WORDS OF APPRECIATION

"This is such a nice supper, mama! Nobody but you cook such good things."

The little maid's opinion is one that most boys and girls have. Nobody cooks quite as well as "mother". But the speaker differed from a great many other people in one respect; she said the pleasant things that came into her mind, instead of keeping it to herself.

A teacher had drawn about the top of the blackboard in her room a pretty border in colored chalk, which had cost her a great deal of work. On Monday morning when the scholars came flocking to their seats, one pair of eyes was quick to notice the change, and a little hand went up. "What is it, Jimmy?" asked the teacher, nodding kindly toward a barefooted lad in a ragged jacket.

"I think the picture you made all around the blackboard is awfully pretty, teacher", answered Jimmy. And if you think this did not help the tired, busy woman with a hard day's work before her, you are mistaken.

These pleasant words of appreciation, as true as any words that can be spoken, and sweet and helpful and encouraging into the bargain, how easy it is to say them! And alas, how easy it sometimes seems to leave them unsaid! With certain people, like the barefooted "Jimmy", it is the natural impulse to speak out every kindly thought, while others of us have to learn it as we learn lessons at school. One thing is certain: There is no direction in which hard study and earnest effort make better returns.—Young People's Weekly

Canon Liddon: "The great masters and teachers in Christian doctrine have always found in prayer their highest source of illumination."

Edward Payson: "Prayer is the first thing, the second thing, the third thing necessary, to a minister. Pray, then, my brother, pray; pray, pray!"
