science

Science is "knowing how." The only secret about Scott's Emulsion is years of science. When made in large quantities and by improving methods, an emulsion must be more perfect than when made in the old-time way with mortar and pestle a few ounces at a time. This is why Scott's Emulsion of cod-liver oil never separates, keeps sweet for years, and why every spoonful is equal to every other spoonful. An even product throughout.

In other emulsions you are liable to get an uneven benefit—either an over or under dose. Get Scott's. Genuine has a salmon-colored wrapper.

REVIEW.

GOLDEN TEXT.—The name of the Lord is a strong tower: the righteous runneth into it and is safe.—Prov. 18:10.

THE LIFE OF DAVID.

1. Birth. David was the son of Jesse, and was born in Bethlehem in Judah, about B. C. 1085. His mother's name is unknown. He had seven brothers (1 Sam. 16:10) and two elder sisters, whose names are given,—Zeruiah and Abigail (1 Chron. 2;16).

II. Natural Endowments. He had physical strength, beauty and attractiveness. He had natural abilities of a high order and great variety. He was a business man, statesman, warrior, musician and poet. There was a rare combination in him of all that was gentle, tender and mild, with exalted enthusiasm, noble aspirations, generous sentiments, most heroic daring, and invincible prowess, joined to open-heartedness, humbleness and absence of all pretension. He had the conditions of power over men.

III. Early Training. David's early training was the best for the work he had to do in life,—in a country home, religious and intelligent, amid daily duties that developed him physically as well as mentally, amid the influences of nature, of music, of meditation.

Wise Sayings. It requires great principles to secure our faithfulness in little duties, and every duty, however apparently insignificant, acquires a real grandeur when it is regarded in the light of those principles from which its fulfilment springs. The young man who despises labor carries with him into every walk in life one of the most dangerous temptations to crime.

IV. The Victory over Goliath, in the valley of Elah, when 20 or 21 years old. The fruit of previous training and choosing of good, and the means to larger duties.

V. Nine Years of Training and Trial. In the court of Saul for about two years David learned many lessons of culture, of self-restraint, of resistance to worldliness, of soldierly conduct and skill in the use of arms, the blessing and power of true friendship. Then for seven years more he was learning necessary lessons in exile. He learned the character and needs of the people, and their grievances. He learned men and how to govern men. His lessons in privation and humility counteracted the dangers of his court life. He gained a knowledge of the country. He gathered around him choice and heroic spirits, in preparation for his defense and conquests.

VI. David Becomes King of Judah for seven and a half years at Hebron. This was his preparation for the larger kingdom.

VII. David Becomes King over All Israel. He became king as all men attain their best life work,—(1) by the guiding providence of God, (2) by some kind of choice of the people, (3) by a right heart and persevering will.

1. David enlarged the kingdom.
2. He subdued the enemies that attacked him.
3. He organized the government.
4. He organized the army.
5. He arranged the services of religion.
6. He enlarged commerce, business and material prosperity.

VIII. David's sin makes an era in his life.

IX. His Repentance changed the very atmosphere of his later life.

X. There Were Two Streams flowing side by side; one from his sin, culminating in Absalom's rebellion, but felt to the end of his life and beyond; the other from his changed character, his penitence, and the new phase of his religious life. This stream gradually widened as the evil stream grew less. David spent much of his later years in preparing materials for the temple which his son was to build.

XI. Death and Burial of David. David died at the age of seventy, "full of days, riches and honor." He was buried at Jerusalem, in the tombs of the kings cut in the rocks under Mount Zion.

XII. Review of David's Character. David was a noble, brave, loving man, with strong passions, a warm heart, and a ready, generous hand; a devoted friend, attractive, bright, joyous, poetic, deeply religious and devotional, strong in faith, unselfish, and sincerely good. He fell into some of the vices of the age; he committed a great crime; he was too easy in his family government; but his repentance and public confession prove him to be at heart a true and godly man, one of the greatest and best men that ever lived. He was a great general, a great statesman, a great poet, a great organizer, a great man.

OUR MOTTO.—If God be for us who can be against us.

Seeking Notoriety.

BY LADY HENRY SOMERSET.

The most frequent public criticism upon leaders of organized groups for unpopular ends is that "they seek notoriety," and that it must be admitted that those who look upon us from an unfriendly angle of vision can hardly fail to receive this impression. But the position of one who has been placed at its head by a great association is unique. He must be known to the public if the association is to succeed. A scientist goes through the long and heavy task of experimentation, and rises to the level of his necessary element. The poet dwells far from the madding crowd; the novelist works his spell in secret; but the statesman, the politician, the philanthropist and the reformer have publicity as their inevitable habitant. It is their work to win the majority, to gather a host, to be themselves a part of humanity's unresting tidal wave. They can no more be isolated than the coral worker who helps to build the reef, or the beam of light that seeks to bless the sod. Around their personalities must cluster the purposes, plans and aspirations of their coadjutors. Every crystal has a nucleus, and every movement has a leader; it is not his fault, it is often his misfortune, but there he is. Those who do not like him will say that he seeks notoriety; those who believe in him will say that he is wisely using the means furnished to his hand by modern civilization, whereby the public thought may be permeated by the principles and plans to which he is devoted. In sending out the news of the society along the wires and by means of the press, he must permit his associates to include the news of his own movements, because the public will often read that, and be influenced by the reasons that lead him to be here and there, when his swift-moving eye would not be arrested by names that stand for less. In this fact is contained a certain stored-up electricity which lends momentum to the organism upon whose unity and enlargement, as the matrix of great principles, depends the incarnation those principles in custom and in law.

Therefore, the philanthropist or reformer, whether it be in the small or the large circle, must look upon the imputation of personal motives in all that he does, and especially in the spread of the propaganda with which his name has become inseparably allied, as a part of the price; for unto this end was he born, and for this purpose came he into the world. He cannot shirk the difficulties, he cannot avoid the painful imputations, he must bear the brunt and pay the price of the work he is doing, and the publicity into whose vortex, sink or rise? But that is a question of his own specific gravity. If he is borne upward by an inextinguishable faith in God, and that love for his brother which many waters can not quench, he shall rise above the swelling currents, and only when his work is over, he shall, after the long and stormy journey, be landed safe on Canaan's side.

That Dear Little Lady.

Dear Union Signal:—The above is the title given to Mrs. Esther Getz by the gentlemen forming the Board of St. Louis Fire Underwriters. It must be remembered this is not a term of affection, but the word dear is used in a money sense.

F. D. Hirschberg & Bro. were expelled from the Board of Fire Underwriters last November, after a fight of eleven months, because they employed a woman insurance agent. The W. C. T. U. and press took up the matter and by passing resolutions and printing facts kept the question before the public. They also helped Mrs. Getz to secure insurance. Recently the board felt the loss of trade and finally the expelled firm was reinstated with Mrs. Getz as agent. A motion passed at one of the board meetings to expunge the records showing the expulsion of the Hirshberg firm. Mr. Hirschberg said he did not wish this done as he was proud of the records. This is the most successful educational measure we have had along the line of human equality.

The fight has so materially helped the little lady that she has built a home, and the insurance papers on this home state this is the house "the board built." F. D. Hirschberg & Bro. deserve the thanks of every woman who has the good of our sex at heart. In spite of the fact that the determination of the firm to be just to woman might drive them out of business; in spite of the financial dangers they stood firm as a rock and refused to reenter the board until the woman was recognized as an agent. This stand was not taken for Mrs. Getz, but for principle.

In the correspondence with the board Mr. Hirschberg said: "Women are no longer exclusively relegated to the needle or boarding-house when thrown upon their own resources for support. They are now in almost every calling not requiring brute strength."

This ends the most bitter fight ever made on a woman in our city. May great success attend the "little lady."

Miss Clara Barton is taking a brief and much needed rest with friends in Germany, having left the relief work in Armenia in competent hands. She will return to Turkey in the autumn. Dr. Dwight, of Constantinople, writing of the splendid work done by Miss Barton says, "It is expected that the relief work will become more truly international and official. The Europeans have at last been convinced, from their own investigations, that horrible suffering will be ushered in with the winter. France is waking up; Germany is going to open orphan asylums under the protection of the government; Switzerland has organized relief committees; and England is making strenuous efforts to keep up supplies with a view to having means in the winter when the stress comes." America has already contributed at least three hundred thousand dollars, and Great Britain about the same amount.

The Largest School In The World.

Within a stone's-throw of Whitechapel, London, surrounded by some of the very worst slums, stands the largest school in the world. It is presided over by a peer of the realm, Lord Rothschild, who is regarded with love and admiration by every pupil, for he is indeed their good fairy. This school educates 3,500 children, belonging mostly to the poorest foreign Jews, and has a staff of one hundred teachers.

It is well known that this is Lord Rothschild's pet institution, and were it not for his munificent support the school would be unable to meet its vast expenditure. It is owing to his generosity that free breakfasts are given every morning to all children who wish to take them, no questions being asked. Again, he presents every boy with a suit of clothes and a pair of boots, and every girl with a dress and a pair of boots in the month of April, near the Jewish Passover.

An idea of the poverty of the children may be gleaned from the fact that not more than two per cent of them decline to avail themselves of this charity. A second pair of boots is offered in the month of October to every child whose boots are not likely to last during the approaching winter. It is scarcely necessary to state that few do not get them.

A very popular feature in the school is the savings-bank department, instituted by the kindly president. In order to encourage habits of thrift, he allows an interest of ten per cent per annum on all savings.—Tid Bits.

Severe colds are easily cured by the use of Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup, a medicine of extraordinary penetrating and healing properties. It is acknowledged by those who have used it as being the best medicine sold for coughs, colds, inflammation of the lungs, and all affections of the throat and chest. Its agreeableness to the taste makes it a favourite with the ladies and children.

She Ought to Know.

Having used Burdock Bitters for 15 years I cannot keep from recommending it to others. I have sold hundreds of bottles from my store, and as I keep other medicines I ought to know which sells best. It is a wonderful medicine.

Yours very sincerely,

DR. GATES:—Meeting your agent to day reminded me of my duty.

Over two years ago he called on me when he introduced your syrup, then I was strongly opposed to patent medicines. A few weeks passed away, through overwork I was run down, so I tried your syrup and was greatly benefited by it, since then I have hardly been without it and consider it a great help in the home in time of sickness.
