RALLY REPORT

I hesitate to say of this rally, "It was the best yet" lest you are led to feel that I am just following the same old line. Nevertheless I find myself forced to speak in such terms because of the lack of vocabulary to express myself more fully. I think I speak the mind of every person in attendance when I say it was a time when we feasted on manna from heaven.

From the first service on Thursday evening until the closing on Sunday evening we had a packed house at every evening service and very good attendance through the day. Our song leader, DeVerne Mullen, did a splendid job and everyone enjoyed his solos as well as his leadership in the congregational singing.

Rev. E. A. Cooper brought very timely messages of encouragement, counsel and advice which cannot help but make our young people better fitted to serve God in the beauty of holiness.

Best of all, the entire rally was permeated by the Spirit of God. Right from the beginning God set His seal upon the ministry of His Word. One of the most sacred and blessed memories of the 1949 rally, which I shall carry with me is a scene following the Sunday afternoon service.

In response to a pressureless invitation from the evangelist for all who were called or willing to be called into the work of the Lord, at least thirty-five young men and women presented themselves at the front of the church. From the platform I looked down over that group. I knew nearly all of them, most of them quite intimately. I knew them to be quality young people who possessed great possibilities for God. My heart was deeply moved as I saw them humbly, willingly, gladly offering themselves to God a living sacrifice. I shall never forget it.

Another rally is history but I am inclined to feel that the recording angel found his duty a supreme joy as he made record of this blessed event.

IT PAYS TO DO RIGHT

"Where are you going, Ralph?" called his pal Jack.

"I'm on my way home to do some errands for Mum."

"I thought we'd be able to have a game of ball with the gang. Can't you stay and play for awhile?"

Ralph stopped and thought a moment. He had promised his mother he would come right home after school and carry down from the attic those things she had piled up to throw away. But he did love to play ball. As he waited, Jack ran up to where he was standing. "I-I-I guess I'd better not," he answered hesitatingly. "I promised Mum."

"Look, it's still early. We can play awhile, and then you can go home and do it. Come on, your mother can wait just a little!" As Ralph still hesitated, one of the boys yelled from the school grounds, where the boys were waiting for Ralph and Jack—"Aw, come on! Your mother can wait."

He felt the glove hanging on his belt and made up his mind. "O. K. just for a minute."

It was a "crub" game, and the boys took their places. Ralph hadn't been too enthusiastic, and so his place was way back in our field. He stood there, almost as if he were simply watching the game. The first two or three at bat, either struck out, or didn't put the ball anywhere near up where he was, so he just stood. And as he stood he thought. "I promised Mum. A fellow shouldn't break a promise—especially to his Mother. Only two
