"Let no man despise thy youth"—I. Timothy 4-12

EDITORIAL

Greetings to all our young people everywhere!

This will be the first editorial of your newly elected Young People's Editor, who humbly wishes to thank the Y. P. Association for its confidence in granting him this sacred trust.

In assuming the responsibility for this page, we feel inadequate for the task; yet, with your help we want to make the Y. P. Page an interesting and stimulating feature of the Highway. This page should serve as the common meeting place for all our young people; accordingly we solicit letters from individuals, as well as reports from societies. Remember, this is your page, and you can help make it what it ought to be.

Since this is the first Highway after Beulah, it is fitting to give praise to God for a wonderful Camp. Two outstanding things characterized the Young People's meetings. First, probably no other year surpassed this one in the number attending; and second, there were many evidences of deep spirituality. Often, quality is sacrificed by quantity, but not in this case. One had only to look and listen, when day after day 90 to 100 young people crowded the platform to sing, pray, and testify, to sense a serious, yet uplifting tide of spiritual power. A person's soul would have been tragically barren, if it did not vibrate with joy when 150 young men and women, during the Convention, sang "I Know the Lord Will Make a Way for Me." The better part, however, was this: they were not only singing—they believed what they were singing. It thrills our souls to contemplate what 150 strong, talented, spirit-filled young people could do for the Kingdom of God.

Young people, let us not forget what we experienced at Beulah; let us be on fire for God; and let us continue to trust God to "make a way" for us.

ATTENTION!

We shall try to have on this page soon, the group picture taken at Beulah; but first, we'd like to select the best one from all those taken. Would several of those who took "snaps" and are willing to donate them, send them in right away to your editor?

The Young People's Convention,
Beulah Camp

Dear Young People:

I am glad that I have given my life to the service of God. He saved me from sin and took out the old carnal nature and filled me with His wonderful Holy Spirit; what joy and peace I have found! So is there any wonder why I serve Him?

We need your prayers for the young Zulus and Swazi, and Mashangane, who have to grow up in surroundings that the devil has managed to make, which keep so many of them from reaching God, and being freed. Binding customs that appeal to the instincts of fallen nature: which almost refuse to be broken. The devil has his special agents and they are very active among the young people. But thanks be unto God who delivers even the darkest dyed heathen if he but lets Him. The great salvation that Jesus secured for us works even in the life of benighted heathen young people.

How rapidly members of our Y. P. S. are taking the places of the older members of our big family, the church. The ripe fruit of old age is being picked for eternity. Soon we too will be named among the old people: but between now and that time let us make the minutes count for our Captain; let us meet the demand of this, our day.

Wishing you all the blessing of being useful to God, and to men, and of being kept from the contamination of this world, I am,

Yours glad to be in His will,
C. D. M. SANDERS
