A POOR WAYFARING MAN OF GRIEF

(The following poem, printed in response to a request by one of our oldest subscribers, was familiar to most churchgoers a generation ago. The author, James Montgomery, born in Scotland in 1771, was the son of a Moravian minister, and there is hardly a hymnal today that does not contain some of his hymns.)

A poor wayfaring man of grief
Hath often crossed me on my way,
Who sued so humbly for relief
That I could never answer nay.
I had no power to ask His name,
Whither He went, or whence He came;
Yet there was something in His eye
That won my love, I knew not why.

Once when my scanty meal was spread
He entered; not a word He spake.
Just perishing for want of bread—
I gave Him all: He blessed and brake
And ate; but gave me part again.
Mine was an angel's portion then!
And while I fed with eager haste
The crust was manna to my taste.

I spied Him where a fountain burst
Clear from the rock; His strength was gone.
The heedless water mocked His thirst.
He heard it, saw it hurrying on.
I ran and raised the Sufferer up;
Thrice from the stream He drained my cup;
Dipped, and returned it running o'er,
I drank, and never thirsted more.

In prison I saw Him next, condemned
To meet a traitor's doom at morn;
The tide of lying tongues I stemmed,
And honored Him 'mid shame and scorn.
My friendship's utmost zeal to try,
He asked if I for Him would die?
The flesh was weak, my blood ran chill,
But the free spirit cried, "I will."

Then in a moment, to my view,
The Stranger started from disguise,
The tokens in His hands I knew,
My Saviour stood before my eyes.
He spake, and my poor name He named,
"Of me thou hast not been ashamed;
These deeds shall thy memorial be;
Fear not! thou didst it unto Me."

—The Christian.
