified, fled from the spot, and though there were valuable deposits of coal in the shaft nothing would induce the superstitious men to return to their work.

AN ENGINE DRIVER'S STORY.

"Two years ago my wife was sick in bed a good part of the time. Often she could not speak on account of distressing her stomach which was so very weak. For three weeks she was unable to eat, and lived only upon beef tea injections by the doctor. She suffered continually, and the gas arising from her stomach would seem to press against her heart and cause her to faint away. If she happened to be up and about the house at these times she would drop right in the middle of the floor. She tried hot water until she almost destroyed the linings of her stomach. One of the best physicians in town attended her regularly and during her last suffering called upon her three times per day. She had tried every kind of dyspepsia cure and patent medicine, but all in vain. Finally as a last resort she induced me to get a bottle of Groder's Syrup. After using half a bottle she commenced to feel better and by the time she had used two bottles she was around the house. She kept on taking it until she used seven bottles when she considered herself cured. She is now a well woman and frankly acknowledges she owes her life to Groder's Syrup. As for myself I found last spring my food distressing me and my appetite very poor. My wife induced me to try the above medicine and after using a couple of bottles my trouble ceased entirely. We now keep this medicine in the house continually and whenever we eat anything unusually hearty we invariably turn to Groder's Syrup and find ourselves relieved at once."
