RIVERSIDE CAMP MEETING.

Riverside Camp Meeting was good, but the conditions were different than any previous year, brought about for several reasons, most of which were unavoidable. First, War—This condition is generally noticeable; it has brought about a feeling of semi-depression of spirit generally. This feeling cannot be shaken off, nor risen above even in a camp meeting. Thinking people cannot ignore the fact of its seriousness. One brother termed it as tameness in spiritual life and buoyancy, and reflected on the people repeatedly, only adding to the depression by his reflections. The food regulations had its effect, making it difficult to obtain articles of food for the people. There was no lack of patriotism, and very little murmuring or complaints, but the facts had their effect. Another unavoidable condition which affected the meeting through the week was that the people who are the strength and workers in this camp meeting were compelled to attend to their haying, and care of their farms, but despite even this, the evening attendance was good, made up of the people camping on the grounds, and from the near-by villages. Another thing that affected the meeting which possibly might have been avoided was the absence of several of our ministers for more or less of the time, which was a serious loss in spiritual power, and had a depressing effect on those who were present for the whole meeting. Brethren are apt to think that because we have an evangelist that they can work to greater profit at home at least for one Sunday, which is a mistake.

But the meeting was a success, at the week end and over Sunday every available room was filled, and the Sunday attendance was large, quite up to the average with former years, notwithstanding there were no excursion trains, and half of the week day train service has been cancelled.

This combination of hindering circumstances were overruled and an enjoyable and profitable camp meeting is recorded for 1918.

Brother Henderson proved himself an excellent preacher and worker and was highly appreciated by the brethren and the people generally. A large number were at the altar during the meeting and found victory. Brother Henderson preached twice daily, his sermons were strong, clear and forceful, carrying conviction, light and helpfulness to all hearts, and the unanimous expression of the people was that of highest appreciation. Brother and Sister Henderson sang several selections which were greatly enjoyed.

Brother J. F. Bullock was faithfully at his post as organist. He was assisted on the last Sunday by Ross Page, of Caribou, with his cornet. Brother H. S. and Sister Mullen won the appreciation of all as special singers. Evangelist F. W. Foster continues to hold his place in the hearts of the people at Riverside Camp Meeting, and is received with applause when he preaches. He preached the last Sunday morning in the Tabernacle, and led a large grove meeting at 1.30 p. m.

The meeting was a financial success, sufficient being contributed to cover expenses and the improvements that were made. Much credit is due Rev. C. S. Hilyard, the chairman of the Grounds Committee, for the improvements he made on the road leading from Robinson Village to the Camp Ground, and his preparation and management of the grounds during the meeting.

Much credit is also due Rev. H. C. Archer and Rev. I. F. Keirstead and their helpers in their management of the Hotel and rooms. There has never been a more difficult year to obtain supplies, and it was only met by much effort. We are also under obligations to Sister J. H. Coy for her part in obtaining money to purchase a cottage which will become the property of the Alliance.

We also appreciate the kindness of the manager of the B. & A. R. R. for stopping their trains at the camp grounds for the accommodation of those attending the services.

Everything regarding Riverside Camp Meeting can pass under the word, Good-Attendance—Preaching, order, attention to the messages, music and singing, spiritual and financial results, and weather excellent.
