WEDNESDAY, JAN. 24th, 1894.

Free Baptist ministers and churches in this Nova Scotia Conference are interested in the notice and appeal printed in another column. It is certainly such a matter as deserves the attention of all, and we hope to hear that there has been a general and liberal response to the call.

Such an instance as the following is so rare amongst the ministers of the established church in England that we are glad to give it place. A Nonconformist was to be interred in the parish churchyard. The clergyman of the Church of England wrote to the Nonconformist pastor regretting that really unavoidable absence com pelled him to leave the service to his "brother minister" alone, that the clerk and sexton had been directed to show all possible courtesy, that the church would be open in case of bad weather, and the hope was expressed that the visitors would feel perfectly free to use it as they would their own place of worship. This is an indication of the change that is coming about in England. There are episcopal ministers in this country, some not very far away, who might find a lesson ininter-denominational courtesy in this of a little book which we have read with much interest. He was the first Baptist missionary in Bengal, preceding Carey, and afterward his companion in labour and suffering. He has not been much written about, and is but little known, but he was a most devout soul and did heroic service. The first convert of the English Bap tist mission, was won to Christ by him. He was an eccentric character in some respects, and often misunderstood, and has, therefore perhaps, not been given the place in mission history which his ability, devotion, zeal and success deserve. The author of this biography, Rev. A. C. Chute, pastor of the First Baptist church, Halifax, has done his work admirably. It is for sale at the Baptist Book and Tract Society, Halifax, Price 35cts.

brewers are the advance guard. If these gentleman have been in the dark about the unwisdom of their course, they cannot any longer be. Receiving the approval of the liquor traffic's paper should make it clear to them that they are on the wrong track. The men whose utterances receive the endorsement of rum men are wrong-very wrong. When ministers, by what they say or refrain from saying, are regarded as approving of anything which the rum traffic does, they are verily guilty of unfaithfulness.

" Labourers."

The churches have been praying the Lord of the harvest to "send forth labourers " having in mind, especially ministers. We trust the prayers have been many and fervent, and that the people are yet, day after day, pleadng with God to send the needed men. The exhortation of our Lord to pray for labourers is an exhortation to His followers in all ages, to the end of time. So long as there is a harvest to be reaped, so long will it be necessary to pray for reapers and other harvest workers. "The field is the world. Many millions are in sin. They must o-day were increased an hundred fold there would still be need for more to quickly garner the precious harvest which awaits them. Let there be daily supplication in homes and places of secret prayer for labourers.

But it is not for ministers only we are exhorted to make prayer. Others than ministers are included in the word "labourers." In the old-time harvest field there were many different kinds of labourers. While some cut the standing grain, others gathered and bound it into sheaves; others set up the sheaves into shocks, and others loaded the shocks on wains to be carried to the garner. Not only the men went out into the harvest field, but the women and the children. have "no interest in missions," and Those who could not do anything else to those also who, while saying nothing things to make you think they are gleaned after the regular harvesters. declare it so emphatically by their hardships. I never feel them as such. The harvest time was one of universal failure to support missions, Zion's activity. And is not this the idea that | Herati speaks these plain words -is to be before us when we pray Ministers of the gospel are necessary, and we ought to have the number conscience might not slumber quite so multiplied tenfold. But ministers alone will never convert the world. We must all be laborers-not only all Christian men, but the women and children too, must work, and help to save the souls that are perishing. Nor is it so much improved methods many who profess to be followers of we need. The church was never so fully organized for work as it is to to you that you are to follow Jesus day. Indeed, the danger of this time of the possibilities of self-deception in and go where He goes. That is very is that too much reliance is placed in organization, the necessity for personal consecrated activity being lost sight of. There is no intimation in the teachings of our Lord that in later times there would be need of new and improved methods of evangelization. The old way of preaching the gospel, are here for and that is what Jesus of calling men to repentance and Christian life. How well I remember Miss Coombs. That drive in the

to observe the law ! The prohibition vote has evidently stirred them up. They "will pledge themselves" &c, &c. The pledges of men in the rum traffic are not worth the paper they are written cn. The professions they are making just now are a trick. They think to deceive the people into beieving that their bad trade can be carried on decently and safely. But not many will be deceived. There is ust one thing that ought to be done with the rum traffic-annihilate it. -It is reported that Rev. G. O. Gates of the Germain St. Baptist Church, St. John, is desired by the Baptist Church in Victoria, B. C. Mr. Gates seems very happily situated where he is.

The inference is that some Western preachers have the bad habit rebuked. Let us hope that no preachers in this part of the world will deserve like rebuke.

Those who are in the habit of complaining that the outlay for foreign missions is too great, and who often ask, "Do missions pay ?" may be helped by being reminded that the increase in the membership of christian churches in heathen lands is thirty times greater than at home in porportion to the number of ministers employed.

Thos. A. Edison, the great inventor, is a total abstainer. In conversation with him about it, Miss Willard said, "May I inquire whether it was home influence that made you so?" and he replied, "No, I think it was because I always felt that I had a better use for my head." And thereupon she asks: "Who can measure the loss to the world if that wonderful instrument of thought that has given us so much of light and leading in the practical mechanism of life had become sodden with drink instead of electric with original ideas?' '

The Catholic papers of Quebec Province continue to say uncomplimentary things of Mr. Papineau, who recently joined the Presbyterian church, and against Father Chiniquy and others who have dared become Protestants. If hard words, vile charges and viler insinuations could destroy these men they would be utterly destroyed. How would it do for the Protestant papers to make like attacks on Sir John Thompson and others who have become Catholics ? What a howl about intolerance would go over the country.

The people in your church who sulk unless they are constantly petted are not much good to the church -except to try its faith and patience.
