

MISSIONARY CORRESPONDENCE.

Dear Highway:

I am pleased to read in your last issue, Jan. 31st, the first editorial, "The Highway a Weekly," and also the letter from Brother Burpee. I can endorse all that they say, especially that many holiness people want more religious and holiness literature than the semi-monthly Highway provides. I recall some of the saints I have known in the home land with their parlor centre table, well stocked with the holiness papers and books that had overflowed from their well filled book shelves.

Others, again, though affording only one paper, the Highway, would always have some religious books with attractive covers to adorn the parlor table. Too often these volumes were from enterprising agents who beguiled our holiness people into buying well bound expositions of Adventism or Russelism.

One good work Rev. Aaron Kinney did in his day was to introduce orthodox holiness books in many of the homes he visited. This same good work could easily be done on a larger scale by carefully chosen advertisements in the columns of our beloved Highway. Our people should be protected and guided in the selection of Christian literature. The natural medium for this protection and guidance is the Highway. I am not advocating secular advertising, but strictly orthodox religious literature, which, of course, includes holiness books, and hymn books such as are used in our churches. There are many new religious books constantly being published, some of which our people should avoid, while others may be read with profit, and would make good Christmas or birthday presents.

There are reference Bibles and books to be used in Bible study, Scripture Text Calendars, Mottoes and Cards that our people should have brought to their notice through the Highway. Naturally these advertisements would be paid for, thus creating a fund that would go a long way in helping to make our prospective weekly Highway self supporting.

In the meantime, let us who believe this enterprise to be a good investment donate towards it as the Lord has prospered and may lead. Brother Baker may, if the "weekly" is launched at this coming Alliance, put down the Sanders family for $50.00.

Ever yours in Him,
H. C. SANDERS.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Dear Highway:

Storm and bad roads make attending church quite impossible. And thinking of God and his goodness to me, I thought I would send my testimony to the readers of the Highway. God is precious to me. He has been blessing my heart wonderfully, and has kept me from the sins of this world. Hallelujah! And I have victory still, and never felt so joyful in spirit before.

I have received the dear Highway since coming to Presque Isle. I enjoy reading the beautiful testimonies; I cannot express the blessing that fills my soul. Please remember me in your prayers.

MRS. SIDNEY E. MORAN.
