INTERNATIONAL LESSON.

Third Quarter—Lesson I.—Oct. 4.

SOLOMON ANOINTED KING.

—1 Kings 1:28-39.

Read chapter 1. Commit verses 28-39.

GOLDEN TEXT.—Keep the charge of the Lord thy God, to walk in his ways.—1 Kings 2:3.

SOLOMON. His name means "The Peaceful." Nathan called him Jedidiah, a "Beloved of Jehovah."

2. He was born about B. C. 1035 or 1034, in Jerusalem, and was nineteen or twenty years old when he was called to become king.

3. His father was David, and his mother Bathsheba. Solomon was their first son after their legal marriage, and he had three younger brothers.

4. He inherited from his mother sagacity, quickness of judgment, judicial insight, and perhaps some measure of sensual weakness; from his father, thoughtfulness, literary tastes, the skill of ruling, and an interest in religion.

5. He was placed under the care and training of the prophet Nathan, a faithful, pure, and wise teacher.

6. On the other hand, he was brought up in luxury and wealth. The influences of the court were as bad around him as about Absalom, and he had to resist all the temptations of a flattered youth.

Practical. Almost every child born into a Christian family has greater opportunities and blessings than even Solomon had. All Solomon's wisdom and wealth could not bring him so many advantages, and blessings as a poor child may have in this age. How much God and your parents expect of you. Whether you shall be the blessing of your parents' old age or bring their gray hairs in sorrow to the grave depends upon your conduct.

HIS ACCESSION TO THE THRONE.—Three influences brought Solomon to the throne. (1) His inheritance as the son of David. (2) His fitness for the place and the work. (3) His choice and adoption by the people. David was growing old, and the infirmities of age were upon him. The Jewish people rarely outlived the threescore and ten of man's allotted time. Indeed Solomon and Manasseh were the only kings of Judah who survived the age of sixty. The question of David's successor must have been in every one's thoughts.

Adonijah, the son of Hagith, a man between thirty and forty, had become, by the death of Absalom, the heir to the throne, if the succession were determined by strict descent. Like his elder half-brother, he had no fitness for the throne, intellectually or otherwise. He had for some time effected regal state in chariots, horses, &c. Taking advantage of David's increasing feebleness, he resolved to make himself king. When Adonijah thought his project ripe he invited his adherents to a great banquet in the royal garden according to Josephus, and probably near Siloam. Here the cry was raised, "Long live King Adonijah." Joab, the mighty warrior, and Abiathar, one of the high priests were among the abettors. Nathan, the prophet, learning of the proceedings of Adonijah, immediately set to work to defeat the plan. He informed Bathsheba of what was going on, and she went to David and told him; while she was yet speaking Nathan himself came in and confirmed her report.

Then King David said, call me Bathsheba, who had retired before Nathan entered, in accordance with Oriental ideas of propriety. So when Bathsheba was again sent for (v. 28) Nathan retired (v. 32) and the king swore, and said. The king with his old time energy and rapidity, from his sick-bed, issues his orders. Hath, redeemed my soul out of all distress. The repeated deliverance out of straits and danger was one of the most remarkable features of David's life, and it is no wonder that he repeatedly commemorates it. Call me Zadok the priest, and Nathan the prophet and Benaiah the son of Jehoiada. The combination of the high priest, the prophet, and the captain of the body-guard would show the people that the proceedings had the king's sanction. The servants of your Lord. The royal body-guard. Cause Solomon... to ride upon mine own mule. The Rabbin told us that it was death to ride on the king's mule without his permission. Bring him down to Gihon, anoint him there. The anointing was the most solemn portion of the ceremonies connected with the installation of a new king. Blow ye with the trumpet, to proclaim to all that Solomon was king. That he may come up to Zion and the palace. And sit upon my throne as David's partner and successor. He reigned about six months as co-regent. Benaiah, the commander-in-chief of Solomon's army, in place of Joab. Amen, so let it be. Make his throne greater than the throne of my lord King David. Every wise father is glad to see his son do better than he himself has done. And all the people said, God save King Solomon. They accepted him as their king. The attempt of Adonijah was thus nipped in the bud. He himself was permitted to live, so long as he behaved in a proper manner.

The Ratification by the People. In 1 Chronicles 28 and 29 there is an account of a great assembly of the princes, the army officers, the statesmen, and the Jewish leaders, called by David. To them he told his plans for the temple, presented Solomon to them as their king, and entreated both him and the people to keep all his commandments with a perfect heart and a willing mind, "that ye may possess this good land, and leave it for an inheritance for your children after you forever." The leaders accepted of Solomon as king, and confirmed their allegiance by religious services, sacrifices, and a great feast of thanksgiving.

Practical. 1. We are called to a greater and grander kingdom than Solomon's.

2. There is only one condition of true success, and that is wholehearted service of God and desire for righteousness.

3. The stone that is fitted for the wall will find its place in the wall.

4. The dethronement of the false suggests: (1) Vain thoughts are to be expelled by the incoming of what is wise and good. (2) Self-will is to be conquered by a nobler and stronger will. (3) Unworthy affections are to be overcome by a worthy love. (4) Error is to be subdued by truth. (5) Care is to be extirpated by prayer. (6) Evils reigning in society are to be overthrown by what is nobler than they.

THE CLOSING OF SOME CAREERS AND THEIR LESSONS FOR US.—First. Adonijah. Adonijah, talented, beautiful, ambitious, uncontrolled, and passionate, was allowed by Solomon to go free, after the failure of his attempt to be king. But soon he was plotting again, and was executed. His life was a failure. He was a spoiled child. There is no greater unkindness and injustice to a child than over-indulgence.

Second. Joab is the type of a worldly man. He was very talented, and accomplished much in a military way for the nation. He was headstrong, overbearing and self-willed, often cruel, and letting nothing stand in the way of the accomplishment of his purposes.

Third. Shimei was another who was executed by Solomon. He had cursed David and railed bitterly at him, as he was flying from Absalom.

Fourth. Abiathar was the elder high priest. He had been good to David in his early youth, and had been true to him ever since. Zadok a younger man, had been joined with him, and in later years had gained the greater prominence and power.

THE OUTLOOK; THE POSSIBILITIES; THE IDEAL.—Psa. 72. Solomon stood on the threshold of a great, prosperous, well-organized kingdom, the most hopeful the world had seen. It was Solomon's opportunity to make this kingdom the ideal kingdom of the world, to which all kingdoms should look for a model; which should proclaim the one true God, the true worship of God, perfect righteousness in rulers and people, and the blessings and happiness which God would give to all who would thus serve him and bless men.

Righteousness and Justice. Vs. 1, 2. These not only characterize the divine government, but any government is good just in proportion as it embodies these.

Peace. V. 3. The necessary result of righteous government. Peace includes prosperity, for prosperous times naturally follow good government and righteousness between men. In Christ's kingdom is peace with God, peace with men, peace with ourselves.

W. C. T. Union.

OUR MOTTO.—If God be for us who can be against us.

Tower House, Leicester, England.

The first person in England to start a home for inebriates was Mrs. Theobald. In the very early days of temperance agitation she was an eloquent lecturer in the three kingdoms. It seemed by a mere accident that she was led to undertake her present work. She met in a railway carriage a young lady who had formed the habit of taking drugs, and whose husband had sent her away from home. Mrs. Theobald took the woman to her own home in Leicester, where she watched over her with sisterly love, and returned her cured and an earnest worker in the cause. In reply to what specific Mrs. Theobald used, she said, None; good food, firmness and love worked the cure. Later on she founded Tower House, Leicester, for ladies of the upper and higher classes who were suffering from the effects of alcohol indulgence and maladies of a kindred nature. The treatment combines great kindness with watchful and unremitting care. In all cases the drug or intoxicant is taken away at once, and there is no tampering with the scorpion. Sir Benjamin Ward Richardson, M. D., F. R. C. S., is the consulting physician and Mrs. Theobald is at the head of the establishment, which has received high praise from professional authorities as well as from those who have found a home and a cure in the simple treatment, which consists of love and watchful attention combined with a generous diet and amusements, and the entire absence of institutionalism.

Vile Trash.

There have come to our hand this week sample pictures from a book freely exposed for sale in some of the cities of the States and easily smuggled into this country. The responsibility must be awful resting upon the men who will write and print such injurious stuff. Any one aiding to bring such stuff into Canada is a traitor to his country, and the young person who would read the poison or be pleased with the pictures must be lost to decency. And yet it is all freely done. Let me utter a warning by asking a question in the language of a wise man: "Can a man take fire in his bosom and his clothes not be burned? Can one go upon coals, and his feet not be burnt?"

Armenia Still Suffers.

How fearfully sad the tale continues to be—murder and lust. It becomes really monotonous to be reading so often of the Vile Turk and the suffering Armenian. But the view is changed a little. Crete has now become the scene of brutal deeds on the part of the Sultan's soldiery. In his vice and bankruptcy the Sick Man of Europe seems to be laughing at the powers while he continues his work of blood and lust. 'The Rim's Horn' is not astray when it says, For the sake of humanity and for the sake of brotherhood, and for the sake of Christ, it is the imperative duty of Christendom to put a stop to the reign of terror and murderous lust which so long has prevailed in the Turkish domain.

Be A True Man.

Suffer me to appeal to the man in you to put down this base and cowardly talk about vice being a necessary evil, a necessity of our human life, that women should be told off by hundreds and thousands for a fate below the beasts. Whatever else is bound up with the progress of man, unmitigated cruelty to woman cannot be that something. There is a necessity in the nature of man as he is constituted. In the majority of men the love of a pure woman is a necessity; to hide her in his heart, to worship her in his soul, to know her in his home as the pure life-giver, this is a necessity with most men. Even if a man can't marry for years, there's no greater preservative than a pure attachment. But to take a woman and trample her under the feet of the animal that is in him, till he has trampled out all the divine functions of her womanhood, and left her a thing which he himself dares not think of in his better moments—this I say, in the name of your manhood and our womanhood, in the name of the God who made us, is not a necessity, and it is the devil's lie wherever it is called a necessity.—Elice Hopkins.

MY DUTY.

BELLEVILLE, N.B., June 6th 18

Dr. GATES—Meeting your agent to day reminded me of my duty.

Over two years ago he called on me when he introduced your syrup, then I was strongly opposed to patent medicines. A few weeks passed away, through overwork I was run down, so I tried your syrup and was greatly benefited by it, since then I have hardly been without it and consider it a great help in the home in time of sickness.
