

MINISTERS AND CHURCHES

He that goeth forth and weepeth bearing precious seed shall doubtless come again with rejoicing, bringing his sheaves with him.—Psa. 126-6

Rev. P. J. Trafton reports a good quarterly meeting at Fredericton, with several seeking and finding salvation. He is continuing the meetings a few days, being assisted by Rev. F. A. Dunlop of Marysville. Brother Trafton expects to go to Perth, N. B., to assist Rev. G. A. DeLong, our pastor there who has been holding special meetings assisted by Rev. W. E. Smith of Somerville.

Rev. H. S. Mullen writes that the people are enjoying the ministry of Evan. R. T. Sellick who has been assisting him in special meetings at Saint John, and souls are being blessed.

We have just heard that our North Head Church has sustained a great loss in the passing of Mr. Norman MacLean, one of our staunch members there. Sister MacLean is in poor health and has been for several years. The Highway extends to her our sincere sympathy in her sad bereavement.

A CORRECTION

We are sorry for the error in spelling the maiden name of Rev. S. G. Hilyard's bride in the account of their wedding in last issue. It should have been Miss Audrey Brawn instead of Brown.—Ed.

MARRIED

Todd—McCrea

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Ida McCrea, when Miss Mary Marguerite McCrea, Perth, was united in marriage to Lester Alton Todd, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Todd, Fort Fairfield, Maine. The writer performed the ceremony in the presence of immediate relatives of the bride and groom. Mrs. DeLong played the nuptial music. The bride was unattended.

Immediately following the ceremony a delicious dinner was served at the home of the bride's mother. Later Mr. and Mrs. Todd left by motor on a wedding trip through New Brunswick and Maine. The many beautiful gifts received showed the high esteem in which this couple was held, and our good wishes follow them for a long and happy wedded life.

REV. G. A. DELONG

Smith—Briggs

A wedding of much interest took place at Salem, New Hampshire, on October 25, 1936, when Rev. Walter L. Jewett united in marriage Miss Glenna Briggs, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Perley Briggs of Millstream, N. B., and Mr. Homer M. Smith, son of Rev. and Mrs. F. K. Smith of Savannah, Georgia. The bride and groom have been students of Eastern Nazarene College. Mrs. Smith has travelled with the E. N. C. ladies quartet while Mr. Smith travelled with the E. N. C. clarion quartet. They are making their home in Wollaston, Mass., where Mrs. Smith is studying music and Mr. Smith is in business. This young couple have many friends who wish them a long and happy married life.

The bill for alcoholic beverages in the United States since the end of prohibition was placed by the American Business Men's Research Foundation tonight at $8,000,000,000, or $4,568.75 a minute.

One of the foremost arguments advanced by the wets in favor of repeal was that it would spell the doom of the bootlegger. But the bootlegger isn't gone. He still flourishes on a large scale. Immediately after the beginning of the present fiscal year, Internal Revenue officials added 185 enforcement agents to the department to war on liquor tax-evaders. Plans provide for a further increase of 500 men to bring the total to 4,500 agents. At the peak of enforcement of the Volstead Act, in 1930-31, the number of agents engaged ranged from a total of from 2,000 to 2,500.—Quoted from "These Times", October, 1936).

INFLUENCE AND CHARACTER

Someone has well said, "We need Calvary hearts for a Calvary ministry. We must be crucified men to proclaim our crucified Lord. We must bleed to proclaim worthily the Gospel of the Blood. The passion of the Saviour needs passion-swept servants to apply its warm grace and power to the cold, dead hearts of unsaved men and women." To be a man of God, what a sacred thing it is!

Influence is something which distills from every life. It cannot be weighed, photographed, or measured, yet it is the most real thing about a man. It gathers unto itself all that belongs to the life. The whole of one's biography is condensed into it.

A noted writer states that the most searching and influential power that issues from a human life is that of which the person himself is largely unconscious. It flows from him in every form of occupation, in every relationship, in rest or work, in silence or in speech, at home or abroad. There are hosts of men and women who are hearers, teachers, helpers, almost without being conscious of it. Lights shine from them at times when they are utterly unaware that the hem of their garment is being touched. A godly life is a popular commentary on the Bible. Men will believe the scriptures when we live them. The world's greatest evangelizing force is Christian character and the only sermon that never wearies us is that of an eloquent life. It is that background of holy personality which gives such tremendous force and impressiveness to some men's work. The most masterly treatise or "evidence of Christianity" is a sanctified man or woman.

Dr. Jowett has written: "There is a certain compulsory impressiveness of character which attaches to profound spirituality, and which is commandingly present in those who walk in the fellowship of the Holy Ghost. I know not how to define it. It is a certain convincing aroma, self-witnessing, like the perfume of a flower. It is independent of mental equipment, and it makes no preference between a plenteous and a penurious estate. It works without the aid of speech, because it is the influence of a silent and secret communion. It begins to minister before you preach; it continues its ministry when the sermon is ended. It is endowed with marvellous powers of compulsion, and it sways the lives of others when mere words would miserably fail.
