FORTY YEARS AGO.

"The Old Camp Meeting Times," as sung by B. S. Taylor

I wish I were a boy again in old camp-meeting times,
To hear old fashioned people sing their hallelujah rhymes,
And see the mourners at the bench, the pilgrims kneeling round,
Awaiting for the Holy Ghost to show the Saviour found.

Chorus.

Forty years ago! forty years ago!
I wish I was a boy again, as in the long ago;
Forty years ago! forty years ago!
Bless God for old camp-meeting times, forty years ago.

I'd like to be in church once more in old revival years,
Among the folks who still believe God listens with both ears;
With those who sang the loudest songs or prayed the longest prayer,
I'd go back with a willing heart could I once more be there.

I'd like to see the preacher's face above the bench again,
A-shining through his happy tears, like sunshine after rain,
And hear his "glory be to God," his wonderful "AMEN,"
When half a dozen anxious souls were truly born again.

O for one day of those past years, and of that day one hour
When good old Mother So-and-so was shouting with the power;
And men and women laughed and cried as she danced down the aisle,
A-shaking hands and blessing all in old camp-meeting style.

But now the church has gone away from old camp-meeting days,
And now the people of the church all pray in other ways;
The anxious seat has gone below the furnace fires to feed,
And when the preacher comes, no more the mourner's bench we need.

The Christian who has received the Holy Ghost has an intense, intimate communion with Christ, a personal and delightful friendship; Christ is to him the clearest and dearest person in the universe; his whole life is elastic with this buoyant desire of doing everything for Jesus, which transfigures duty and turns drudgery into delight.—Phillips Brooks.
