

MISSIONARY CORRESPONDENCE

Concord, Durban, Natal
To the King's Highway in U. S. & Canada:
Dear Friend:

Just a short letter to you today from Durban where I am staying while Faith is in hospital. I trust you are having a good summer in the homeland and that the blessing of God is upon you, one and all.

Again we have had the deep water to go through, but our God has been with us and we say through our tears, His will be done. Others have written about Herbert's death. All of you know how great a loss this is, but God comforts us and we trust our loss makes us better fitted to be examples to the flock in our care.

For the past year we have had sickness and death before us continually. Faith has been ill for the entire year, but God has taken her through and she is now resting in the hospital, her operation over, and we trust she is on the good road to complete recovery.

The Lord is blessing in the work. Souls are giving themselves to God and a spirit of prayer is upon our churches. Now we trust you will continue to pray for us that God will direct us and use us to the salvation of many more souls here in this "dark land."

Yours in Him,

D. M. MacDONALD

THE HIGHWAY SUPPLEMENTARY FUND.

Mrs. W. E. McDavid	$.50
Mr. Edward Perry	2.00
Mr. P. W. Briggs50
Rev. H. S. Wilson	1.00
Mr. H. W. MacDonald	5.00
Mr. W. D. Blakney50
Mr. Otty Keif	10.00

We are very thankful to all those who have helped us on the Supplementary Fund. Several others who pledged to this fund have not sent in their offering yet. We will be glad to receive them as soon as it is convenient, and also help from any others who will help in this way. We received many renewals and some new subscribers to the Highway at Beulah, and hope to hear from many more whose renewals fall due this summer and also some who are several years in arrears. Thank you!

H. S. DOW, Editor

237 Weldon St., Moncton, N. B.

TEXTS OF FAMOUS MEN

The text from which John Bunyan preached to the multitudes.—John 6:37.

The text that saved William Cowper from suicide.—Romans 3:24, 25.

The text that made Martin Luther the hero of the Reformation.—Romans 1:17.

The text that comforted the troubled soul of John Wesley.—Mark 12:34.

The text that made David Livingstone a missionary.—Matt. 28:19, 20.

The text to which John Knox anchored his soul.—John 17:3.

The text that gave William Carey a world vision.—Isaiah 54:2.

The text that made William Penn a conqueror.—1 John 5:4.

The text on which Michael Faraday staked everything.—2 Timothy 1:12.—J. G. Akin.

The Free Methodist.

EXTENSION FUND

It is the purpose of the Committee on Extension Work to try to do something definite for the future. We expect to have three tents operating in different sections right away. We have a small fund available but we will need your support in finances as well as your sympathy and prayer.

We must seek to enlarge our borders and push the cause of Holiness. We have a large responsibility in this matter. Let us hear from you at once.

P. J. TRAFTON,
Chairman of Com.

I HAVE LEARNED

Rev. T. C. Harvey

That it is not always best for me to have my own way.

That I can, sometimes, be mistaken and others right.

That other people can disagree with my views and opinion, and still be right with the Lord.

That it is possible for people to oppose my efforts, when I am sincere, and they still not be against God.

That I am not the only one who is right with God and who preaches the truth.

That it is far better to live higher than I preach than to preach higher than I live.

That a message from God to men is far more effective than the most flowery sermon delivered in the finest style.

That it is a sad day in a preacher's life when he comes to depend more on a "barrel of sermons" than he does on prayer.

That unless he is entirely rid of self, and filled with the Spirit, it is unsafe to push a young preacher too fast.

That the one who makes the best start and attracts the most attention, is not always the one who proves the most dependable and faithful.

That the greater a man is, the less he tries to impress others with his greatness.

That it is far better to strive to be good than to be great.

That the goodness of a truly good man will stand on its own merit and needs no bolstering.

That if our moral conduct is above question, no explanation is necessary.

That a friendship lost by standing for the right is not a great loss.

That God requires me to love even those who do not love me.

That the Golden Rule is the best rule for life, and is still workable.

That friendships made easily and quickly are not always the most lasting.

That a true friend will not only see your good traits, but your faults as well, and will tell you, and you only of them.

That a friendship which has to be bought and held with repeated favors, will sell to the highest bidder.

That those accommodated most, are often the least appreciative of your favors.

That sincere encouragement is most wholesome and is enjoyed by both young and old, but it is a scarce article.

That far too many of us keep our flowers for the dead, when a few kind words might prolong the life of the living.

That one who is laboring for the glory of God will labor on, flowers or no flowers.

That permanent and stable growth is generally a slow growth in all things.

That if the enemy can't push us to one extreme, he will try to swing us to the opposite.

That if I am looking for faults in others I can easily find them, but that in itself is a grave fault in me.

That it is more Christlike in me to remove the dust from my neighbor's Bible than to write "Condemned" in that dust.

That it is profitable for me to be more exacting with myself than with others.

That a true sign of spirituality in us is to try to restore the man who is overtaken in a fault.

That I have little difficulty in persuading myself to believe that what I want to do is what the Lord wants me to do.

That if I am a true servant of the Lord Jesus, I am not too deserving for the most humble place He wants to use me.

That God carried His work along before we arrived, and that He might be able to continue when we pass on.

That, since people have misunderstood me when I was positive my intentions were right, and since I am human as they, it is possible that I mistake their motives when they seem to intend an injury for me, and that as I desire charity and patience from them, I should grant what I demand—Wesleyan Methodist
Knoxville, Tenn.

SHOCKING DEBASEMENT OF MANY MOVING PICTURES

New York, July 2.—Patrick Cardinal Hayes said today it was "heartening" to see "the widespread awakening throughout the country to the evil character and shocking debasement of many motion pictures."

Cardinal Hayes' assertion was contained in a letter to be read at all masses on July 15 in the Archdiocese of New York of the Catholic Church. It urged pastors to prepare for the organization early in October of the Legion of Decency which he said had already enrolled hundreds of thousands of members throughout the nation.

"The American public—Protestant, Jew and Catholic—is rising, thank God, to determined action to put a stop to productions that, for the sake of monetary greed, debauch the sense of America's moral decency which until recently neither stage or screen would dare offend as openly as flagrantly as at present," said the Cardinal.

He said the moral forces of the nation had been "too patient", in awaiting a step by the Motion Picture Producers to clean "their own house". Some years ago, said Cardinal Hayes, he made a plea to the National Motion Picture Congress for censorship from within the industry.—Moncton Times.

A WOMAN I MET

My first acquaintance with Mrs. Marva Poole was twenty-six years ago. My husband being elder I, with my three children, visited in the home of Brother and Sister Poole at different times. They were on a large farm. But with her large family and many hardships incident to the pioneer days of South Dakota she never neglected secret prayer. Out in her cave she daily prevailed with God for the souls of her family and neighbors. She never lost the vision or burden for lost souls and was always victorious. Only eternity will reveal for how many souls she has been instrumental in prevailing in prayer. Many will rise up in the Judgment and call her blessed. Personally I thank God that I ever met this woman. My life has been better because of our associations.—Laura K. Whiteside.

The Free Methodist.